Fire Control Religion in Russia If You Live Until 2033 Buy, and Buy American

By Arthur Brisbane

THE PRESIDENT has proclaimed a week of fire prevention and you are in that week. Last year 7000 were burned to death, $400,000,000 worth of property destroyed by fire in the United States. More than half the deaths, three-quarters of the property loss could have been prevented.

To regulate reckless fire insurance might help. No insurance should be issued on nonfireproof buildings in which families sleep on upper floors.

If there were no fire insurance on such buildings the owner would be in the cellar himself looking for combustible materials, and he would know all about his electric wiring.

Mr. Allen, recently governor of Kansas, finds strange things, travelling through Russia.

In the "Anti-God Institute" of Leningrad, established in the old Cathedral of St. Isaac, he saw "two ghastly corpses," one, that of a peasant, taken from a humble grave, "the decaying shreds of his clothing hanging to his bones." The idea is to show that he could not rise, as he was, on the day of judgment.

The other corpse was that "of a disinterred priest" that "had once reposed in a rich coffin as a holy object. A gloved, mummified hand had protruded outside the coffin. Peasants might kiss that hand for a few kopecs."

There the idea is to show the peasants that the priest also had not risen, and that his hand, apparently whole, was a deception.

The museum also showed "a picture of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., heading a Baptist parade in Chicago as a malign example of religious oppression that caps, tallem is laying upon the American people."

Not all Russians have given up religion. Some still whisper to each other, "The years of God are long," and atheism, according to Mr. Allen, does not satisfy the Russian peasant. It really doesn't satisfy anybody. That is why religions are established, to answer such questions as "Who made us, and put us here?" and "Where do we go next?"

Dr. Crile, of Cleveland, an able scientist, has encouraging news if you expect to live until the year 2033. Then, according to Dr. Crile, there will be no more tuberculosis or diabetes. And various other diseases that kill many may also be gone, and men will live longer. Cancer may persist after 2033, but there is good news about that disease, many doctors reporting numerous cures that have remained "cures" after five years.

Disease would diminish, and many lives would be prolonged, if men knew enough to take care of their teeth, or would get rid of teeth with abscesses at the roots, that poison the blood stream.

Women spend 85 per cent of the household money, according to General Johnson, and he appeals especially to them to support the "Buy Now" campaign, and thus "help to keep the wage earner on a payroll."

It is a good idea to add "Buy American" to your "Buy Now" program. Unless you buy goods made in America, you are spending money to keep some foreigner on a payroll. That ordinarily would be desirable, but it is not so important with more than ten million Americans idle.

Georgs, alias "Machine Gun" Kelly, accused in the Urschel $200,000 kidnaping, has abandoned his role of "great, big, bad bandit," since he was surprised asleep.

But his wife, Kathryn, "slim" and "svelte," to the reporters, is not cowed. In court, she slapped an officer in the face, and said: "Yes, and I would slap him again." He had pushed her ahead when she wanted to stop and kiss her father. Mrs. White, the slapped federal officer, who thought "Machine Gun" Kelly, with shackled hands and feet, had threatened him, pounded his prisoner over the head with the butt end of his revolver. That hurt "Machine Gun" Kelly's feelings.

It is believed that recent condemnation of a considerable number of kidnapers to life imprisonment, soon to be followed by the execution of one or two kidnapers in the State of Missouri, will discourage the kidnaping industry.

YOUNG LYNN MOTHER HELD AS BANDIT

GIRL LINKED IN FEDERAL BANK CRASH

Faces Indictment in a Probe of $60,000,000 Chain Collapse

A young woman clerk may be among the accused when further indictments are sought in two weeks against officials of the Federal National Bank chain who are already under indictment, it was hinted in federal circles today.

The records of the $60,000,000 failure were reported today to show unusual activity on the part of this young woman in certain major transactions.

A few new names are expected to be added to the list of defendants. This will be the fourth crop of indictments and the final cleaning up.

TRIALS IN SPRING

Federal investigators said today the trial of alleged irregularities is almost ended.

They will be forced to call a halt after the next presentments in order to whip matters into shape for trial which will not take place until early spring, according to an announcement made in open court yesterday by special Asst. U. S. Atty.-Gen. Irving G. McCann.

The evidence submitted at the next session of the grand jury will relate to alleged irregularities in the State National Bank in Lynn which has been under intensive scrutiny by Department of Justice agents for the past month.

9 MEN INDICTED.

As a result of the general investigation launched by McCann and his assistants since June 12, indictments have been returned against nine individuals. The sums involved in the alleged misapplications total close to $2,000,000.

Daniel C. Mullonev president of the Federal National Bank, is named in eleven of the indictments. His brother, Lawrence, is named in one as aiding and abetting in a $5000 note transaction.

When Judge McLellan asked counsel for Daniel Mulloney yesterday if they would waive a jury trial, the defense counsel said they hadn't decided that question yet.

CHARGE MRS. GAUTREAU WAS SLAIN

Overnight Cabin Victim Poisoned, Dr. Boos' Report Shows

Salem, Oct. 10—Evidence collected so far in the investigation of the mysterious poison death of Mrs. Madeline Gautreau, of Ipswich, in one of her husband's tourist cabins last January, will be presented to the January session of the Essex county grand jury, William F. Murray, State detective, announced today.

The announcement by Murray, who has been in charge of the investigation since last July, is the first positive indication that the authorities are convinced of foul play in the woman's death.

When their suspicion was first aroused, Dr. William F. Boos, Harvard toxicologist of Chestnut, near here, was asked to make a post-mortem examination. He found a lethia dos of arsenic had been administered to the woman.

Murray today said the only thing that has delayed presentation of the evidence to the grand jury is his inability to discover where the poison was obtained.

All possible sources have apparently been checked without yielding a clue, but the probe will be continued, Murray said.

Rider Is Badly Hurt as Trucks Crash

Two trucks, a big one and a little one, crashed today at Essex and Lincoln sts. and it was pretty hard on everybody and everything but the drivers.

The smaller vehicle, coming up Essex st., was operated by Hibold J. Boulanger of Brackett st., Worcester; the larger one, belonging to the Taunton-Providence Express Co., had Angus MacGregor of Washington st. at the wheel. It was in Lincoln st.

While the drivers were unhurt, Theodore Christy of Worcester, riding in the smaller car, suffered a crushed foot; passersby were showered with broken glass as an are lamp was demolished, and the two trucks were wrecked.

American Slapped by Nazi Troopers

Berlin, Oct. 10 (AP)—An american business man, Roland Veis, a native of Meriden, Ct., and a resident of Frankfort, N. Y., who now lives in Berlin, was struck twice in the face by storm troopers because he did not salute a Nazi procession, he reported today.

The incident occurred in Dusseldorf on Sunday while he was walking with Mrs. Veis in a street. He notified George S. Messersmith, American consul general here, who complained to the authorities.

Veis is an executive of the F. W. Woolworth Co.

Graf Is Overhauled for Chicago Flight

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 10 (INS)—The German passenger dirigible Graf Zeppelin returned today from Pernambuco, Brazil, after a record-breaking flight of 71 hours.

Mechanics immediately began overhauling the ship for its flight, beginning Saturday, to Rio de Janiro and thence to Chicago to visit the World's Fair. Passengers will include Mrs. Eria Parker of Rocky River, O., and Commander J. L. Kenworthy, U. S. N.

Horse Doping Exposed

THOUSANDS of horses are doped every year to permit "insiders" to "clean up" on the races.

Those who have charge of racing have done little or nothing to stop this practice, according to government authorities who have started a campaign to wipe out the practice of administering heroin, morphine and cocaine to thoroughbreds. Already arrests have been made at Arlington Park, Chicago, and, more recently—last Saturday—at the State Fair Grounds, Detroit.

Frank G. Menke, Universal Service staff writer, has visited all of the major tracks and, assisted by racing officials and government agents, uncovered a maze of information as to how, when and why horses are drugged.

He has written a series of fifteen articles revealing the astonishing chicanery in horse racing—how the drugs are administered and how much—how the drugs are obtained and by whom.

At many tracks little or no effort is made to keep the doping of horses secret. The cruel and vicious practice of artificially stimulating animals is winked at so that those "in the know" will prosper.

The first of these articles will appear in the Boston Evening American Wednesday.

BOY WHO SLEW IN VAIN GOES BACK TO FEED HIS PETS

Dog Helps Lay Plans to Make More Great on Race Tracks

Thanks to Lady May and Pom, young Johnny Cahalan had no doubts today about his future.

The problem of how and where Johnny—12 years old, he insists, and "too big to be called 'little'"—is to grow up like other boys, is still a serious worry to Malden police, Massachusetts courts and sympathetic New England folk.

In private conference today, however, Johnny, himself, and Lady May and Pom talked it over and fixed things up.

The council of war was held in a setting which, in spite of blue sky and sunshine, was none too cheerful.

It was in the Cahalan cottage's littered barnyard, the yard where Johnny's mother was beaten to death and where Johnny, shovel in hand, fought for her against a father who is dead now, too.

DOWN AMBITION'S VISTA

But young Johnny Cahalan, face buried in an evening lot of icecream, Pom looking about and Lady May, her aristocratic equine head deep in a nuthouse bag, gave every appearance of paying attention today to the nearby landscape.

In the first place, they were celebrating their first reunion since the Cahalan tragedy, a reunion made possible this morning by special Officer Alfred Butler of Malden, who used to be a boy, himself.

In the second place, they were looking forward to a different scene and a different "break."

Lady May, just a horse to most people, but "almost a horse!" to Johnny, couldn't explain, of course, what she and her boyish pal were planning.

She couldn't tell how she and Johnny were seeing, not the desolate Revere-Malden marshlands, but the smooth green turf of great racetracks, Readville, Rockingham, New Orleans, even Epsom Downs.

SHE'S IN THE FORMS

Crowds cheering, Lady May at the barrier, wearing Johnny's colors. And bringing them home down the stretchahead. With Johnny, maybe, in the saddle. Or

Johnny Cahalan, who insists he's 12, returned from grim and sinister things today and went into the midst of the love and life and hope that boys should have. Poms and his horse, Lady May, welcomed him back to the little Malden farm—and they sat right at the site where Johnny's father beat his mother to death and where Johnny struck the blows that led to his father's death. But they were happy in reunion. (Boston American photo.)

Tragedy's Pals Pledge Anew Their Faith

2 GIRLS, BABY FOUND NEAR SCENE OF SHOOTING

Money Found in Shoe, Gun in Car After Maine Holdup

A young Lynn mother and her baby, another woman and an ex-convict were picked up today in a police dragnet spread about the scene of a holdup and possibly a fatal shooting at Blaine, Me.

James Young, Blaine grocer, is in a serious condition from two bullets fired by the robber, a man.

The police alarm resulted in the apprehension, a few hours later, of Mrs. Matilda Burlock, 23, who gave an address in Eastern ave., Lynn; Edmond Cote, 32, said to be an ex-convict, and Miss Nellie Browning, 28. They were together in a car which was found a revolver of the same caliber as that with which Young was shot.

MONEY IN HER SHOE

Also in the car was a 15-months-old baby boy said by Mrs. Burlock in be her son.

More than $200 was stolen in the robbery. In the heel of one of Mrs. Burlock's shoes, police said they found $63 in bills and in her pocketbook, $40 in change.

Mrs. Burlock formerly lived in Mars Hill, Me., near the scene of the shooting, Miss Browning lives there now.

Mrs. Emerson W. Shaw, who lives at the Eastern ave. address, said she gave the Burlock woman employment in 1932 after she had said she was separated from her husband.

HAD JOB IN BOSTON

She worked for Mrs. Shaw during the summer and fall of 1932 but left, then saying she had a position in Boston.

Authorities said Cote was released from the State Prison at Thomaston in August after serving two years for robbery and that he had previously served nine years in Pennsylvania.

Officers said they believed the trio might be connected with a holdup in Caribou an hour before the Blaine shooting.

Young's wife and four children stood by helpless as did the 45-year-old storekeeper as he battled the holdup man.

O'Brien Heads New Union in Brockton

Brockton, Oct. 10—Thomas O'Brien, of Winthrop is former head of the welfare department of the Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen, today was appointed general organizer for the new union, it was announced by President John Murphy.

The directors of the W. L. Douglas Co., shoe plant is the only one that has not yet yielded to the Brotherhood, were in session here today. It was rumored that they would vote to hold out against the organization, at least until the National Labor Board is heard from.

Guess Your Own Weather

Forester Loveland today offered to risk his reputation on a long range prediction. Watch for the holiday but tonight, he said, would be fair, and tomorrow slightly cooler.

POLICE FRAUDS UP TO FOLEY

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley today asked the Civil Service Commission for a complete report on the fradulent examination for promotion to sergeant in the Boston police department.

Foley studied the records of the examination, delivered to his office late yesterday by James E. O'Neil, chief civil service examiner.

He then instructed his chief assistant, Frederick T. Doyle, to ask the state department for a report covering everything Civil Service Commission Chairman James M. Hurley had found out in his investigation.

If this request is complied with, and it is expected it will be, the names of those suspected of taking part in the fraud will be given to the district attorney along with all collateral evidence.

No individual was singled out for special mention in the material given the district attorney yesterday. Now it is likely that the suspected policemen, the "fixer" inside the civil service department and even the politicians and police officials who reputedly figured in the plot will be definitely named.

Free Beer Theater Banned in Augusta

Augusta, Me., Oct. 10—Twas a sad day for Sanford's beer guzzlers. A Sanford merchant figured he'd advertised it would give away free beer and pretzels with every adult ticket.

The state beer commission heard about it and frowned. No beer will flow in the theater lobby.

Forty-Two Are Feared Lost at Sea in Storm

Forty-two men were feared lost today in four tragedies of the sea, growing out of the tropical hurricane which raged along the Atlantic seaboard from the Caribbean to Newfoundland.

Of this number, 21 are believed to have been drowned when the Greek steamer Annuola foundered early last Saturday 600 miles east of Cape Lookout, N. C.

Radio dispatches from the Italian steamer Montello, picked up by the coast guard radio station in Winthrop, told of the finding, in an open boat, of Capt. George Couvelos and four men of the Annuola. Ships were asked to watch for other possible survivors.

Another feared victim of the storm is the steel auxiliary schooner Dorin, long overdue at Yarmouth, N. S., from the Bahamas with a cargo of salt. The Dorin's owners have given up hope for the schooner and her crew of 10 men.

Ten more men are feared to have been lost in the capsizing of a mysterious derelict auxiliary schooner, found bottom up and drifting in the ship lane off Nova Scotia. A craft of this type would carry approximately that number of men, seafarers said.

Walter Butland, cook aboard the Newfoundland schooner Telle, was reported lost when the craft put into Sydney, N. S., today with her flag at half-mast. The ship's cook was swept overboard in the tropical hurricane over the week-end, while all hands were manning pumps Saturday night.

Many other craft were grounded or disabled in the storm, according to scattered reports, and the Boston trawler Quincy was being towed today to Halifax, N. S., for repairs.

Consignards at the Point Allerton station sighted distress signals flying from a schooner today off Teddy Rocks, north of Lovell's Island, and put out to her aid.

JIM ROOSEVELT BABY TO TRAVEL

Washington, Oct. 10—"Woolie" and little Sara Delano Roosevelt were looking forward today to a trip together.

Sara, as everybody knows, is the 2-year-old granddaughter of the President and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt of Cambridge, Mass.

"Woolie," as everybody doesn't know, is Secret Service Agent Russell Wood, strapping, rosy-cheeked, six-footer who was once bodyguard to President's son, John Coolidge.

New Haven, where little Sara's maternal grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Cushing live, is "Woolie's" and Sara's destination. Both the prospective travellers are looking forward to the trip. They've been pals for two weeks.

CHILD, 3, DYING OF BURNS

Grace Mullaney, 3, of 19 Webster ave., Somerville, was seriously burned today when her dress caught fire as she was playing with matches. Her name is on the danger list in Central Hospital.

Her mother, Mrs. Edward Mullaney, beat out the flames with her hands and burned herself. Police Sergt. Earl W. Elliott and Patrolman Jeremiah Donovan gave first aid and took the child to the hospital.

Federal National Deluged Again—Water Main Bursts

The poor old Federal National Bank!

It would seem that it had reaped more than its share of publicity, what with alleged deficits, wholesale indictments and the rest, without further aid from a broken water main on Washington st., which today flooded the bank basement at Water and Devonshire sts.

A rescue squad had to wear hip rubber boots to carry out records of the parent bank in the defunct chain.

Things below decks were pretty well mussed up when Herbert Pearson, the receiver arrived.

"Can't estimate the damage yet," said Pearson.

"More water than assets, isn't there?" piped a reporter.

"Looks that way, just now," replied the receiver with a grin.

"Think the deluge will liquidate matters and help the depositors," chirped a camera man.

2 Girls Rescued From Burning Auto

Two girls were rescued from a burning automobile by Patrolman Thomas Hurley of the Dorchester district today.

The girls, Miss Mary Ryan, 18, of 1 Bowdoin st., Dorchester, and Miss Mary Cunningham, 18, of 1 Bowdoin st., Dorchester, were driving in a car which struck a telephone pole at Dorchester ave. and Bowdoin st. Hurley pulled them from the car before it burst into flames.

ROOSEVELT HEADS CODE FIGHT WITH STEEL OPERATORS

JOHNSON STUDIES RETAIL CODE ON FAIR PRACTICES

Administrator Moves for Master Retail Plan to End Cut-Throat Price Competition in Business Field

Washington, Oct. 10 (INS)—While President Roosevelt kept personal watch over the NRA's controversy with the steel company operators of "captive mines," Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson continued to observe the price-fixing problem raised by the pending master retail code.

The coal situation dominates all others. While thousands of coal miners have returned to work, the situation has not been definitely settled. Conference between Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Company and Philip Murray, vice-president of the United Mine Workers, in New York today are expected to bring gratifying results.

Johnson, dealing with the master retail code, conferred with the experts who have opposed the "stop loss" provisions, and inquired further into their proposed plan to end cut-throat price competition in the retail field with substitute provisions that do not fix price minimums.

ENFORCE FAIR TRADE

The final retail code will contain definite provisions of some sort to enforce genuinely "fair" trade practices in the trade, as any writers of a "code of fair competition" for retailers cannot ignore the fact that price wars rage in the trade continuously at present.

Most of the theoretical economists, however, have unequivocally condemned the "stop loss" method of prevanting cut-throat price competition.

In addition, the consumers' advisory board has denounced the method in behalf of the retail consumers of the nation.

The consumers' board, headed by Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, yesterday charged that the prospects of getting prices fixed under the oil code, which contains price management provisions not yet applied, had led the oil industry to jack up prices so that an additional annual burden of $500,000,000 had been piled on consumers since June 1.

In a letter to Secretary of the Interior Ickes, she pointed out that this gigantic gouging campaign had gone on while the oil industry had not increased wages in any corresponding degree. She said the annual payroll of the industry had probably not been increased in this period by as much as $125,000,000.

PRICE FIXING OPPOSED

She asked Secretary Ickes to postpone application of the price-fixing provisions of the oil code until he made a thorough investigation of the industry's action in boosting prices so hugely while only increasing the purchasing power of its employes about one-fourth as much as it had decreased the general consumer's purchasing power.

Johnson, with this example of the effect of price-fixing in oil before him, is resolved to study the "stop loss" features of the retail code thoroughly, and to weigh carefully the possibility of replacing those provisions with others less dubious in their possible effect on the whole recovery program.

See Who Flies Blue at Old Harvard

Astonished Harvard students today stopped and gaped in wonder while crossing the yard. Yale blue was fluttering from a third floor window of Weld Hall in the yard.

Investigation disclosed the window was in the room of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., Harvard freshman son of the President. The Yale blue was the curtains selected by Mrs. Roosevelt to complete the color harmony scheme of the room.

'Our Mary' Pours -:- For Congress Wives

MRS. SELLERS MARY PICKFORD MRS. BYRNES

Mary Pickford acting as hostess in her home, "Pickfair," for the wives of congressional naval commiteemen on a tour of inspection along the Pacific coast. In the foreground Mrs. Byrnes, wife of Senator James F. Byrnes, and Mrs. Sellers, wife of Admiral David F. Sellers. Needless to say, there was no discussion of Mary's marital discord which has been climaxed by a report of her move for a Mexican divorce. (Story on Page 3.)

STAGE WIFE OF BROKER SUES

Los Angeles, Oct. 10 (US)—That mysterious black eye with which she began married life cast an ominous shadow, apparently, over the marital career of Agnes Franey, once of Ziegfeld's Follies, and Logan Metcalf, wealthy young Los Angeles broker and former husband of Madge Bellamy, film actress.

For Miss Franey and Metcalf, who were wed in 1929, lived together only eight months. And today she had decided the time had come to separate legally.

Miss Franey signed a separate maintenance complaint in the offices of her attorney and a few hours later, deserting Hollywood, left for New York to resume her work on the stage.

When, with a discolored optic marring her beauty, Miss Franey appeared with Metcalf at the county marriage license bureau, May 8, 1929, she indignantly refused to discuss the blackened orb.

CYCLE OFFICER HURT IN SKID

Motorcycle Officer Leo Cushing was in a critical condition at City Hospital today with a fractured skull, suffered in Circuit rd., Jamaica Plain, when his motorcycle skidded on the wet pavement, hurling him to the ground.

The officer lay unconscious in the roadway for a half-hour, but finally recovered his senses. He righted his cycle and drove back to the Jamaica Plain station where he reported at the desk and then collapsed.

He was rushed to the hospital where an emergency operation was performed to save his life. Hospital authorities said today that his condition was extremely critical. His name is on the danger list. He is married and lives in Tuckerman st., South Boston.

N. E. to Benefit by Clothing Contracts

New England clothing manufacturers may get a good share of the contracts for clothing 25,000 C. C. C. foresters who are expected to be working in New England's woods during the winter, it was stated today at the Army Base, where quartermaster officers were opening the bids. Cost of clothing the woodsmen is estimated at about $20 each.

Tyler Morse, Noted Dog Fancier, Dies

New York, Oct. 10—Tyler Morse, son of the late Leopold Morse, former representative from Massachusetts and a prominent dog fancier, died at his Easthampton, L. I., home today of a liver ailment. He was 58 years old.

Meteor Shower Believed New Sky Wanderers

Philadelphia, Oct. 10 (AP)—The chances are 99 in 100 that the rain of falling stars in Europe last night is a shower of space-wandering stones which the earth never encountered before, according to Dr. Charles P. Olivier, astronomer of the University of Pennsylvania.

Whether this stream of meteoric stones is so large that the earth is still within its borders with possibilities of more meteoric displays tonight, he said, seems unlikely.

The European showers lasted about two hours, just after sunset, and when word of them was flashed to Dr. Olivier, head of the American Meteor Society, he had the heavens watched for hours, but has received no reports of even one meteor being sighted on this side of the Atlantic.

This, he said, indicated that probably the shower was over within a very short time after its first appearance.

Not in hundreds of years, said Dr. Oliver, has such a great shower of meteors appeared anywhere near this date in October. That is one of the reasons for supposing the celestial visitors are members of some stream of stones never before encountered. One of the last previous large showers appeared on October 25 in 585 A. D. That is too long ago to be regarded as one of the forerunners of last night's falling stars.

The only regular stream of meteors near the present dates in October are the orionids, which appear often on the night of Oct. 19.

MERCY CRAFT HAS MISHAP

Woods Hole, Oct. 10—Coast Guard picket boat 2297, missing for hours last night after it left here on an errand of mercy, was located early today five miles off Wings Neck Light with a broken propeller.

The picket boat had on board the body of Fred York, 50, of Salem, member of a coal barge crew, who died several hours after suffering a shock.

In response to a call, the 2297 left the Coast Guard base here to bring York ashore for medical attention. Patrol boats were sent to search for the picket boat after it had been missing for several hours.

A. F. L. HANDLES "DYNAMITE"

Washington, Oct. 10 (INS)—Controversial subjects will begin pouring into the smooth-running convention machinery of the American Federation of Labor today.

While the veteran members of the executive council, headed by President William Green, feel confident of handling all dynamite in expert fashion, there is a chance of a series of explosions.

Among resolutions expected to produce at least oratorical fireworks is:

Withdrawal of union support for Fr. Charles E. Coughlin, "radio priest," of Detroit, charging he has advocated the "open shop" in erection of an edifice at Royal Oak, Mich. (Fr. Coughlin denied the charges.)

Does Mary Want Divorce? Hollywood Isn't Sure

Hollywood, Oct. 10—Mary Pickford will get a Mexican divorce from Douglas Fairbanks in two weeks or "America's Sweetheart" has no immediate divorce plans and there has been no change in the present marital status of the famous couple.

It all depends on who you want to believe.

Members of the moving picture colony, who thought the trouble had blown over because of the long deferred steps to secure a divorce, were shocked here at reports from El Paso, Tex.

The report emanated from one Luis A. Trias, divorce lawyer of that city, who asserted that he would handle the Mexican end of Miss Pickford's divorce in the courts of Juarez. He declared the famous actress would apply for the divorce in about two weeks.

As soon as the report spread about this city loud and indignant denials came from officials at the Pickford studio and from M. A. McKay, Miss Pickford's business manager.

"There is absolutely no truth in any report that Miss Pickford has started arrangements to obtain a Juarez divorce," McKay declared.

Another denial came from Wallace W. Davis, Los Angeles lawyer, who was mentioned in the El Paso report. Trias was quoted as stating that Davis would handle the property settlement that was being effected between the two famous stars.

Davis declared that he was not representing Miss Pickford and never acted in any capacity for her.

From Paris came reports that Douglas Fairbanks is planning to marry Lady Ashley, a former British actress, but these were denied today by Tom Geraghty, a lifelong friend.

"Regarding the Lady Ashley report, Geraghty said, "this is the first time Mr. Fairbanks has heard it. And if he is going to marry her it's news to him."

Fairbanks refused to comment on the report that Miss Pickford plans to sue for divorce in Mexico.

DILLON TRUST BUYS STOCKS IN PANIC

$3,791,000 Involved in a 1929 Deal That Stirs Couzens

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Testimony that Dillon, Read C&o. sold more than $3,000,000 of railroad stock to its investment trusts in 1929 when the market was sinking rapidly was given the Senate committee! nvestigating Wall Street today.

E. H. Tracy, president of Dillon, Read & Co.'s investment Trusts, disclosed under questionin g by Senator Couzen (R.) of Michigan and committee counsel, Ferdinand Pecora, that the trusts paid $3,791,000 for 27,400 shares of Rock Island stock.

Tracy said he could not tell whether it was purchased in the name of the Investment Trust.

Couzens expressed impatience at the witness' responses and suggested calling a subordinate.

Tracy said he was giving the "usual practice."

"That's what we want to find out, the usual practice, so we can break it up," Couzens replied.

Tracy testified there was a "panic" on the market the week the trust bought the shares.

"And you thought it proper for an investment trust to purchase this large block of stock while there was a panic on the market," Pecora remarked.

"Yes," the witness said.

Pecora said the minutes of the trust board meeting Nov. 13, 1929, two days after the purchase, showed no record of the transaction or its approval.

DEBT PARLEYS FACE DETOUR

Washington, Oct. 10 (INS)—British and American debt negotiators squared away today to the seemingly hopeless job of finding a solution that will satisfy British public opinion and get by the American Congress.

The British have laid no definite proposals on the table. Nor have the Americans. Administration attitude is that Britain instigated the proceedings and should make a proposition.

Expectation prevails that sooner or later the British will propose settlement of the $4,000,000,000 obligation on the basis of ten cents on the dollar. This will be for the record, and will be rejected by the Americans.

What will follow is a matter of conjecture, but it is predicted a lump sum of $1,000,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 will be offered.

It will be up to the American negotiators then to decide whether to recommend it to President Roosevelt, and for Mr. Roosevelt to decide whether to recommend it to a Congress that is hostile to debt cancellation.

NRA Brings Results, O'Connell Asserts

The accomplishments of the past six months give every reason for confidence, P. A. O'Connell of the E. T. Slattery Co. said yesterday in an address before Methodist ministers in Wesleyan Hall.

"I am confident the consuming public is going to do its part," he said. "Surely the accomplishments of the last six months give us every reason for confidence and justify our fullest co-operation."

$10,000 Estate Left by Mrs. Scudder

New York, Oct. 10—The will of Mrs. Margaret Mott Scudder, who died Sept. 26 at Old Lyme, Ct., disposed of an estate valued at more than $10,000.

Her husband, the Rev. Henry Townsend Scudder, receives $1000 and the residue is divided equally among their children, Henry H. Scudder, Westport, Ct.; Mrs. Edna H. Coles, Old Lyme, and Mrs. Dorothy S. Thayer, New Canaan, Ct.

Longshoremen to Discuss Code, Oct. 18

Washington, Oct. 10 (US)—Another source of democracy was added to the bewildering and ever-growing volume of economic codes when it was announced by NRA that a longshoremen's code would be discussed in Washington, Oct. 18.

The preliminary meeting will be held under the supervision of Deputy Administrator Davis.

Arraign Two Today on Lottery Charges

Frank Mostaccio, 25, of Ross st., South End, and Joseph Paola, 28, of Hobey st., Dorchester, will be arraigned today in municipal court on charges arising from a raid on an alleged lottery headquarters in Dover st., South End. Police say they found more than 1000 plays, and 19 betting pads.

STATE LIQUOR MONOPOLY IS PROPOSED

Rockefeller Plan Bans Sale of Whiskey in Saloons

New York, Oct. 10 (US)—The "Rockefeller Plan" for liquor control after repeal hails for state laws forbidding the sale of distilled liquors or "fortified" wines by the glass for on-the-premises consumption, but encourages sale of natural wines and beers with meals in eating places and of 3.2 beer with or without meals and practically without restrictions.

The plan is a result of a study sponsored by Rockefeller and conducted by Raymond B. Fosdick, lawyer, and Albert L. Scott, engineer.

The part of the plan made public today deals with the powers of a proposed model "state alcohol control authority," with a monopoly on the sale of all alcoholic beverages, including 3.2 beer.

In setting forth the plan, the author say:

"By a state liquor monopoly we mean, a system by which the state government takes over, as a public monopoly, the retail sale, through its own stores, of the heavier alcoholic beverages for off-premises consumption.

POWERS OUTLINED

"The following powers would be necessary for the discharge of the authority's responsibilities:

"The exclusive right within a state to sell or control the sale of all spirituous beverages; all wines known as fortified wines; and all fermented products, such as beers and ciders, containing more than 3.2 per cent of alcohol by weight.

"The right to lease or own and to operate retail shops for the sale of those beverages by the package to the consumer for off-premises consumption, except that the authority should be bound to abide by the decision of communities which vote local option provisions. The right to operate warehouses and processing plants. The right to fix prices.

PERMITS PROPOSED

"The right to issue permits to sell beer, wines or cider in containers for off-premises consumption.

"The right to establish regulations and to issue permits to hotels, restaurants, clubs, railway dining cars and passenger boats for the sale of beer, with or without meals, and for the sale of naturally fermented wine or cider to be consumed with meals on the premises.

The report concludes:

"It is to be noted that no reference is made in this list of powers to the sale of heavier alcoholic beverages by the glass for on-premises consumption. Such sale is inevitably fraught with danger. It is our hope that a generous provision for the on-premises sale of beer and natural wine, together with the sale of stronger beverages by the package in the authority's shops, would be accepted as adequate by the people."

Alva, Okla., Oct. 10—If Judas had created a trust fund of one dollar and interest of 4 per cent had been compounded semi-annually and allowed to accumulate, the estate today would be worth $10,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000. John N. Cameron, Northwestern State Teachers College mathematician, figured it out.

Somerville Man Crushed to Death

Patrick Sullivan, 60, of 33 Vine st., Somerville, employe of a coal company, was fatally injured today while at work in the railroad freight yard off Park st., Somerville.

AID TO PIUS VISITS MOTHER

S. Amory Matthews, member of a widely known Boston family, who is serving as a chamberlain to Pope Pius XI at the Vatican, is planning a visit his mother while awaiting the arrival of Cardinal O'Connell, with whom he will visit before returning to Europe.

Matthews, who was graduated from Harvard in 1915, has been making his home in Munich, Germany, for the past nine years. He returned to Boston a short time ago for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Nathan Matthews, the former Ellen Bacon Sargent. He has also visited friends in Hanover, N. H.

This is the first opportunity he has had in several years to return to Boston and visit his mother and former friends here. He is also anxious to see Cardinal O'Connell and when he learned the latter was homeward bound after making his Holy Year pilgrimage to Rome, decided to prolong his visit until the prelate's return.

Matthews' duties as a chamberlain at the Vatican court consisted of arranging audiences with the Pope, he said. His ability to speak English, French, Italian and German, as well as some Swedish, also had caused the Pope to use his services at times as an interpreter, he revealed.

He described a chamberlain as a "sort of gentleman-in-waiting." There are a number of chamberlains at the Vatican, all of whom serve without pay. He said he plans to be there for about three months this winter.

He revealed that one of his colleagues at the Vatican is Foster Stearns, son of Frank Stearns, of Boston, who is also a papal chamberlain.

Fox Goes to Warden

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 10—A convict captured a fox in the main yard of Sing Sing Prison and presented it to Warden Lawes.

Horsemen Grieve as Club —Ever New—Closes Doors

A Boston institution passed today with the closing of the New Riding Clb, after 42 years at Hemenway and Norway sts., Back Bay.

Society folk and horse lovers mourn its passing.

But it means more than that to Fred Anderson, 70, and other veteran employes. It was their life work, and their life work is now ended.

They expressed gratitude today for the kindness of the board of governors, who will arrange a fund for their support. But sorrow was in their hearts.

"We won't see any moe children start in to learn to ride here and grow to be wonderful horsemen and women," said Anderson, doorman since the club was founded.

"I've been watching them for 42 years and until today every bit of it seemed real. Now, it's all just a memory, even the club itself."

"When this famous club was started, there were no houses around here and Governor Roger Wolcott used to come in, his shoes all muddy from the paths. Things are different now."

Anderson took a last look at the old blacksmith shop and tenderly fingered the list of the original members, before he locked up for the last time.

The club membership had dwindled because horses are now kept at country estates nearly the whole year 'round.

PROFESSOR'S BRIDE A PERFECT 36? B. U. BOYS WANT TO KNOW

SECRET WIFE OF SAVANT OF 72 ANALYZED

Did He Use Yardstick Designed for Them In Measuring Her?

Boston University's he-students and co-eds, who took 72-year-old Prof. Guillerme Hall's unlisted course on advice to the lovelorn gathered round today to give the old college yell and get a peek at his secret bride.

All had heard she is less than half the good professor's age but till were aware that at one time or another they must have seen her, because she was his secretary — Miss Helen Nichols of Dorchester.

They wanted to make sure that the professor had followed his own advice.

AID YOURSELF ALONG

"Choose a wife who is a perfect 36, boys," the professor used to tell his classes at the College of Business Administration.

"The perfect 36 is the best type of woman for health. And after you marry her, the way to attain happiness is to aid yourself into believing she's the best woman ever."

So all his students, past and present, want to know whether the new Mrs. Hall is a perfect 36 and whether the professor has started kidding himself. They also want to know about the companionship and sex appeal angles (if angles may be associated with sex appeal), for Prof. Hall used to say:

"Companionship, like that of two men who pal around with each other for years, coupled with sex appeal, forms the only true love affair."

LET GIRLS BE CHIVALROUS

Prof. Hall, it now appears, married his secretary in Canada last July and they have been living at Cotuit. Only a few intimates knew about it. His bride was his secretary for seven years. His first wife, whom he married in Mexico, died last year.

The professor never really convinced his students that he had a very high regard for modern girls.

"Chivalry," he would remark, "dates back to the time when men placed women on a pedestal and knelt before them. Once while man was kneeling woman kicked his face and the world has never been right since. It's time for the girl to show a bit of chivalry."

A lot of clubwomen never had any high regard for the professor after he aroused their ire in 1929 by telling his students they were posing—gushing over art, music and literature and knowing nothing at all about them.

WHAT BRIDES MUST BE

You can just imagine there was splutering over that.

Clothes, he always admitted, helped make the woman but "the trick is to know how to wear them." Another point on which the students are interested in his bride.

She must be, it seems, a perfect 36, chivalrous, companionable, not lacking in sex appeal, stylish and not a women's club "grabber."

Prof. Hall taught Spanish, foreign trade, sociology and other subjects. He used to teach at the Havana branch of B. U. During the war he was with Herbert Hoover in Belgium and was decorated by King Albert for his war work.

Woman, Who Beat Editor, Convicted

Medford, Ore., Oct. 10 (AP)—A jury has convicted Mrs. Henrietta S. Martin, president of the so-called "Good Government Congress," of disorderly conduct in connection with the purported horse-whipping of Leonard Hall, Jackson County editor. The jury recommended leniency. Sentence will be pronounced tomorrow.

Mrs. Martin assailed Hall because his newspaper printed stories which she claimed were insulting.

The incident occurred while the county was engulfed in political turmoil that reached its climax in the fatal shooting of George Prescott, Medford constable.

Llewellyn A. Banks, Medford editor and founder of the "Good Government Congress," was sentenced to life imprisonment. He has appealed.

Cleveland Chemist Finds 4 New Gases

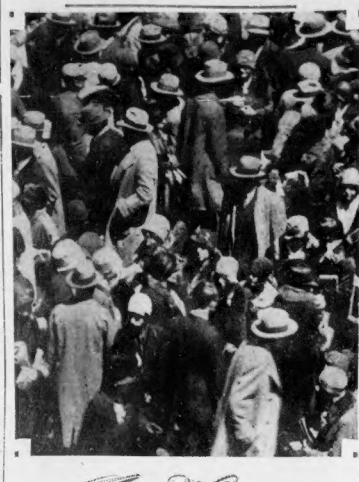
Cleveland, Oct. 10—Discovery of four new gases has been announced by Dr. Harold S. Booth, associate professor of chemistry at Western Reserve University.

The gases, compounds of the elements fluorine and chlorine with nitrogen hydrogen and phosphorus, are known as monofluorodichlorosilane, difluorodichlorosilane, difluoromonochlorophosphine and monofluorodichlorophosphene.

Stowaway Birds Quit Ship in N. Y.

New York—A flock of 100 or so tropical birds came into New York aboard the steamer Haiti and they're probably flying around now seeking protection from the chilly weather. The captain of the Haiti said the birds landed on the boat as it was passing San Salvador Island. They remained as passengers until the ship entered New York harbor. Then they took off without so much as a "thank you."

Crowds Fill Shopping District; Happy Days



Boston retailers enjoyed their biggest business day Saturday since the happy days before that certain day in 1929.

Conservative estimates over the week-end were that more than $1,500,000 in business was done by the downtown department stores and retail institutions.

If this buying activity were carried into other business sections of Boston, the total over-the-counter business must have been very large, both in dollars and individual sales.

The public apparently rushed in to buy, making Saturday in particular a gala day wherever things were to be had for cash or credit.

It was a real old-time surge of buying, department store officials reported today. There was a good carry-over for Monday, and business was reported definitely much better today than in recent months.

CRAFTS TELLS OF LOTTERY CHARGES

Accuses Everett Mayor of Issuing Tickets on Sweepstakes

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederic A. Crafts of Middlesex County today filed a bill of particulars baring the details of the lottery charge against Mayor Michael C. O'Neill of Everett and others, as demanded by Atty. William H. Lewis for the defense.

Mayor O'Neill is one of several charged with conspiracy to set up and promote a lottery. Arguments on a motion to quash the indictments, which were to have been made today, were postponed until Friday after Lewis, Crafts and Judge Walter L. Collins conferred.

In reply to th edefense demand to know what was the alleged scheme and how it was managed, Crafts stated:

TICKETS ON SWEEPSTAKES

"A number of tickets were to be sold on horses entered in the Cambridgeshire, held at Newmarket, Oct. 28, 931, to be known as the Irish Charitable Sweepstakes.

"There were to be five tickets drawn for every horse in the race. Prizes were to be distributed to drawers of all horses entered, totaling 100,000 pounds.

"Tickets winning first, second and third prizes were to receive 50,000 and 15,000 and 10,000 pounds, respectively, and in addition there were to be 350 cash prizes of 100 pounds each."

PRINTED HERE

He said the lottery was to be managed and drawn in Dublin, Ireland, and in answer to a question as to what acts brought the alleged conspiracy within the jurisdiction of Middlesex county, he replied:

"Many acts in furtherance of the conspiracy were committed in Middlesex county, principal among them being the printing in Middlesex county of many thousands of tickets.

"Also, many tickets were sold here. Considerable sums of money were paid to the printer for printing the tickets and the states for the printing were brought into Middlesex county."

Code Demand Cites 65-Cent Haircut

New York, Oct. 10 (INS)—Local NRA officers have received from NRA GHQ, Washington, D. C., "release No. 1052" which reads in part:

"Wanted by the NRA—the fair price of a haircut.

"This sounds like a gag, but it isn't. Over 200 barbers' codes have been received by Deputy Administrator John Power and they represent but a fraction of the country's 250,000 barber shops."

The release added that the average for smaller communities was 35 cents a haircut, 15 cents a shave, but that California barbers led the van in their demands by proposing 65 cents for a haircut, no tips.

LABOR DEMANDS PROTECTION OF SCHOOLS

Federation Calls for Teacher Unions, Adequate Pay

Washington, Oct. 10—To prevent what is termed the threatened "passing of the public free schools" as a result of budget balancing, the American Federation of Labor convention today adopted a 12-point educational program calling for "the utmost endeavor for the protection of education from kindergarten through university."

The program called for "truly professional standards" in the class room, smaller classes taught by trained teachers, a broader curriculum, an equitable wage for all instructors with security of tenure and "decent" working conditions, the establishment of teacher unions, maintenance of educational standards, old age pensions and opportunity for teachers to help formulate educational policy.

"MENACE TO RECOVERY"

The resolution embodying these features was presented for the federation's educational committee by Florence Curtis Hanson, of the American Federation of Teachers. The report approved by the convention said that "no greater menace to industrial recovery could develop" than that brought by the closing of schools for economy's sake.

It held this tendency was "destructive" and that "only misfortune can come if this policy is continued."

Reduction of teachers' salaries, "always inadequate," if continued for any length of time, the committee held, will bring the "passing of the public free schools."

APPEA TO ROOSEVELT

The executive council of the federation was authorized in another resolution to appeal to President Roosevelt to help save the public schools through which the nation is "threatened with grave disaster."

Other proposals adopted include the use of federal funds for training teachers, an education program for civilian camps, and approval of the "glorious achievements" of the NRA in barring child labor.

Here's Real Case of Stealing the Show

Baltimore, Oct. 10 (US)—Irving Craiken, an unemployed Brooklyn actor, was arrested in Washington, charged with stealing an "orchestra" from a Baltimore night club.

It is alleged that, after the close of the floor show, Craiken sneaked out all of the instruments, one at a time, and pawned them in Alexandria, Va.

Police say he must have used a truck to haul the fiddles, horns and drums to Virginia. The instruments, valued at $1300, were recovered.

$200,000 Art -:- Back Home

"Lucas Madonna," Roger van der Weyden's masterpiece of about the year 1450, has been returned—cleansed and re-beautified—to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. It was sent six months ago to Germany to be submitted to the expert and costly process of restoration in which Boston museum officials assisted. The widely-known and interesting work will be rehung at once. (Photo by courtesy German Tourist Info. Office, New York.)

Famous Painting, Restored Is Hung Again in Museum

If you happen to visit the Museum of Fine Arts within the next few days, you may think that you have discovered a new painting on its walls—so rich in color and precise in detail is Rogier van der Weyden's "Lucas Madonna."

But the canvas by the great Flemish master is almost 500 years old!

It has just been returned from passing through customs late yesterday and being hung again in the Museum today.

In Berlin the old master was restored in the studios of Dr. Helmut Ruhemann, one of the world's authorities on art.

Not only did Dr. Ruhemann and his assistants go over the surface of the canvas, removing bad varnish, grease, grime and the accumulated dust of centuries, thus restoring the picture almost to its original brilliance, but they proved beyond all doubt that the Boston Museum's altar piece is Van der Weyden's original "Lucas Madonna."

The museum has always maintained the canvas, presented to it 30 years ago by Mrs. Henry L. Higginson, was an original. Nevertheless, museums in England, Leningrad and Munich made the same claim for copies in their galleries.

FIRE ROUTS 15 IN ARLINGTON APARTMENT

Policeman Finds Blaze and Arouses Families From Sleep

Fifteen persons were forced to flee from their homes early today during a fire in the Capitol Apartments, Massachusetts ave., Arlington.

Patrolman Lester H. Peabody, who was passing on his route, smelled smoke and went to the rear of the building, where he saw clouds of it pouring from the cellar. He returned to the front of the building and by that time flames were darting from the lower windows.

FLEE IN NIGHT ROBES

Peabody sounded an alarm, then rushed into the building and roused the occupants.

The first floor is occupied by stores and the entrance to the Capitol Theater. The auditorium of the theater is in the rear of the apartment building.

Peabody rushed upstairs, knocking on doors and shouting. The occupants awakened, rushed to their doors to find the corridors filled with smoke.

Peabody herded them together and led them down stairs to safety in the street. The majority were clad only in night clothing and shivered in the driving rain until the blaze was extinguished.

SOMERVILLE LENDS AID

Fire apparatus from both Somerville and Arlington arrived at the scene as Peabody was leading the residents to the street. Among them were the families of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mishius, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Farrar, Mr. and Mrs. William Sheehan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Spiegal, Mrs. Annie C. Kelly and Mrs. Henry T. Whalen.

The cause of the blaze was not determined and it is being investigated by Lieut. Charles Carroll.

Payrolls Must Go Up, Says Wagner

Washington, Oct. 10 (INS)—Additional improvement of wage and hour conditions in behalf of workers will be a necessity under all NRA codes, Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, told delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention.

"The satisfactory adjustment of wages is the central economic problem of today," he said. "Pay rolls are still 48 per cent below the 1926 level."

AGNES FRANEY SUES BROKER

Hollywood, Oct. 10 (INS)—Agnes Franey, ex-Follies girl, today instructed an attorney to file a suit for separate maintenance against Logan Metcalf, wealthy broker and former husband of Madge Bellamy, film actress.

Agnes Franey

"I lived with Mr. Metcalf only eight months after our marriage in May, 1929," Miss Franey said. "In the years that have passed since we separated, it has become definite that we are incompatible. So I believe the separation should be made legal."

Metcalf divorced Miss Bellamy four days after they were married in Tijuana, Mex., Jan. 24, 1928.

Miss Franey plans to desert the movies and resume a career in musical comedy in New York.

Maine Autoist Held in Lowell Accident

Lowell, Oct. 10 (AP)—Samuel Engel, 26, of 27 Casco st., Portland, Me., was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction today after he had been convicted of leaving the scene of an accident. He appealed and was held in $300. Otto Schiebus of this city was severely injured in the accident.

Rich Widow's Wedding to Brockton Boy Annulled

San Francisco, Oct. 10 (US)—An amazing romance of middle age and youth which saw a rich San Francisco widow of 50 elope with her 19-year-old chauffeur after an acquaintanceship of two weeks—was dramatically revealed in the court of Superior Judge Thomas F. Graham, as a relative of the bride, armed with guardianship papers, obtained an annulment of the secret marriage. The youthful bridegroom offered no opposition.

Principals in the strange case are Mrs. Juanita Marie Crim, widow of W. H. Crim, noted architect, and Edmond P. Parquette, of Brockton, Mass., the youth who entered her home as chauffeur and in two weeks became her husband.

On August 4, according to the petition for annulment, employer and employe motored to Tia Juana and became husband and wife.

Miss Grace Crim of Los Gatos, sister of the late William Crim and executrix of his $250,000 estate, had herself appointed guardian of Mrs. Parquette. Using the power of guardianship she filed suit for the annulment which today had been granted.

She alleged that her sister-in-law was "incompetent before, during and after the marriage ceremony."

Parquette, it is said, is now en route to Boston.

From Brockton it was learned that Parquette was born in San Diego, his father, Louis Parquette, having moved to California from the shoe city 30 years ago.

5 PLANES END RECORD HOP

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 10—Completing the first one-stop flight by navy aviators from the Panama Canal Zone to San Diego, five navy seaplanes arrived here from Coco Solo, 2898 miles away.

The same planes established a world record for a distance flight-in-formation less than a month ago, when they flew 2200 miles without a stop, from Norfolk, Va., to Panama.

Seven officers and 20 men comprised the personnel of the five flying boats which arrived here.

Rear Admiral Johnson, who made the second hop in a plane piloted by Lieut.-Comdr. Kneffler McGinnis, flight commander, said the flight was "simply a routine transfer of planes from one station to another."

Police Make Error, Berlin Note Claims

Portland, Ore., Oct. 10—A notice was mailed to Bruno Oertel that several traffic tags were out against his auto.

Days later the Portland police bureau received a letter from Oertel explaining: "That the car of car named was not his; that the license named was not his; that his car was stored in New York, and that he was in Germany. The notice had been forwarded to Oertel in Germany."

'Half Shell Venus' Is Called 'Inspiration'

Chicago, Oct. 10—The promotor of Eleanor Benninger's micrographed nudity in "Venus on the Half-Shell," exhibited at a Century of Progress," was described as an "esthetic inspiration" for World Fair throngs in a bill filed in Superior Court. The action seems to restrain police from forcing Eleanor to drape her figure.

ADELE ASTAIRE LOSES BABY

London, Oct. 10 (INS)—A daughter born Sunday at Lismore Castle to Lady Charles Cavendish, the former Adele Astaire, died after only three hours of life, it was announced today.

The former musical comedy star, who delighted audiences on both sides of the Atlantic, married Lord Charles Cavendish on May 9, 1932, abandoning her stage career.

Previously Miss Astaire, who was born in Omaha, Neb., had never appeared on the stage without her brother and dancing partner, Fred, with whom she climbed to acclaim from the ranks of vaudeville.

SUSPECT HELD IN MAIL THEFT

John Tychyno, 40, of Washington st., East Walpole, will be questioned by Inspectors John A. Feeney and Edward J. Keating today in connection with the South Station mail robbery and the Brookline Trust Co. holdup.

He was picked up by Norwood police and handed over to Boston police for questioning.

Tychyno, police claim, owns a green sedan, which may be the car which figured in both robberies.

'MACHINE GUN' HOLDS TO ROLE OF 'TOUGH GUY'

Oklahoma City, Oct. 10 (INS)—Seemingly enjoying the spotlight, George R. ("Machine Gun") Kelly is putting on a bold "front" at the trial of he and his wife, Kathryn, for the $200,000 kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel.

Just a big, broad smile is Kelly's reaction when witnesses point him out as one of the two men who invaded Urschel's home and abducted the Oklahoma oil millionaire at the point of a machine gun.

Kelly's lawyer, James C. Mathers, frankly admits he does not think his client has a ghost of a chance against the array of evidence the government is building up against the gunman and killer.

But Kelly, who is going through with the trial in the hope of helping Kathryn, his slim, 26-year-old wife, is trying to live up to his role of a devil-may-care "tough guy."

The fact a secret service man, J. C. White, of El Paso, took him down a peg by batting him thrice over the head with the butt of a pistol has not completely subdued Kelly. In court, after this had happened, he could see a number of things which provided him with amusement.

For example, when Mrs. Walter R. Jarrett stepped from the witness stand and identified Kelly as "the man with the machine gun" the night the two kidnapers invaded the Urschel home, Kelly tried to "beat her to the punch" by standing up and bowing from the hip with mock solemnity.

But Kelly's joviality did not seem to please the jury of hard-headed small town farmers and business men. They surveyed him coolly. They seemed impressed by the positiveness of Mrs. Jarrett's identification. She was in the Urschel home the night of the abduction.

Louise Brooks to Wed Rich Chicagoan

Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP)—Deering Davis, member of a socially prominent Chicago family, said that he and Louise Brooks, film actress, would be married at city hall today.

The prospective bride has arrived from New York for the ceremony which Davis said probably would be performed by one of the municipal judges. She was formerly the wife of Eddie Sutherland, film director, and Davis, son of the late Dr. Martin S. Davis, founder of the Chicago Medical Society, was divorced several years ago by his first wife, the former Peggy McNeal, Philadelphia society leader.

BOSTON WOMAN IN ARMS PLOT

Nice, France, Oct. 10 (INS)—Police learned today that two leading figures, one an American woman, sought in munitions smuggling carried on in Riviera society life, have left New York for South America to avoid extradition.

They are a Spaniard and his wife, who was divorced from a former resident of Boston and New York.

Another American, Leon Albin, formerly of San Francisco, sentenced to eight months in connection with the plot, is awaiting hearing on an appeal.

He had been in jail three months when American Legion headquarters in Paris learned of his plight and he was freed on bail. He had been arrested with an Englishman in whose garage police found rifles, machine guns and ammunition.

Police say the Spaniard financed the plot and that munitions were transported on a yacht he anchored off the coast. It is suspected the arms were destined for use by Moroccan or Spanish rebels.

TEAR GAS FOILS STEEL PICKETS

Weirton, W. Va., Oct. 10 (AP)—With state police using tear gas to keep pickets on the move, 1300 to 2000 striking employes of the Weirton Steel Company returned to work today.

The pickets, numbering hundreds, made only one attempt to interfere with the most concerted back-to-the-mills movement since 10,000 to 15,000 steel men walked out a week ago.

As a big crowd massed at one of the gates, state troopers fired tear bombs and the gathering quickly dispersed.

Steel company officials said all departments of the mill were operating.

The company's Steubenville plant, across the Ohio river, was operating normally, workers having voted last night to resume activity.

INSULL FIGHTS FOR LIFE EXILE

Athens, Oct. 10 (US)—Samuel Insull, former Chicago millionaire facing extradition to the United States on an indictment in connection with the collapse of his utilities empire, plans to live out his life in Athens if he defeats Washington's second attempt to bring him to trial.

Insull admitted this in a brief interview in his room in a hospital here where he is under medical care and observation pending the second extradition hearing in his case before the Athens court of appeals.

Both Insull and Forrest Harness, assistant American attorney-general, are confident of victory. Insull is buoyed up by the knowledge that he parried a similar thrust last year, and his attorneys tell him he will be able to repeat. He told Universal Service:

"If I win this case, I will settle down in Athens permanently. I like Athens and I'm fighting to stay here."

The order of the court will be final if it goes against Insull.

Doctor Fees Build Ohio Airport

Ashland, O., Oct. 10 (AP)—A doctor's pills have given Ashland a complete airport.

Dr. George Riebel years ago became a convert to aviation. He tried, but was unable to convince the City Council that the town should have a municipal airport. He called in a patient who had been unable to pay his account.

"How would you like to work out your bill at the airport?" Dr. Riebel asked.

That patient was the first of several who worked out bills totaling $2100. A crew of them improved the lake, put a concrete floor in the hangar, built fences and planted trees.

Boston Edison Wins Advertising Award

A campaign conducted by the Edison Company of Boston to improve standards of illumination, describe the advantages of electric air conditioning and sell electric appliances was among the 1933 leaders receiving awards in national competition by the Detroit Mail Advertising Association.

Following the exhibit of the 50 winning campaigns at the association's annual convention in Chicago, they are to be circulated and shown at various advertising clubs.

Rev. Burke Rallies From Illness

The condition of the Rev. Richard A. Burke, curate at St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, who is ill at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Medford, was slightly improved today according to hospital authorities.

Feel Young Again!

If you are constantly fatigued from ordinary shoes, Arch Preserver Shoes will restore your energy. You will feel active, cheerful, gay.

If you have dull aches in the calf of the leg; sharp pains down the instep; cramps across the ball of the foot; soreness in front of the heel, Arch Preserver Shoes will bring you a relief you would scarcely believe possible.

Arch Preserver Shoes are scientifically constructed to duplicate the natural support of the human foot—to give the same tread-base that Nature provides the bare foot on level ground. A rigid steel arch bridge supports the main arch; the metatarsal pad enables the forward arch to function normally. All pain, all crowding and cramping, all nervous fatigue is removed.

But you must remember that you can obtain all these comfort-giving features only in one shoe—the Arch Preserver Shoe. And women can obtain Arch Preserver Shoes in Boston only at my two stores.

"You can't fool your foot"

You may be surprised to know that the smart shoes you admire on many women are Arch Preserver Shoes. All the special features are concealed behind a graceful, dainty, beautiful exterior.

Try one pair. You will learn for yourself that Arch Preserver Shoes prevent and correct many foot troubles.

BRIBE CHARGES GROW HOTTER IN MILTON

Decision of the Milton board of selectmen on charges that Police Chief Travers, now under suspension, had solicited a bribe from a Wollaston woman and influenced another to change her lawyer for one he suggested, may be announced tomorrow night.

The hearing of the two charges against the chief came to an end last night and the selectmen went into executive session immediately after final arguments by Atty. John P. Feeney, counsel for Travers, and Town Counsel Lincoln Bryant.

The hearing of testimony ended last night with the presentation of a rebuttal witness by the prosecution, who flatly contradicted the testimony of Travers regarding the bribe charges.

DENIES GETTING CHECK

He was William H. Kehoe, Milton and Neponset lumber dealer. In his own defense last week Travers testified he took a check for $35 from Mrs. Augustine O. Anthony to get her a $5 tea-room license. He declared he procured the license and gave the remaining $50 to Kehoe.

Kehoe denied this flatly and declared he had never received a cent from Travers. He said he had talked with Mrs. Anthony about converting her house into a tea-room and she asked if he knew anyone who would help her get a license.

SAW MRS. ANTHONY

Kehoe said he went to Travers the following day and took him to Mrs. Anthony's home. Travers, he said, declared there might be a difficulty in getting the license as the woman's home was in a residential district. He denied the chief's assertion he had talked with him on the telephone after the license had been obtained.

He said a week after the first meeting he and Travers went to Mrs. Anthony's home and she and the chief had some conversation about $450 and the chief declared he would have to "see Bishop and Crane."

Must Honor -:- Danish Order

Mrs. Gudrun Roll, former Danish tennis star, shown with her son, William Roll, Jr., whose temporary custody she obtained in Oakland, Cal., court. Mrs. Roll is the estranged wife of William G. Roll, former U. S. vice-consul at Copenhagen. Superior Judge Ogden in Oakland let her have her son pending the outcome of her habeas corpus action to compel her husband to observe a Danish court order that each is to have custody six months a year.

Mother, 6 Children Burned to Death

Paquot, Minn., Oct. 10—A sad father was the only survivor in a family of eight, following the burning to death of his wife and six children, as fire destroyed their home.

Roy Johnson was at work when flames trapped his family.

Alleged Murderess, Symphony in Black

New York, Oct. 10—Mrs. Charles Prince, of Astoria, charged with stabbing to death Charles J. Wolfert, a jeweler, appeared for trial a "symphony in black." She wore a black silk dress, sporty coat, hat, stockings and gloves of the same sombre hue. The trial was postponed until Dec. 4.

75,000 Batter on Gate Dead "King of Coke" Locked

Pittsburgh, Oct. 9 (AP)—The story of the ascent of western Pennsylvania's two empires of industry—coal and steel—is written in terms of the rise of an immigrant messenger boy and a penniless clerk who became a millionaire before he was 30.

These were Andrew Carnegie and Henry Clay Frick. Carnegie, the immigrant, became "czar of steel," and Frick, the clerk, became "king of coke."

They died within four months of each other in 1919 and both left empires worth millions upon millions—empires about which today's titans muster.

Labor is knocking at the gates of these empires for recognition.

Carnegie's magic career has been termed "Carnegie luck." Frick accredited business sense as was unmovable and unafraid.

Once an anarchist burst into H. C.'s" office with a pistol and dagger, and when he finished the "coke king" lay bleeding on the floor. Rough hands grabbed the assailant, but Frick raised on his elbow and ordered that the man not be mistreated.

Carnegie was noted for ability to surround himself with leaders and Frick, like Charles M. Schwab, was one of those leaders. The two earned many millions together, but finally split because of opposing policies.

Carnegie eventually sold out to J. P. Morgan interests, which formed the U. S. Steel Corp., of which the Frick company is now a subsidiary.

Unmovable, Frick never would recognize the union, and that is why 75,000 strikers are knocking again at the gates he kept so securely barred.

QUIZ MADE IN FATAL BLAST

Worcester, Oct. 10—Fire and police officials are conducting a probe into the explosion which instantly killed Frank R. Ricciardi, 43, of Wells st., father of 10 children, here last night.

Ricciardi met instant death when a shed in which he was building fireworks was blown to pieces by the blast which shook the entire neighborhood.

Ricciardi was preparing fireworks for the Columbus Day celebration to be staged by the Italians of Worcester. He was alone in the shed at the time of the explosion. The cause of the blast has not been determined, officials said.

Von Papen Favors State Arms Plants

Frankford-on-the-Main, Germany, Oct. 10—Vice-Chancellor Von Papen, addressing the mid-German industrialists, advocated government ownership for armament industries throughout the world to "eliminate the secret influence of armament concerns on politics."

"The next few weeks may bring the acid test for nerves of the German people," he said.

SPAIN TO HAVE NEW CONGRESS

Madrid, Oct. 10—A decree dissolving Congress and convoking an election for a new Parliament, Nov. 19, has been signed by President Alcala Zamora.

The president was forced to capitulate to the demands of Martinez Barrios, the new premier, who had refused to form a new cabinet until the decree had been agreed to.

With the decree signed, Barrios plunged quickly into the work of picking up the problems of government left hanging when the regime of Premier Alejandro Lerroux collapsed last week.

Women will be voting in their first national election and their influence may be felt against the Leftists, since many women resent the Leftists' attitude toward the church.

Until the new cortes is convened, Dec. 8, a commission of 21 deputies will remain as congress.

Sen. Glass, Like Ford, Holds Out on Eagle

Washington, Oct. 10 (US)—The Blue Eagle of the NRA is not spreading its wings over the newspapers owned by Senator Carter Glass of Virginia.

He has avowed his opposition to its principles by voting against it, the indomitable Virginian has refused to display the Blue Eagle on his two newspapers in Lynchburg, Va., the "News" and the "Advance."

His stand is similar to that of Henry Ford. It is understood he will not fly the Blue Eagle until the newspaper code is formally adopted.

Two Held in Theft

Boniface J. DiGregori, 18, of Pierce st. and Kenneth S. Smart, 18, of Williams ave., both Hyde Park, will be arraigned in Newton court today on charges of breaking and entering a portable fruit stand.

DRYS TO START NEW BATTLE

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 10 (US)—F. Scott McBride, head of the National Anti-Saloon League, announced here last night that when the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed a new campaign will be launched by the drys to repeal the prohibition law.

While not admitting defeat, McBride said the program was planned to start prohibition battles once again as in the days of old. The campaigns will be inaugurated first in various small communities until the Eighteenth Amendment is actually repealed. Then the campaign will be fought nationally. McBride said Alabama will be one of the first states in which a dry campaign will be launched.

Secretary to Walsh Reported Improved

Joseph T. Kelly, 29, of Cheverus rd., Dorchester, secretary to Senator David I. Walsh, was reported resting comfortably at City Hospital today, following an operation he underwent yesterday. Kelly was critically injured in an auto accident early last Thursday morning. William Wilson, 35, of Samoset st., Dorchester, Kelly's companion, is still in a critical condition.

Mayor O'Brien Puts Ban on Interviews

New York, Oct. 10 (INS)—Mayor John O'Brien has put up another barrier between himself and the press by notifying reporters at City Hall that no interviews will be granted in the future.

Instead questions will be submitted in written form and will be answered if Mayor O'Brien thinks they are worthy of answers. Mimeograph copies will be made and handed out to reporters as general news releases.

HERE'S CODE ON WEDDED BLISS

Good sportsmanship towards each other is responsible for a long and happy married life, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cunningham, of Wellesley Hills, announced today on the eve of their golden wedding anniversary.

They will celebrate the event tomorrow night by giving a reception at the Wellesley Country Club which will be attended by nearly 1000 friends of the couple.

Mr. Cunningham has held the office of selectman in Wellesley for 13 years, auditor for 13 years, and for a number of years was chairman of the board of assessors.

Family Affair College

Emporia, Kas., Oct. 10—Seven first cousins are enrolled this year in the College of Emporia, which each of their parents attended.

Sabelli Ready for Rome Hop

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 10 (AP)—Cesare Sabelli and Capt. George R. Pond today completed tests of their monoplane "Leonardo Da Vinci" and said that they awaited now only favorable weather to start on their proposed non-stop flight to Rome.

Bill Oversubscribed

Washington, Oct. 10—Secretary Woodin announced that applications had been received to the amount of $136,396,000 for 91-day treasury bills, of which $75,020,000 was accepted.

MANSFIELD AND FOLEY STILL HOLD PLACES

Forging ahead like a pair of thoroughbreds, Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley and former State Treasurer Frederick W. Mansfield outstripped the field of competitors today in the sensational Straw Ballot Test Election for Mayor of Boston.

Foley and Mansfield together polled nearly 70 per cent of the total vote as the latest flood of postcard ballots from the registered Democratic voters poured in to increase the lead they have maintained upon the field from the start.

When the latest returns were tabulated today a grand total of 15,371 ballots had been received from the voters by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Foley led Mansfield.

Their votes:

Foley	5695
Mansfield	5174

The nearest competitor in them in the mad race for the favor of the voters was Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, for whom 1492 men and women had marked their ballots.

MANSFIELD GAINS 18

The hair-breath battle for leadership between Foley and Mansfield was again heightened by the day's receipt of new ballots.

Mansfield claimed 242 to Foley's 224, a net gain of 18 in his effort to overtake the district-attorney.

The test returns in this interesting Straw Ballot Test Election, which is conducted among the registered Democratic voters by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser, were as follows:

William J. Foley	5695
Frederick W. Mansfield	5174
Joseph F. O'Connell	1492
Malcolm E. Nichols	923
Theodore A. Glynn	357
Joseph A. Tomasello	318

An analysis of the votes by the wards of Boston is now being made. Foley is shown with a preponderant strength in his native South Boston, in the adjoining Dorchester wards and in Ward 3, for a generation the bailiwick dominated by the strong personality of the late Martin M. Lomasney.

STRONG IN OWN DISTRICT

Mansfield was showing appreciable strength in East Boston, where he was born, and in Roxbury and in the contiguous sections of Dorchester. Elsewhere in the city, the battle was a draw, exciting in its closeness and always tinged by the possibility of sensational changes favorable to one or the other.

Ex-Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, although a Republican, still continued to find ballots marked in his favor, as did Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., also a Republican, but the gap between them and the Democratic contestants was being steadily widened.

Governor's Councillor Daniel H. Coakley was still a lap ahead of Judge Michael H. Sullivan, former chairman of the Boston Finance Commission and the Boston School Committee.

The question is asked, "For whom are the women voting?"

SIMPLY AS VOTERS

The question cannot be answered. The ballots are sent to them not as women but as registered voters of the city in exactly the same form as are sent to the male voters. Their official ballots will not be counted on election day as male or female ballots but as the independent ballots of independent citizens.

The ballots are pouring in daily with each new mail from the city postoffices.

Foley leads, steadily pressed by Mansfield but steadily refusing to yield his place of vantage.

Watch the latest returns. Keep pace with the race.

The latest returns will be published daily in the Boston Evening American and on Sundays in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

anyway with other owners at the rail accepting congratulations.

No, Lady May, a little bony, a trifle unkempt, her bread in a bucket, couldn't tell all that today.

But Johnny could. Even if his words weren't fancy.

"Aw, she's really a swell horse," he said. "She's a regular race-horse, whether folks around here believe it or not. She's got a regular race-track name, too. It's Easter W. That ain't so pretty, but it's on the race-track books. We even raced her once. That was up at Peabody.

"Naw, she didn't win. Not exactly. But it wasn't her fault. I guess she hadn't had quite enough to eat.

"But she's going to eat. She's going to eat plenty. Wherever I'm going, I'm going to take her and Pom. Bill (Special Officer Butler) says I can, and, anyway, I wouldn't go without them.

"WE'LL CLEAN UP"

"Say, you let that horse have all she wants to eat, you give her some exercise, and you let me be with her with time to train her right, and that horse, I tell you, can lick 'em all! You'll be hearing about her, I bet, just like Man o' War and all them. I'll race her everywhere, and we'll make good money."

Johnny's snub nosed, freckled face, pale from the nightmare of the past two days, lit up at the prospect of the good times to come.

DIGS UP SULKY

"Lookit here," he said, "and I'll show you something."

He led the way to the delapidated barn, shinnied up a heap of half cured marsh hay, and dug into it mightily. A rubber-tired wheel came to light beneath the heap. Then another. Then the frame of an old racing gig.

"That's mine," said Johnny. "I hid it so that my father—oh, I hid it just to keep it safe. I'll use that when I'm training Lady May for her first race. Maybe, afterward, I can buy a better one."

It was a subject Johnny could have talked on all morning. And Lady May was willing, too.

But chores on a place like the Cabalan marshland farm just have to be done. Johnny is used to doing them. He was worried about them last night and all day yesterday.

FEEDS FRIENDS FIRST

That's how it happened that Special Officer Butler obtained official permission and took Limmy "home" to Lady May, Pom and the rest of Johnny's four-footed friends.

Johnny was welcomed by the whole hungry barnyard. There was Snowball, the mother goat, and her four bleating kinds. There were three other dogs. There were even the hens. The live in a coop which is part of the house.

Johnny fed them all, watered them all, petted them all. It took time, quite a lot of time, but Johnny's own big box of ice cream—and ice cream has been scarce in Johnny's life—waited, slowly melting, until the chores were done.

Then Johnny ate his own feast. Lady May settled down in nothing comfort to her oats and Poms leaped about.

And they made their plans for the future.

Other Driver Was Policeman; $120 Fine

Before consigning a fellow motorist to the hot place, it is first well to determine his identity, Edgar Fleuti, 34, of Duxbury, learned today in Quincy Court, where he was fined $120 for driving an uninsured car and having neither license nor registration. Fleuti cut off another motorist on the Southern artery yesterday, and when his victim mildly reprimanded him, became abusive. Then Lieut. George Fallon of the Quincy police stepped out of his role of unidentified driver.

East Boston Barbers March in Price War

A parade of 200 barbers aroused by price cutting competition sent Sergt. Frank Gilman and 15 patrolmen rushing to Day sq., East Boston, today, fearing violence. The diplomatic sergeant suggested they hire a hall and hold a meeting. This they did in Maverick sq. Trouble began when Dominic Bruno, Maverick st. tonsorial artist, last week reduced the price of haircuts from 50 cents to 25, and shaves from 25 to 15. Six other barbers followed suit. They began getting all the trade. So now an agreement is sought.

Florida, Urged by Farley, May Go Wet

Tallahassee, Oct. 10 (INS)—Florida voters went to the polls today with a stirring appeal from Postmaster-General James A. Farley for Democrats to uphold the party repeal program.

Farley predicted the state would swing into the wet column by a two-to-one vote.

CUBANS TO OUST GRAU REGIME

Havana, Oct. 10 (AP)—The hook of governmental overthrow which has snatched more than one of his predecessors off Cuba's stormy political stage was extended today for President Ramon Grau San Martin.

Veteran Nationalist leader Carlos Mendieta, listening from the wings, heard a rising public clamor for his reappearance.

The Grau regime, fighting desperately to stave off retirement, held out compromise after compromise in the hope of quieting the opposition.

The militarized university youngsters backing Grau again ratified their support of his government, but support in other quarters appeared rapidly crumbling toward collapse.

Even General Fulgencio Batista, who directed the attack on rebellious officers barricaded in the National Hotel, reliably was reported prepared to withdraw his support for Mendieta.

Prof. Dewey Meets Mexican President

Mexico City, Oct. 10 (INS)—Prof. Davis R. Dewey, economist of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, arrived here today to attend sessions of the International Congress of Statistics. With him were Mrs. Dewey and Miss Mary Wiggin, of Cambridge, Mass.

Prof. Dewey will be received by President Abelardo Rodriguez and Roberto Medellin, rector of the University of Mexico.

Woman Dies in Gas-Filled Room

Mrs. Louella Pahtz of Harrow st., Roxbury, was found dead in her gas-filled kitchen today. A jet on the wall was open. Rescue Company No. 2 was unable to revive her.

Mrs. Pahtz, who was 70, suffered a nervous breakdown following the death of her husband on June 6.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Oct. 10—Nelson Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is recuperating at his home in Pocantico Hills from an appendicitis operation performed ten days ago.

Cranberries High Due to Strike

Wareham, Oct. 10—Thanksgiving cranberries probably will cost you more this year than they did last Turkey Day.

If they do, you can blame it all on Cape Cod's cranberry war that paralyzed the industry for weeks and isn't all over yet.

It became known today that 15 to 25 per cent of the berries are going black because they were picked too late.

Officer of Brookline Bank Dies in Maine

Fred W. Files, 50, of Davis ave., Brookline, assistant treasurer of the Brookline Trust Co. and former town treasurer, died suddenly at Cornish, Me., according to word received here today.

He and his wife were spending a few days at Cornish, where Mrs. Files once taught school. He was born in Portland, Me., and besides his widow, is survived by a son and daughter, and a brother and sister.

CAPE COD PROBE LINKS POLICE TO RACKETS

By JAMES J. SMITH
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Barnstable, Oct. 10—Cape Cod racketmen and aspiring politicians watched the Barnstable Court House with mutual interest today as Dist.-Atty. William C. Crossley placed before the grand jury new evidence in the 10-months-old murder of Franklin C. Bearse, 34-year-old Hyannis hijacker.

Weaving through the Bearse inquiry are the threads of a score of strange situations brought to light following the raid of the ritzy Casa Madrid by state police last summer.

POLITICS LINKED

It is apparent that all the threads when woven together will present a picture of racketeers closely allied with police and court officials of this section. And for that reason Gov. Ely and Gen. Daniel Needham, commissioner of public safety, are taking a personal interest in the present grand jury session.

While there is some ground for the belief that much vital information in the Bearse killing has been suppressed through fear of gang reprisals it is also openly charged here that agitation for "re-opening" the case is inspired by seekers of political offices.

Dist.-Atty. Crossley said today that all evidence available at the time of the Bearse murder last December was presented to the grand jury in April. At the conclusion of that session, he said, it was announced the case would remain open until such time as State Detective Ernest S. Bradford might obtain further evidence.

Included in the evidence offered at the April session were copies of a lease of the property of Albert Elliott in Hyannis made out to the mysterious "R. T. Greene of Boston."

The lease, State Detective Bradford said, was drawn up by Judge Paul M. Swift, associate justice of Barnstable Court, whose name was on the charter of the Casa Madrid when it was raided by state police last August.

ELY HOLDS REPORT

Judge Swift told Bradford, the latter said, that he was acting as attorney to Albert Elliott when the lease was drawn that Elliott came to his office and told him a man named Greene was renting the place for two years at $400 per year.

Under questioning by Bradford, Elliott said he was visited by "Greene" about a year before the murder, that the lease was given to "Greene" the same day and that Elliott had never seen the lease since that time.

Needham ordered the report several weeks ago and turned it over to Gov. Ely yesterday. In addition to the facts in the Bearse case Bradford supplied Gen Needham with a general survey of rum-running along the Cape and the Barnstable County court house where Judge Paul M. Swift sits as associate justice.

Judge Swift has been asked to appear before a sub-committee of the special legislative committee on public expenditures at the State House in Boston tomorrow.

and beer, in the interest of real temperance.

Thomas Jefferson had the same idea.

In 1815, he wrote to Charles Yancey that he hoped "to see this beverage (beer) become common." Of wine he wrote to Albert Gallatin in 1807, "The introduction of a cheap wine into my neighborhood within two years past has quadrupled in that time the number of those who keep wine and will ere long increase them ten-fold. This would be a great gain to the Treasury and to the sobriety of our country."

The Rockefeller investigation also recommends "the frank acceptance and treatment of beer containing not more than 3.2 of alcohol as a non-intoxicating beverage."

Last Friday Edgar B. Lebensberger, prosperous owner of a Chicago night club, shot himself to death, having learned of his indictment in connection with a $250,000 mail robbery of last December. Lebensberger has escaped, but the federal government has 20 others "in the net," all members of a syndicate dealing in stolen securities.

The efficiency of federal detectives in finding and arresting criminals sets a good example to local police.

In Indiana the homes of several miners are bombed, and state troops are called out.

In Pennsylvania many coal miners are still "out," others returning slowly, in spite of President Roosevelt's earnest plea and "almost command" to return to work.

Dealing with workers is not as simple as dealing with owners and employers.

Here's a Tip for Housewives -:- In Broom's Evolution Into a Baton

COULDN'T MAKE BROOM BEHAVE
Of course "Dot" Slamin did a lot of sweeping for her mother at their home in Waltham. It was soon evident "Dot" could not make that broom behave. But she kept sweeping.

OFF GOES THE BROOM-HANDLE
The marvel of the baton soon found that there was not the necessary balance to a full broom. So a little sawing and what you see in "Dot's" grip is all that was left in the evolution of the broom to a baton.

THEN CAME THE BEAUTIFUL BATON
Along came the beautiful baton—the stylish and gay uniform—and "Dot" was improving faster than her equipment. The Waltham schools demanded her art. On to fame she went through her work with the high school band, and then led the Alexander Bell Post band to new laurels in Chicago.

House Work Helps Dot to Win World's Baton Title

The world's champion baton twirling drum major—it's a long title and a heavy responsibility for a 16-year-old red-headed girl to be carrying around on her slim shoulders.

For any other girl it might be a little too much—but Dot Slamin, Waltham high school girl, carries the responsibility easily.

She won the title at the Legion convention in Chicago last week when she led the Alexander Grabham Bell Post, A. L., band to a championship.

Dorothy is back at her classes today in Waltham high school. She still wears the same size hat she wore a year ago.

But "Dot" doesn't take all the credit for her championship baton wielding. She gives most of the credit to her parents.

PARENTS HAD PATIENCE

"It surely took a great deal of patience for them to let me practice at home with a broom stick," Dot smiled.

A broken vase now and then—a cracked electric light fixture and a few shattered window panes didn't bother Mr. and Mrs. Slamin very much. Dorothy had ambitions and they encouraged her.

"Just for the dickens of it"—as Dorothy expresses it—she thought she would like to be drum-major of the 65-piece boy's band at the high school. It meant that she could order 65 boys around and make them like it. It also meant a lot of practice.

She needed a baton. None was available, so she went home and grasped a broom to give her mother a hand with the housework. Then the idea struck her.

BATON FROM BROOM

The business end of a broom is all right when you need it, but the handle make swell batons. When Mrs. Slamin reached for her best broom a day or two later she found in its place an over grown whisk broom—and her daughter in the parlor twirling the handle around her nimble fingers.

That was the beginning. Then Dorothy set about to learn something about music. She defeated all comers for the post of drum major at the high school and was chosen to lead the boys.

She puts them through their paces and they love it. Why shouldn't they. Didn't she lead them to a national championship a few months ago?

Dorothy was chosen to lead the crack Alexander Graham Bell Post Band at the state convention at Holyoke and then she went to Chicago.

Her mastery of the art of twirling the baton won her the long title—the world's champion baton twirling drum-major.

New England Fish Landings Increase

Washington, Oct. 10—The bureau of fisheries reported landings of fishery products at Boston and Gloucester, Mass., and Portland, Me., increased from 170,070,583 pounds, valued at $4,112,512, in the first eight months of 1932, to 180,293,469 pounds, valued at $4,336,096, in the corresponding period this year.

Seeks Traffic Post, Draws Police Fine

Westbrook, Ct., Oct. 10 (US)—Robert Chadwick Woodhead, 21, Yale sophomore, of Barrington, Ill., took his new motorcycle down to Old Lyme police headquarters and applied for a job as traffic cop, to help pay his way through college.

But Woodhead had forgotten to get an operator's license, so instead of a job he received a $3 fine.

JAP BREAK WITH SOVIET HINTED

Tokio, Oct. 10 (AP)—New differences between Russia and Japan rose today to clutter the path to continued peace in the Far East.

Tentatively, said a foreign office spokesman, Japan will content herself with investigation of circulation in Moscow of documents that allegedly described a Japanese plot to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Then, he added, "stronger measures may be necessary" unless guarantees of "good faith" are forthcoming from the Soviet.

The new threat to peace, like others before it, grows out of wrangling over sale of the C. E. R. by Russia to Nippon's puppet state, Manchukuo.

Universe 'Reborn' After Blast, Says Famous Abbe

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Possibility that the universe, like the cat with nine lives, may be "reborn" every so often through a mighty explosion, was outlined today by Abbe Georges Le Maitre, noted Belgian scientist.

According to his theory the universe is of ashes of another that existed before this one began. When the present universe "dies" also, as many scientists believe it will, still another universe may be "born" out of its ashes and live on for untold ages.

Abbe Le Maitre, world-famous, is on leave from the University of Louvain to lecture on the theory of relativity this winter at the Catholic University of America.

Though the abbe is far from sure the rebirth idea is correct, it helps explain the origin of the one huge atom from which, he holds, our universe was born.

This atom contained all matter now existing, packed into a space several times larger than the distance from the earth to the sun (93,000,000 miles), and about ten billion years ago was exploded, perhaps by the same mysterious force that causes the radio-activity of radium, the abbe says. The fragments, our sun and countless other stars, still are flying apart, he explains.

Abbe Le Maitre disagrees with scientists who think the universe is alternately expanding and contracting, like a toy balloon, blown up and then deflated.

CAPONE'S AID IS SLAIN TO SEAL SECRETS

Chicago, Oct. 10 (INS)—Violent death meted out by a methodical gangland execution squad today sealed the secrets of a nation-wide mail robbery ring which Gus Winkler, Capone gang chieftain, was about to reveal to federal authorities.

Police detectives advanced the parallel theory that Winkler was murdered for disclosing the Memphis hiding place of George "Machine Gun" Kelly, kidnaper and desperado, to federal authorities.

WAS TO SURRENDER TODAY

Winkler was planning to surrender to federal authorities today, according to Mrs. Georgia Winkler, the widow, and had promised to "beat the rap" in one way or another.

But the gangland court moved first. The squad of killers, riding in a small delivery truck, rained death on Winkler as he was entering the Charles H. Weber Beer Distributing Co. Weber is a county commissioner.

Both Winkler and Edgar B. Lebensberger, wealthy night club owner, who were under indictment for the mail robbery, met death immediately before they were to surrender to the government. Each, according to reports, was given his choice by the gangland "court" of dying by his own hand or waiting for an execution squad. Lebensberger apparently chose to take his own life, while Winkler hoped to outwit his executioners.

Winkler was released from Federal custody shortly after Kelly and his wife were captured by government agents.

PAID BACK $583,000 LOOT

Winkler had been arrested in connection with a recent daring mail robbery here, one of the participants in which was identified as Kelly. The gangster was seen here with Kelly a few days before the desperado was seized, according to reports.

Winkler, former St. Louis gangster, ascended to control of all the North Side gangs recently with the murder of "Dean" Newberry. Winkler's tieup with the Capone forces gave him apparent immunity from prosecution in five states where he was wanted for robbery.

Through a deal with the "Secret Six" here he settled a charge of participation in the $3,500,000 robbery of the National Bank & Trust Co. of Lincoln, Neb. by surrendering $583,000 of the loot. That robbery, it was determined later, was executed by Harvey Bailey, now serving a life term for the Urschel kidnaping.

CODE LEADERS URGE PEOPLE TO BUY NOW

Members of the State and New England District Recovery Boards are working today to complete a novel plan, which will be offered to all the New England States to be used as a basis for the Buy Now Campaign.

Many cities and towns in the state, acting on direct orders from Washington, launched their programs to stimulate buying yesterday. Enthusiastic co-operation of the buying public and merchants was reported from these sections last night.

LIVE UP TO PLEDGE

The two recovery boards, while not holding aloof from the buying campaign already started, believe their plan, when completed, will bring about the co-operation of a greater number of people and are devoting their major efforts to this at present.

Officials of both boards, however, joined in urging consumers to remember their pledge to trade with concerns displaying the Blue Eagle and stores are also being asked to buy only from those dealers and manufacturers who have enrolled under the NRA banner.

Melville D. Liming, general secretary of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, joined in urging support of the Buy Now campaign in a statement issued last night.

BUY TO HOLD UP WAGES

"Producers cannot long pay wages unless they sell their products," he declared. "Consumers cannot long buy goods unless they sell their products. The Buy Now movement is intended to encourage people to buy promptly against their present and reasonably near future needs in order that the wheels of industry and commerce may start up and move faster.

"It contemplates present purchasing, not unwise spending. If enough people do this a long step toward substantial reduction of unemployment will be taken. It is part of a nationwide effort."

IT TAKES Bond Bread to turn a few left-overs into this COMPANY DISH

MEAT TIMBALES
1 cup soft Bond Bread crumbs
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons butter
1 cup minced chicken, veal or ham
Salt and pepper
2 egg whites

Cook crumbs and milk to smooth paste over low fire. Add butter, meat, and seasoning to taste. Fold in beaten egg whites. Fill individual greased molds ¾ full. Set in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven, 375° F., about 20 minutes, or until firm. Turn out on serving dish, surround with egg, mushroom, or cheese sauce.

"Here's one of the quickest, easiest tricks you can have up your sleeve"

says Mrs. Frances Northcross at the Boston American Cooking School

"Don't confuse Bond Bread with ordinary bread. You can taste the difference. More home-like flavor. You can see the difference. A firmer, finer texture. You can feel the difference in your pocketbook. Bond is all bread, not puffy, spongy air-holes. And think of all the delicious things you can make with Bond. Eighty-eight of them are contained in the new Bond Bread recipe book."

Demonstrators are loud in their praise of Bond Bread's natural goodness. And nutritionists join in enthusiastically over its sunshine vitamin-D—the tooth-building, frame-strengthening vitamin.

The sunshine vitamin-D content of Bond Bread is just as effective after cooking, baking or toasting as in a fresh slice of Bond. Write for the recipe book to Mary Stone, Suite 999, General Baking Company, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York.

Always the finest flavor . . . . today's best value

REPEAL READY BY DEC. 6, SAYS FARLEY

New York, Oct. 10 (US)—Repeal will be effective Dec. 6 or 7, is the prediction of Postmaster-General James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, in an article in the November number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Mr. Farley sounds a warning to the individual states who, he insists, can alone prevent a recurrence of the conditions which led to prohibition.

WHISKEY READY

He says:

"Instead of chiseling for advantage and large immediate profits, let the responsible people of the alcoholic beverage industry sit down honestly and frankly with the gentlemen comprising the state boards of regulation and contribute their knowledge and experience in an effort to promote sane control and real temperance."

Several states, he points out, have anticipated repeal by setting up the machinery for control. The others, he urges, should act instantly, for it was in the retailing of liquor and the alliance between the retailing syndicates and corrupt politics that most of the old liquor evils had their root.

He continues:

"The liquor business as a whole went out of business in 1920 discredited in the eyes of the country. It returns in 1933 with a clean slate. Let us keep that slate clean."

Something like a hundred million gallons of domestic whiskey will be available when repeal is effective, he says. This is not all bottled in bond, which must be aged four years by law, but "good 'good liquor.'"

In bonded warehouses, he declares are some six million gallons of old, pre-war, whiskey. There are also three million medicinal gallons made in 1929 and 1930.

The total of 9,000,000 gallons, he explains, can be used in blending new whiskey to give it the right flavor.

He further says:

MILLIONS IN TAXES

"This blending will be done under government supervision and I have official advices that it should produce some seventy millions to ninety million gallons of 'good liquor.'"

Mr. Farley estimates repeal will bring Federal revenues of $850,000,000 a year. To this he adds an annual saving of $300,000,000 spent on prohibition enforcement.

FACTOR CASE IN HIGH COURT

Washington, Oct. 10—The case of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, of Chicago, wanted by Great Britain on charge of receiving property known to have been fraudulently obtained, was re-argued in the Supreme Court.

Former Atty. Gen. William D. Mitchell appeared for the British government, and Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, for Factor.

The argument turned on the interpretation to be placed on the treaty with Great Britain under which extradition has been asked. Mitchell insisted upon a liberal and Baker on a strict construction.

Berlin Proclaims 5 More Beheadings

Berlin, Oct. 10 (US)—Five more beheading sentences were pronounced here, including one on a woman convicted of murdering her husband. Two others to pay the death penalty are Willi Rocho, 19, and Otto Woithe, 19, Communists found guilty of killing a youth allied with the Hitlerites.

Parkman-Nichols War Deadlocks G. G. A.

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

In the face of a furious underground battle developing between former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols and Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., for Republican supremacy, the Democratic candidates in the mayoralty scramble today were consolidating their positions for the big drive.

The signal for the big push will be the announcement by the Good Government Association of the candidate of their choice. In the struggle that is going on within the G. G. A. between the Parkman and Mansfield candidacies, apart from the Nichols-Parkman death grapple, the Mansfield forces are more confident than ever that their man will come out the victor.

SPLIT OVER BATTLE

And the impression is growing throughout the city, that a decision for Mansfield will mean the end of the usefulness of this organization.

The Parkman-Nichols tussle has become a scrap within a scrap, destined to leave bitterness that will be felt within the G. O. P. for many years to come.

Under the pretext of conducting a secret straw ballot, letters have been mailed to the Republican women voters of Wards 4 and 5, in Back Bay, enclosing a reproduction of a report of recent marital troubles of Candidate Parkman. This letter is signed by J. Mr. Arthur W. Clifford, of 21 Prait st., Allston.

The recent in this method of attack is being widely discussed today in both Democratic as well as Republican circles and as roundly condemned. The opinion was heard that the reaction to the letter would be entirely different from what its sponsors anticipated.

NICHOLS DENIES PART

Some argue that the immediate result hoped for is the hurting of Parkman's chance for the Good Government endorsement.

Friends of former Mayor Nichols say that the letter went out without his knowledge and they look to an early repudiation of such tactics on the part of his adherents.

A further glimpse at the intensity of the Parkman-Nichols fracas is furnished by what took place, or rather didn't take place, at the regular monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Republican City Committee at the City Club. Herman Hormel, ex-surveyor of the port, presiding.

Although the mayoralty contest must have been uppermost in the minds of every committeeman and woman, Senator Parkman being present as a member, not a whisper crept into the proceedings either on the question of an endorsement or of the campaign itself.

But every precaution was made to see that all of the Nichols' strength on the committee was at full muster. For instance, Rep. Martin Hays, of Brighton, in the forefront as a Nichols booster, made his first appearance at the committee hearing.

SEE NICHOLS TRIUMPH

Those conversant with the situation came away with the distinct feeling that although the committee would apparently be neutral, officially, Parkman could not depend upon much support from many, of its members.

On the other hand, friends of Parkman looked upon the absence of an endorsement for Nichols more as a triumph than a defeat for the tall Back Bay senator.

Joseph G. Sullivan, former president of the Ward 13 Progressive Club, and active for many years in Democratic activities in his section of the city, has formally withdrawn his candidacy for the city council so as to devote all of his time to the election of Parkman for mayor.

At rallies in Hyde Park, Allston, Jamaica Plain and South Boston, former Mayor Nichols charged that former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller is opposing his candidacy because of a "grudge," the result of a clash over the financing of the Ware river and Quabbin reservoir water supply project.

ATTACKS ON BANK CASE

In conformity with his announcement that he would analyze the qualifications of his competitors for mayor, Ex-Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell over the radio started off with a close-up of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley.

He charged the district attorney with incompetency and accused him of having made a bid for the support of all Boston jurors who served in the criminal sessions of the county during the past seven years.

Judge Michael H. Sullivan, in a statement before the Ali-Dorchester Post, American Legion, asserted that the price of meat at the city institutions "is fixed after the meal is eaten and then at 10 to 100 times the prevailing retail price." Because of obstacles placed in their path," he stated, "the finance commission and the Good Government Association have been unable to remedy conditions."

Frederick W. Mansfield, addressing big meetings in various parts of the city, reviewed his labor record and asserted that he is best qualified to serve as mayor because of his knowledge of the problems of the average man and woman.

Dist.-Atty Foley today urged a group of members of Boston College Foley-for-Mayor speakers to lend a hand in the fight against the proposal of the Good Government Association to bring about a substitution of a city manager for the office of mayor.

Jimmy Walkers Turn Real Walkers

Paris, Oct. 10 (INS)—Jimmy and Betty Compton Walker have taken to long distance walking, as much some days as five miles at a stretch, for, as Betty remarked, "it shakes down the liver."

"It's the first time in ten years I have been able to do this sort of thing," said the former mayor of New York.

The location of an apartment which the Walkers are seeking to enter in Paris is predicated upon the proximity of the Bois de Boulogne or some other park, where they may have plenty of space in which to walk. They stroll unmolested about the streets of Paris, only an occasional person recognizing them.

K. of C. to Install Two Grand Knights

An outstanding event in the long list of Knights of Columbus activities is the joint installation of Newton and Norwood councils, at the Newton Centre Women's Clubs at 5 p. m. Thursday.

District Deputy Patrick J. Moynihan, of Roslindale, and staff will conduct the installation. Michael Curran will be installed as grand knight of Norwood Council, and Paul Fitzgerald is grand knight of Newton Council.

HUNT SPREADS FOR FUGITIVE

Plymouth, Oct. 10—A state-wide search is on today for Cleto Gentile, 33, under indictment here on a charge of attempting to extort $1000 from Mrs. Julia A. Rhodes of Wareham.

Gentile walked unmolested and escaped from the detention room on the upper floor of the county jail yesterday while he was awaiting trial. Gentile was brought to the jail manacled to six other prisoners. He was left unguarded in the detention room while the other prisoners were being questioned by the district attorney.

Gentile is charged with attempting to extort $1000 from Mrs. Rhodes, his former employer, under threats to blow up her home. He was captured when police set a trap for him.

Coast Schools to Be Made Quake Proof

Los Angeles, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Los Angeles board of education has voted a special election on a proposed bond issue of $15,000,000 to make public schools earth-quake-proof.

The action of the board came after 60 civic leaders and school construction experts declared there was not a school building in California constructed with lateral thrust resistance and that immediate action was necessary.

B. U. Sets Mark in Fraternity Pledges

Here is another sign the depression is over. The greatest number of freshmen in the last five years have accepted bids to join fraternities at Boston University, according to Leonard W. Taylor of Lowell, speaker of the Greek letter governing body.

Eighteen Greek houses concluded their fall "rushing" yesterday, when the Interfraternity Conference distributed the fraternity invitations to the members of the first year classes in the various undergraduate departments.

HARVARD HEAD WINS AWARD

Indianapolis, Oct. 10—The Sedwick memorial honor for distinguished service in public health, one of the coveted awards of the American Public Health Association, has been awarded to Dr. Milton J. Rosenau, of Harvard University, who is attending the annual convention of the association here.

Dr. Rosenau, a native of Boston, has served as a government representative in foreign health surveys, studied at the Pasteur Institute in Paris, and has been national director of the Hygienic Laboratory of the National Institute in Washington.

Speakers on today's program at the convention include Harrison P. Eddy, Jr., civil engineering expert of Boston; Howard W. Green, of Cleveland, O.; Ralph E. Tarbett, of Washington; Joel J. Connolly, of Chicago; J. H. Jennings, of Louisville, Ky., and Langdon Pease, of Chicago. All will discuss phases of municipal methods to be employed in maintenance of public health.

Simmons Dietitian Heads Association

Forget all the creaming when you make cakes with CRISCO

It wouldn't tire a child to make a cake with Crisco. Crisco is already creamed, you see, so naturally it's the perfect shortening for speedy cakes!

Here's how Crisco helps you save 5 minutes and a lot of hard arm-work—

First, put Crisco into the mixing bowl. Then pour in all the sugar. And if it's a whole-egg cake, break in the eggs, too.

Then beat heartily. It's easy because Crisco is the creamy, velvety shortening. In 3 minutes you'll get a fluffy, well-blended mixture. (It takes 8 minutes with a stiff hard shortening!) And you'll love the feathery cake that you'll get!

Crisco protects digestion, too

Before you French-fry another potato or make another pie—think this over: Crisco digests quickly. Crisco is the creamy, digestible shortening.

Crisco gives you crispy fried foods good to eat—and good for you! Crisco pastry is light and flaky—digestible! Why? Because Crisco's secret process turns pure digestible oils into fluffy, digestible Crisco. And it stays digestible for months!

Crisco is not sold loose or in bulk

When you buy, look for the vacuum-sealed can with the familiar blue-and-white Crisco label. It's your health protection against adulteration. And it's the only way you can get genuine Crisco—the pure, wholesome fat that digests quickly. For Crisco is not sold loose or in bulk.

CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINT CAKE

The delicious cake exhibited at the Cooking School last week

¼ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat Crisco, sugar, and egg yolks briskly. (No creaming needed with Crisco, the creamy shortening!) Add chocolate, melted. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with sour milk. Mix well. Add vanilla. Pour into square (7¼ inch) or oblong cake pan, rubbed with Crisco. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Cool.

Easy Frosting: Put 1½ cups granulated sugar, 2 unbeaten egg whites and ⅓ cup water to cook over boiling water. Beat 4 minutes with Dover beater. Add ½ teaspoon peppermint flavoring (or ½ cup crushed after-dinner mints or patties). Beat until thick. Remove from boiling water. Continue beating until frosting will spread. Cover top and sides of cake. Melt 2 squares unsweetened chocolate. Blend with 1 teaspoon Crisco. Pour over cake, letting chocolate run down sides.

TOASTED SPICE CAKE

½ cup Crisco	1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup brown sugar (sifted)
2 eggs (separated)	1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon soda	1 teaspoon cinnamon
1¼ cups sour milk	½ teaspoon salt
2½ cups flour	1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend wholesome, fluffy Crisco with sugar and egg yolks in one brisk beating. (Crisco needs no preliminary "creaming") Dissolve soda in sour milk. Add milk alternately with all sifted dry ingredients. Add vanilla. Mix until smooth. Pour into a Crisco-ed and floured shallow pan (8" x 12"). Spread with—

Brown Sugar Meringue: Beat 2 egg whites (left from cake) until they hold a point but are not dry. Slowly beat in 1 cup sifted light brown sugar. Spread meringue over raw cake batter. Sprinkle with ½ cup of broken nutmeats. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 45 to 60 minutes.

All Measurements Level—Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by the Procter & Gamble Co.

For heaven's sake, Sue—having a party?
OUT TO GET $5

But you'll never get a decent cake unless you cream the shortening first—
Says who? Watch me beat up the Crisco, sugar and egg yolks—all at once! Crisco is already creamed when you buy it.
SUE RAVES ABOUT CRISCO

Recipe above for prize-winning Chocolate Peppermint Cake!
Why, it's a Crisco recipe, Mrs. Parker. And so easy to make because you never have to cream Crisco!
Sue, your Chocolate Peppermint Cake gets the prize. The texture was lovely. We all want your recipe!
CRISCO CAKE WINS $5

At the American Cooking School, last week, Mrs. Frances Northcross used and recommended CRISCO, the modern, quick-digesting shortening

Girl Spy Flees Richmond When the Dreaded Chancellor Arrives on Spot

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan Production, made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies).

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

However, it appeared that he had been watching affairs more closely than she had. For she now learned that the Glendale road was heavily patrolled by provost cavalry at night.

"You really are a jewel," said the girl gratefully. "If I'd had to skedaddle, I'd certainly have gone that way and run my neck straight into the hangman's noose! Are our nearest pickets at Mountcastle?"

"Yass'm."

"Well, John, I don't expect we'll have any reason to run—not for a long while, anyway. All the same, thank you for taking such good care of me." She turned her horse, put him to a canter.

When they again rode into Richmond she had not shaken off that curious apprehension of threatened evil. She did not go out that afternoon, pleaded headache to all callers and kept in her boudoir behind locked doors and lowered blinds.

Again and again, sitting there with nothing on but her China silk chamber robe in the afternoon heat, she wondered at her silly apprehension. It was not like her to submit to such senseless nervousness. And yet some vague intuition remained unsatisfied — as though her own ghostly soul were alert and watching.

Into the girl's strange young mind came, gradually, a sensation of fear. She stared at the blinds as though, beyond them, danger lurked. And so powerful became the menace of imagined peril that she rose and peeped into the street below.

And saw Vespasian Chancellor looking at the house.

A sudden mist seemed to possess her eyes and mind, blinding both. Then, instantly, both cleared, and she looked down at the man of whom in all the world she was most afraid.

He was roughly dressed, his shirt collarless, his spurred boots dusty. He wore an old felt hat. He stood leaning against a large tree, his piercing eyes wandering along the house fronts but seeming particularly interested in the curtained windows of her own small dwelling.

After what seemed years to her he walked away past Gen. Lee's house and on up the deserted street. When he had disappeared she locked her door, rang for Rosie, and sent her to the stable to fetch Scobell and both horses.

She then lighted a candle, set it on the hearth inside the chimney fireplace, and touched her secret code book to the flame. It vanished like a puff of gunCotton. Billy Dick's map went the same way.

Now she dressed swiftly in her riding habit, pocketed what gold she had, and all the Confederate bills; lifted her skirt and buckled revolver to her left leg above the knee.

This was the end of Richmond for her; she knew it, though she did not understand why. And, in God's name, had aroused Vespasian Chancellor's suspicions and brought him to Richmond?

She looked through the lattice again and saw John Scobell ride up, leading her horse. There seemed to be nobody else near.

"We've got to go quick, Rosie."

"If anybody calls," she said to Rosie at the front door, "you may say that I am riding out Chesterfield way to supper and expect to return very late tonight."

"An hour ago," remarked Rosie, "strange man done come to de back do'. Ax is Miss Cleburne to home."

"Did he give any name?"

"No'm. Say, ax yuh kin'ly ef yuh'd see him."

"You said I was not at home?"

"Yass'm."

"What did he say?"

"Ax me when yuh wuz 'spected. Tole him I dunno."

Very coolly Operator 13 described Vespasian Chancellor, collarless shirt, dusty spurred boots, and all.

"Yass'm, dat de man. Reckon he jes' no-'count trash."

The girl nodded carelessly, stepped to the mounting block and swung herself unaided into the saddle. Scobell adjusted her skirt and stirrup, she whispered:

"We've got to go quick, now. Vespasian Chancellor is watching the house."

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Not a muscle of the Negro's grave face moved. He gave the girl her bridle, mounted his own horse and followed her down the street under the great trees. As long as they were on the Glendale road she dared not speak to him. As soon as they turned into Malvern road she reined in, told him what had happened and asked his opinion.

"Yass'm," he said quietly, "we all gotta skedaddle right smart. I gwine fix yuh up at de ole Henrico Inn; ax yuh kin'ly wait twill I run by de provost an' find out whar de trouble gwine start."

"You are going back to Richmond?"

"Yass'm."

"Then turn here and go immediately; I'll ride on alone to Henrico Inn. Shall I take my horse into the stable there?"

"Yass'm. Nobody dar. Yuh ain't git skeered none of I hide till dark?"

"No; I'll wait."

"Is yuh burn yuh code book, ma'am?"

He touched his hat, swung his horse and galloped away westward; and Operator 13 cantered her nag tranquilly toward Henrico Tavern along the rutty road.

The old hostelry was steeped in solitude, as the girl rode around to the stables, where twittering swallows soared and dipped and hige bees plundered the thistle. The stable door was merely latched and she had led her horse inside.

PUZZLED GIRL

Here she discovered the bucket and the shelled corn that the Negro scout had mentioned; and she watered and fed her horse and wandered about the dim place trying to think out a plausible reason to account for Chancellor's appearance.

She thought about John Gaillard, too, wondering whether Chancellor had consulted him. But that seemed impossible; John Gaillard would have come to the house himself had any question of her identity been raised by Chancellor.

She seated herself in the dim, cool stable to wait. It was gruesome. She went into a box stall, lay down on a heap of brittle hay. The pain sank lower, and when she saddled up again and led out her horse, it was very dusky outside; mist blotted the bushy swamps. After the moon glittered out, the first cat owl whooped and howled with goblin laughter.

The path of the road was the path of the moon, and in its brilliant light she could see shadowy rabbits sporting in elf-like ecstacy. It was now late enough for her to expect the Negro scout; and very soon she heard a horse galloping.

She had mounted and had drawn and cocked her pistol, when John Scobell galloped up and called to her in a guarded voice; and she rode out to join him.

The scout did not mince matters. The train, he told her, had come in at 8 o'clock. From it descended the young lady whose miniature he had seen earlier that afternoon. And, as she set foot upon the station platform, Vespasian Chancellor arrested her.

Then Scobell informed her that Vespasian Chancellor had been on the same train with the real Miss Cleburne; that, learning her name, he had become suspicious; had left the cars, hired a fast horse, and had ridden across country to Richmond to consult the provost's office.

Apparently Gen. Winder had no slightest doubt that Operator 13 was the real Miss Cleburne; and he gave his orders accordingly. So Chancellor met the train in Richmond, and placed the indignant young lady under arrest.

That explained the mystery to Operator 13—and accounted for the prowling of Chancellor around her dwelling.

"You got to leave, of course," she said quietly. "I couldn't go back and face it out. They'd trip me somewhere."

The scout agreed that they ought to ride on immediately, but with great caution, because, he told her, he had learned that all police patrols had been doubled in the district, and there might even be watchers already along this very road.

"You needn't go with me, John," she said.

"I ain't never quit nobody ma'am," he replied simply.

"Well, then, is it Mountcastle?"

"Yass'm."

They had been cantering their horses along the moonlit road for half an hour, perhaps, when Scobell rode up beside her to whisper that there was another tavern ahead—the Red Bird Inn—that they must pass. Even as he was speaking they saw lights ahead.

HARD RIDING

"Ma'am," said the scout, "I reckon we gotta run our horses or git ketched. I see two pickets mounted an' more a-settin' on the verands. Cock yuh pistol, ma'am, an' ride over them! Now, ma'am!"

As they rushed out of the night into the lantern glare ahead, the girl saw Vespasian Chancellor spring to his feet on the veranda and run for his haltered horse; then Scobell's horse hit a mounted man and knocked horse and rider halfway across the road; another rider jerked his mount out of the way as she hurled her galloping horse straight at him. Darkness swallowed them before the first pistol shot flashed behind them.

They had a long ride before them to the Federal pickets, and they settled down to it.

It was a flat, misty, moonlit country, forest-set and with few cultivated fields and fewer houses. But farther on the land became more uneven and rolling, with fewer woods and more cultivated stretches; and it was then that they heard the gallop of pursuit.

And now Operator 13 and John Scobell really began to ride.

Chancellor, the one man above all others whom she fears, once more fixes his gimlet eyes on Operator 13, and the girl trembles for her life. How much does he know of the truth about her? Is he planning even now to set her dancing that hideous sunset jig of which all spies live in dread? Read tomorrow what happens as she flees from him in terror.

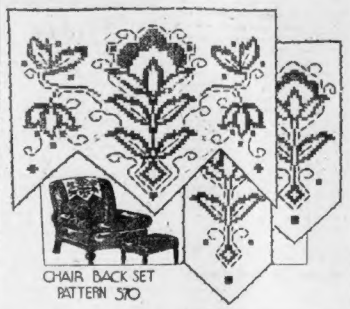
Chair Back Set

By LAURA WHEELER



CHAIR BACK SET
PATTERN 570

Chair backs add that touch of warmth to a room that makes it attractive. Practical as well as decorative, any housewife would welcome the opportunity of having so smart-looking a set as this in cross-stitch and running stitch. They can be done in two shades of one color—the crosses in one, the running stitches in another, or all in one color. As it takes but little material for this set, and little time to make it (for the crosses are of a good size), the clever needlewoman will make some now to put aside for Christmas gifts.

Pattern 570 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the chair back motif 12½ x 15 inches and two arm rests 5½ x 12 inches; detailed instructions and yardages for making the set.

Send 10c for this pattern to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth ave., New York City.

Unique Situation in Bridge Permits Declarer to Force Squeeze Play

It is very rarely that the opportunity arises for Declarer to force one of his adversaries to squeeze the other. In fact, I had not seen this situation for over a year, when suddenly it came up in a Bridge game recently.

The fates were as usual unkind, in that by making the proper sequence of plays Declarer could gain only an inconsequential overtrick at a contract of three diamonds. Yet he deserves full credit for seeing the possibilities of the hand, and the actual workings of the squeeze represent such a beautiful departure from the ordinary-run-of-the-mill procedure that I believe the hand is worth studying.

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♢	Pass
Pass	Pass	2 ♢	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♢	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the heart King and South, hoping for a spade shift, allowed him to win the trick. West did not continue hearts because he did not know the location of the Knave, and feared that his partner, even if able to ruff a second heart lead, would have to use an otherwise winning trump card to do so. So West led the diamond 9. East played the 7, and South was in the lead with the Knave. South now played the diamond King, which East won with the Ace, disclosing the fact that he held another trump trick. East continued the heart suit, South playing the Knave and West the Queen, and Dummy winning with the Ace.

South now saw his opportunity to establish a squeeze, which would occur on a trick he must lose. He led a heart from Dummy, on which East discarded a spade, and ruffed in his hand. He now played the club King and a small club, finessing the Knave, which held the trick. He next played the club Ace, and discarded a small spade. Then he ruffed Dummy's fourth club, played the diamond Queen, on which he discarded the spade 3 from Dummy, and threw a card into the lead by playing out his last trump. But before it was East's turn to play, West had been hopelessly squeezed. He had been reduced by this time to the last high heart and the King-Knave of spades, and he could throw none of these cards without losing a trick thereby.

The 20 points South gained in the honor scores by making this beautiful play were not important to him, but he derived a world of satisfaction from a difficult task well done.

Answer: It seems to me that the best bid in case 1 is simply two hearts. This is a free bid and shows some strength. The chances are that partner will respond. The second choice would be four hearts. In Case 2 I believe the best bid to be one heart, as this is about 80 44-100 per cent Forcing. Here again the second choice would be four hearts.

Care of First Teeth Most Important

By Dr. R. S. COPELAND

"Brush your teeth twice a day and see your dentist at least twice a year" is familiar advice heard over the radio. Yet I wonder how many of the listeners in the nation-wide hookup heed this warning.

In the 18th century, so-called dentists advised that to "keep teeth healthy eat a mouse once a month and fumigate the mouth with smoke from onion seeds." I have readily understand why sensible person should fail to follow the advice of the modern dentist.

At one time the extraction of diseased and decayed teeth was a common dental practice. Today the dentist helps prevent decay and so avoids the necessity of pulling teeth. With proper dental care this can be accomplished.

In addition to the necessary hygiene and care of the teeth, proper dental health requires a well balanced diet. The diet is especially important for young children before the appearance of the permanent teeth.

Bear in mind that a diet lacking in certain vitamins leads to cavity formation and diseased teeth. For this reason fruit juices are advised for the infant as early as the fourth week. Strained orange juice or tomato juice, and cod liver oil, given in early childhood, will assure your child healthy and strong teeth.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of periodic visits to the dentist for the child and adult. Care of the temporary teeth will insure strong and sturdy teeth.

Gray Hair
Best Remedy is Made at Home
You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

THE TEA WHICH MRS. FRANK W. STEWART will give from 4 until 5:30 o'clock on Tuesday, October 17, in honor of Miss Avery will be attended by the special committee of 100 who have been working the success of the lecture course "Interpretations of World Affairs" . . .

These lectures by Miss Avery began on October 20 at the Hotel Statler. They will benefit the Children's Hospital. Mrs. Stewart is serving as co-chairman with Mrs. Samuel D. Warren . . .

MRS. SAMUEL D. WARREN

Mrs. Stewart's tea will give an opportunity of chatting informally with Miss Avery, who spent the early summer in Europe and the later months in the West collecting impressions of the New Deal. Among her unusual European engagements was a luncheon at No. 10 Downing st. Of course, Premier Ramsay McDonald was her host. Baroness von Hindenburg entertained Miss Avery in Berlin just before she went on to the conferences at Geneva.

Mrs. Richard S. Russell is returning in a day or so from a short trip to New York to take up her duties again as treasurer of the lecture committee. She has named Mrs. Winslow B. Felton of Westwood her assistant. Miss Anne Houghton of Milton and Mrs. Robert C. Terry will have charge of the ushers on Friday morning.

This is a grand chance for anyone who wishes to get first hand news of world affairs to glean information from a woman's point of view . . . women in the fashionable world are looking forward to these lectures with anticipation of Friday morning's well spent.

Mrs. Dana Orcutt's Series Popular

ANOTHER POPULAR SERIES OF MONDAY mornings of lecture being sponsored by Mrs. William Dana Orcutt has succeeded her to revise her condensed seating plan for the Georgian room of the Statler to provide reserved seats for those who have just returned from abroad and others who are still away . . .

The demand for the course has been most gratifying and, as there are many who cannot be in Boston for the entire season, it has been decided to reserve a few seats for individual mornings . . . single unreserved seats may be obtained at the door.

The opening date is Monday, October 16, at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Dodge Post, whose pen name is Emily Post, will discuss "The Fundamentals of Taste." Inasmuch as she will approach her subject from a philosophical point rather than consider only the mechanics of etiquette, much discussion is forecast by her sponsors.

Harvard Stags Wary as Season Opens

THE HARVARD SATIATES ARE MISSPELLING the debutantes names by calling them DUBS instead of BUDS this season . . . from our hearsay this year's crop is not lining up so well and there appear to be no outstanding or popular girls in this year's bouquet . . . however, the winter is young. Anne Sortwell to Make Bow Friday

Miss Anne Sortwell, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell of Beverly Farms, will be the guest of honor at a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean, on Friday evening, preceding her own presentation dance, which her parents are giving at their home on Hart rd.

Among the guests at the McKean's will be Miss Nancy Kondo of Winnetka, Ill., and Miss Jane Cook of Madison, N. J., house guests of Miss Sortwell. From the ranks of this year's debutantes will be the Misses Polly Gardiner, Isabel Lawrence, Lee McKean, daughter of the hostess; Dorothy West, Phyllis Forbes, Nancy Whitman, Alice Burrage, Susanna Minturn, Christiana Bartlett, Margaret Stockton, Lorraine Young, Sally Curtis and Alice Burr. Among the young men who have been invited to the dinner and who may be called upon to assist with the informal ushering at the dance later, are the Messrs. Parker Marean, John Storey, Sam Warren, Dennis Boardman, Donald Cutler, Jr., David Cheever, Jr., J. Wave, Jr., Louis Shaw, Philip Weld, T. B. Williams, M. Seymour, S. Picher and L. Brown.

Other dinner hostesses before the Sortwell dance will be: Mrs. Robert Livermore, who will entertain a group of friends for Miss Gwendolyn Livermore; Mrs. Hiram Folsom, mother of debutante Natalie Folsom; Miss Eleonora Sears, Mrs. Harrison Reynolds and Mrs. William F. A. Stride, wife of the rector of Christ Church in Hamilton.

Mystery Cloaks Aid Program

This week promises a crowded program for Boston's debs and subdebs. In addition to holiday plans, rehearsals have started for some of the program features of the fashion show to be held at the Copley Plaza Hotel on Wednesday, Nov. 8, in connection with the bridge for the benefit of the South End Day Nursery Auxiliary.

Although many of the plans for the fashion show are shrouded in mystery, enough information has been dropped to whet the curiosity, for it is known that Rae Samoff, in charge of the show, has prepared an innovation with budgets the keynote.

Rehearsals are being held daily in Samoff's new deb shop, where the Misses Virginia Tolman, Caroline Oveson, Katherine Baker, Astrid Rice, Eleanor King, Leslie Bremer, Martha Rogerson, Dorothy Knowles and others are rehearsing.

Society Notes

AN EARLY FALL ALLIANCE is that of Miss Mildred Prescott Rodgers, daughter of Mr. Edwin A. Rogers of 535 Beacon st., and Mr. Percival D. Sheperd of Marlboro st., whose marriage was solemnized at noon Saturday in the Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel. Mr. Sheperd was graduated from Wesleyan College in 1912. After their wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Sheperd will reside at 293 Commonwealth ave.

THE WALTER G. O'NEILS OF Peach's Point, Marblehead, have returned to Boston and are back in their apartment at 90 Commonwealth ave. They are leaving soon on a motor tour of Canada.

YESTERDAY WAS THE wedding day of Miss Margaret J. Meily, of Winchester, when her marriage to Mr. John B. McLaughlin, of Cambridge, was held at the rectory of St. Mary's church in Winchester at 5 o'clock. Miss Alice Meily was her sister's only attendant. Mr. William McLaughlin was the best man. After a nuptial supper in Boston Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin left on a honeymoon to the Chicago Fair. Upon their return they will reside in Arlington.

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

THERE IS ONE GATHERING FOR WHICH rain hath no terrors, nor do cloudy skies deplete the number of spectators—to wit the Harvard-Bates football game last Saturday.

Checks and plaids were the order of the day and colorful raincoats detracted nothing from the chic of the many modish costumes.

Among those who watched Harvard open its gridiron season were Mr. and Mrs. John Linder of Winchester. Mrs. Linder accentuated her dark beauty with a modish wine-colored ensemble. Miss Mary Linder Putnam, her sister-in-law, is sojourning with her husband, Professor Putnam, in the Belgian Congo, where they are pursuing anthropological research.

Also among the spectators were Mr. and Mrs. Madison Sayles, whose Winchester wedding last week was of interest to social and football circles. Sayles, a former Harvard football star, watched the game with intense interest. His bride was charming in a dark brown felt hat and tan polo coat.

Miss Dorothy Dean, of Cohasset, in brown sport ensemble watched her brother, Capt. "Johnny" Dean, lead the Harvard host on the field and then laughed heartily after the first scrimmage when Johnny's blond head refused to retain his head guard.

DOROTHY DEAN

However, his play did not suffer and the Dean family, who motored up from Cohasset en masse, had reason to be proud of Capt. Johnny.

Miss Mary Esther Cooper, last year's gay little debutante, was on hand for the whistle wearing a trig little dark blue outfit with spotless white accessories.

Mr and Mrs. Thomas Kedian were among the spectators.

Mrs. Kedian wore a striking taupe ensemble trimmed with caracul fur. Her niece, Miss Jane Mathew, was frocked in trim black satin with black fox trimming.

Chic in Dark Gray

Miss "Cinders" Haskell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Haskell of Beacon st., wore a fitted dark gray sport outfit. Accompanying her was Miss Janet Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Pierce of Bay State rd., who wore a brown ensemble trimmed with the popular coon fur. Adorable as ever in dark blue with soft silver about the neck was Miss Peggy Hardwick, who rarely misses a Harvard contest. She inherits her daddy's, "Tack" Hardwick's, love of sports. That trig little blue hat she wears cocked over one ear is chic.

Olivia Vogel

Dr. Robert Young sat with his daughter, Miss Emily Young, in brown and tan. She assured us that the most fun she knew was coming to a Harvard game.

Slicker Hides Garb

MR. AND MRS. GILES WERE among friends. Mrs. Giles eclipsed her gay brown and orange outfit under a white slicker when the rain began to patter.

Miss Martha Chapin, another of last year's debs now working with such ardor on the Harvard and Yale Ball to be held the night before the big game, was thrilled with the opening game. She is a grid enthusiast.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Soucy, who never miss a Harvard game, were present, accompanied by Mr. Sam Felton. Ernie Soucy and Sam Felton played together for Harvard and enjoy the camaraderie which their feats engendered. Petite Mrs. Soucy was charming in a seal brown outfit with a flirtatious little veil.

Lothrop Withington, Jr., escorted golden-haired Olivia Vogel, whose locks were hidden beneath a gray sport hat.

Plaids Color Scene

Miss Priscilla Probst, glamorous young lady, was wearing coon fur. In fact we would say that plaids, checks and coon fur held the honors of the day.

Miss Priscilla Linder, sister of the former Harvard football player, Chet Linder, watched the game from the popular mid-field section wearing brown tweed.

Mrs. Robert Greenwood, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Whipple, were on hand. Mrs. Greenwood wore a brown sport rig, while Mrs. Whipple wore a shade lighter, in tweeds.

Two Bright Debs

CROSSING THE COMMON the other day we met those two attractive and charming little debs, Miss Gwendolen Livermore and Miss Emily Dick, both of the North Shore and Boston. Both are greatly in demand in social circles. Miss Gwendolen Livermore, in a navy blue ensemble, with her golden brown hair peeping from her wee hat, appeared "dashy." Miss Emily Dick, decidedly blonde, petite and fetching, also wore blue, one of those good looking swagger coats and a little velvet beret.

CLOTHES HARMONY BY FASHION QUARTET -:- BEAUTY IS 'TWO-FACED' IN AUTUMN

Plaids Are the Boss of Ensemble Song for Autumn Sports and Even Town Frocks

(Authentic last minute fashions fom New York—the style center of America)

By Victoria Gaines

DO YOU KNOW the smartest thing you can do this season? Have a little "clothes harmony" in your costume! Take a blouse of one color, a skirt of another and a plaid topcoat that combines the two colors—and you'll have a fashion recipe of which even Prudence Penny would be proud! Or you can wear a skirt and blouse of different colors with a scarf that combines them both—and still be smart. And another variation is to have a coat and skirt of two contrasting colors and tie them together with a sweater blouse striped in both tones. The possibilities are endless!

In any case, don't make the mistake of trying to match your costume colors—no one in the know of fashion does that anymore! It's much newer and smarter to harmonize them instead!

Persian Preferred

Parisian is spelled P-e-r-s-i-a-n this season—meaning Persian lamb, of course! Never before has there been such a rage for this flat, curly fur—on coats, on suits, and as often as not, on dresses, too. Coats have high, collars of it—sometimes whose sleeves are made of it, and sometimes incrustations of the fur are set into the sleeves. Suits have bands and borders of it—dresses are apt to become furbearing almost anywhere.

Persian lamb is flat, and, therefore, flattering, especially to the small or stout woman who craves a fur-trimmed coat, but cannot stand the bulkiness of long-haired, fluffy furs. And it does all the scrobatic things that designers demand of furs these days—it can be cut, stripped and twisted into almost any conceivable shape

Glorifying Neckline

Just for fun, the other day, we counted up all the things that are being done these days to glorify the American neckline. First, we had capes and collars of ostrich feathers—and cog feathers—and lacquered feathers that look for all the world like monkey fur—a la Schiaparelli. Then, wee spangles and sequins sparkling all over collars and capelets for evening wear. We had fur collars galore—in Persian lamb, caracul, and ermine—removable, so that they can be worn with either a dress, coat or suit. And now, we have flowered bibs and tuckers blossoming around our necks

And picturing this after mad melange of flowers, furs and feathers, we fell.

Fashion's Going Up!

Everything's going up about Fashion this season—necklines are going high, hats have become higher—so of course, shoes have had to climb way up to harmonize with the whole.

Shoe syles have taken a definitely upward turn in sympathy with the NRA, or what-not. This is particularly true in the new oxford types, which are high enough for cuffs and buckles straps across the front. Opera pumps, too, are rising in the world, with built-up fronts to achieve the high-cut effect.

Glittering Gadgets

All that glitters is not gold, this season—sometimes it's sequins! Sequins sparkle all over evening frocks, capes and little kerchief collars are entirely covered with colored sequins, and even evening bags have gone glittering

And if it's not sequins, it's rhinestones — rhinestone bands and pins that gleam in your hair, rhinestone clips on your frocks, rhinestone belts and buckles—giving a good imitation of the Chicago World's Fair lit up at night!

With Edwardian Flavor

Lily Langtry herself would have approved the cascaded ruffles that decorate the chiffon evening gown, sketched left, above. The front neckline, however, is distinctly 1933, which is to say that it is high.

The color is that one which may be termed loganberry or pansy. The gown at the right, above, is flaring blackberry velvet, fitted to define bust and hips in a Gay Ninety manner and flared interestingly below the knees.

The Marry-Go-Round Mixed Grill

NUDISM LOSES its popularity just about this time of year, when the shop windows are full of temptations and a woman's most vital problem is how to get all the clothes she wants.

What finishes many a man before his time is that feeling that he "ought to get up" and be a boy again just at the time when he ought to slow down and watch his step.

Always repress that impulse to call a man up without reason. The telephone may be a married man's best friend, but it is a weak woman's worst temptation.

Your City Complexion Can Now Go to the Country and Still Stay Fair

By Therese Deschamps

FALL IS IN THE AIR. Fall is all over the place. Dry leaves are scurrying along the sid walks and in the gutters. Terrible end for pretty green leaves. So-o-o we grow reminiscent.

Dear summer—she left us with such woe-begone complexions—tanned to the nth de.. se she left us with ash in our hair—and freckles on our nose. Sweet kind summer—she left us feeling like a million dollars cold cash.

So here we are in the m.. of fall and an elegant mode. Our waists must be slender and our hips not so hippy. We are now taking exercises for that. Our skins must be fair and flawless. That is no news. Our short legs must be rounded and the ankles ter. We have heard that before. Our hands must taper to delightful mirror tipped nai.. That is all just dandes—swell—if perfect. But fall is here and if there is a nicer time than the fall in the country—I for one would like to know of it.

In a Little Tube

Where do we get from here girls? How do we get a.. ily white perfect complexion necessary for the ... season if we wish to be proud of our faces and still let our faces weather to a nice thick leather in the dear golden hills and dales?

It comes in a little tube. Before one faces the brisk breezes and the whipping gale and—one squeezes just a little bit on the tip of the fingers and puts it on the face and the neck. Then makeup as little or as much as you please but your only complexion will be protected. These delicate little tissues you have heard us rave about will be as snug as if they were all wrapped up in an elderdown quilt

Cold Blisters

Being very busybody today, we have also discovered a jar of medicated ointment that will do wonders toward turning cold blisters into nothing. It isn't expensive. In fact, it is quite the other way. But there are times in all of our lives when a cold blister is prominent to the point of wrecking our careers—and then it's no object. This ointment has the trick of making the dear little bothersome things disappear like magic

The only other thing I can offer today is a new facial tissue made of soft cotton. For you who have used paper tissues for removing your creams, because there didn't seem to be anything else—here is an answer to your problem. These tissues will cost you more than the paper variety (says she cheerfully).

Beauty Questions and Answers

Evening Makeup

Question: I have a grand and gorgeous new evening-dinner dress in the Wild Blackberry shade. With light brown hair, blue eyes and clear skin, what would you suggest for evening makeup that would become me and make me look as important as the dress?—Miss D. F., Boston

Answer: Your problem is easily solved. Use evening powder and violet eye shadow along with American Beauty rouge and Vivid lipstick. Sounds terrific but try it this week and will find yourself both lit and all.

Diet

Question: Will you please send me a diet for reducing. I am about 20 pounds overweight.—Mrs. E. B. G., Malden

Answer: Will you please consult your doctor and ask him to give you a diet. Health is more valuable than rubies and diamonds even this year—and dieting is dangerous unless it is worked scientific.

Desserts From Odds and Ends in the Pantry

By MARTHA LEE

THERE ARE MOMENTS when even the most efficient housewife opens her refrigerator door to find nothing but a few oranges, a couple of lemons or grapefruit and perhaps a can of pineapple. And this array of odments, with a dessert to make for a family who must have a "made" dessert induces a slight sinking feeling . . . especially in the case of young housewives of limited culinary experience.

But the veteran housekeeper knows that these odds and ends of fruit plus a package of quick tapioca can be turned into a choice of several delicious deserts and here they are:

Chantilly Orange Tapioca

4 tbsps. quick tapioca
¼ tsp. salt
1 1-3 cups boiling water
½ cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
Grated rind ½ orange
½ cup cream, whipped

Add tapioca and salt to water, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar, orange juice, and orange rind. Cool. Fold in whipped cream. Chill until thickened. Pile lightly in sherbet glasses. Just before serving, garnish with very fine ¼-inch shreds of orange rind, free from all white membrane. Serves six.

Celestine Lemon Tapioca

½ cup quick tapioca
½ tsp. salt
1 qt. boiling water
1 cup sugar
¼ cup lemon juice(2 lemons)
Grated rind 1 lemon
1 cup cream, whipped

Add tapioca and salt to water, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear stirring frequently. Add sugar, lemon juice, and lemon rind. Cool. Fold in whipped cream. Chill until thickened. Pile lightly in sherbet glasses. Garnish with maraschino cherries. Serves 8.

Rich New Berry Tones Prevail for Gay Ninety Revival

By Prunella Wood

IT IS REASSURING to learn that the best of the Gay Ninety style revival is to be held over for a return engagement. Most women have only just caught up on their calories and corsets long enough to feel equal to coping with the silhouette demanded by clothes with a lush Edwardian flavor. Uplift brassieres and underpinnings that control the derriers for sheathed contours have had time to get in their discipline, and it would be just too arbitrary if appropriate models were snatched away from the fashionsb.e scene

Fabrics and colors assigned to them by the stylists, seem to be more in keeping with the moulded figure than those employed a year ago when all this enthusiasm began. Benzalines, Ottomans, faille, Lyons velvet and heavy satin are all to the fore and such colors as the blue-purples of berries, the wine shades, and the moss green tones become them

Not everybody can walk right into every gown frankly borrowed from the days of 40 years ago, but there will be some model that will fit the requirements of almost any type of woman (They even had "new women," all shirted and cravated, in those days.)

So if you incline to compact, low-bridge prettiness, one that the line of your new evening gown is a dwindling pencil, something like the chiffon sketched on this page, and if you just grew and grew, up and down instead of sideways, one of those frocks that has the long line of the skirt broken by a flounce or pseudo-Spanish godets is going to be regally effective.

Costume jewelry has caught up with the styles of the moment, offering grand things in (apparently) yellow gold, seed pearls, coral and tortoise shell.

Bracelets are especially effective, worn many on a wrist, in deep cuff effect. They may be of composition in various shades, or the real, or nearly real thing, in precious gems

Daily Suggestion for Self-Improvement

Turn off your nerves as completely and satisfactorily as you do the water in the faucet. When you feel you are going to boil over and go hish—take a walk or a bath—go to an expensive place and have a good cup of nice tea—or go to the Museum of Fine Arts. There is something very soothing about the Egyptian room. Nerves wreck the digestion, the complexion and your family's disposition. They are neither pretty to see, to cultivate or to have. Again we highly recommend the quieting influence of good music, good art, or a trip around the world.

—PANDORA TELLS YOU—

DEAR PANDORA . . .

I have been more or less courting the loveliest girl in the world for a great many years, ever since we were children, to be exact. But now I am settling down to the job in earnest, and hope to get my courage up to pop the question any day now. I am quite sure that she would accept me, despite the fact that I have almost no money at all, and except for one thing that always stops me from ever getting really to the point, I think that everything is in my favor.

But there is . . . as in all things . . . an obstacle. And that—Dear Pandora—even before marriage, is my prospective mother-in-law. Yes, her mother has already got me worried . . . she is a born snooper. She pops out of corners, hides in closets, and generally appears out of nowhere . . . much to our annoyance and embarrassment. I am gradually becoming a fidgitter . . . all sudden noises make me jump.

The other evening we were bidding each other good night. For the sake of privacy, we had hidden ourselves within the portieres between the living and dining-rooms. In the midst of the solemn adiuex, we noticed a foreign body all wrapped up with us . . . It was, of course, the Ogre, and she had hidden herself there to forestall any demonstration on our part. It's always so—I'm afraid I'll never get my chance.

What should I do? My nerves are jumping. If I had a job, I'd show her a thing or two.

ACHILLES.

DEAR ACHILLES.

Practically all I can say is . . . "only the brave and the patient deserve the fair." It's been proved through hundreds of years, so it must be true. However, there are various aspects of your little problems which present a grand opportunity for dressing one of the oldest-known trials in man's relation with women. Remember that the lady whom you consider an old gargoyle and fun-spoiler is still the mother of her daughter, and is not only responsible for, but vitally interested in the welfare of her child. There is the possibility that she has been a spy from birth, but the odds are that it is a recently acquired pastime considered necessary by her. In her eagerness to start you young people off on the right foot, she, motherlike, has evidently put her own foot into things.

You have the years before you, when there will be no one to tell you just what to do . . . when you will stand on your own feet, take the credit . . . and the grief. You will eventually find that the advice of elders is a mighty valuable thing. Remember that the hopes of the young plus the experience of the old would send any young couple speeding along the road to happiness and success, both in life and in marriage. Don't be too sure of anything in your romantic situation. Patience, young man.

PANDORA.

WHERE CAN I BUY IT?
The Fashion Department spends much of its time constantly shopping for you. The merchandise discussed on this page can be purchased in Boston. For information regarding it, please telephone or write Margaret Matson, Boston Evening American.

Etiquette of 'At Home' Call

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

We have received a wedding announcement and enclosed was an "At Home" card. We have never received one of these before and we are not quite sure as to what to do about it.

The card stated that the couple would be "At Home" after Blank date. Just how soon after should we call, at what hour, and how long should we stay? We plan to call on a Sunday. Is that correct? Also, etiquette demands that we make this visit, does it not?

L.

"At Home' cards are sometimes enclosed with wedding invitations, and sometimes with wedding announcements . . . oftener with the announcements than with the invitations. Etiquette and friendliness suggest that fairly soon after date on this card, we call on the couple to pay our respects. Sunday afternoon is a very good time to make this call, some time in the late afternoon. If you know these people fairly well, you would perhaps stay for a half hour or an hour, and if you know them very well, your call would quite naturally last longer.

Left-Handed Fork

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When eating meat and British form of carrying the meat to the mouth with the left hand is used, should the prongs of the fork be held downward, I saw this in a recent picture.

N.

Engagement Ring

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have just become engaged and I am planning to be married within a few months. However, I am not getting an engagement ring and I would like to know whether or not it is proper to make an announcement in the newspapers. My family believes I should announce it, but I have always been under the impression that the announcement is made only when there is an engagement ring. If no announcement is made, how else then do friends know about it?

M

The fact that you haven't an engagement ring, or aren't to have an engagement ring, doesn't make the slightest difference. The fact that you are engaged is the only thing that counts. Do make the formal announcement in the newspaper, if you wish, and proceed with all of your engagement plans and wedding plans with complete disregard as to whether or not you have an engagement ring.

The Keyhole on the News

Precautionary

"Al, you're weakening," a close friend told Rep. Alexander Sullivan, one of East Boston's half dozen candidates for the city council. "You used to be a fellow who was always in there swinging for their jaws, but what are you now? I'll tell you. You're a one-man mutual admiration society. I've seen you on the street six times today—and every time you've been standing across from one of those campaign banners of yours gazing pop-eyed at loveliness of your name in six foot letters."

"Yeah," growled Sullivan, "and I'm gonna be standing across from 'em, here and other places, until election day. And the next bird heel that tries ripping one of 'em down is gonna find out I can still swing for jaws, and what's more I can generally hit 'em."

If Boston College doesn't dismay its this year's football rivals by uncorking a forward-pass artist en them, Coach Joe McKenney has been misinformed.

Checking up on his rookie material, Joe interviewed a rangy lad whose name, it happened, was the same as that of one of last season's outstanding prep school stars.

Joe called the new man over.

"Are you," he asked, "the same Bill Blank who played last year for St. Whatsises?"

"Naw," growled the rookie. "I never heard of that bird. But I can toss a pass 50 yards further than the best he ever did."

Politic

Dr. Ernest Albert Hooton, veteran professor of anthropology at Harvard, tells this—even tells it at tea—so it must be true.

It concerns the perils of digging, with picks and shovels, into Irish history.

Hal Movius, Harvard '02, a protege and former pupil of Prof Hooton, is excavating in Ireland now in search of relics of a couple of thousand years ago. He is finding plenty, and among the most extraordinary of them was recently an assortment of ancient pottery, unmistakably Roman in workmanship.

That discovery was big news, at least in anthropological circles, but a newspaperman friend warned Excavator Movius not to "bust" it.

"You'll be run out of the country, Hal," the journalist protested. "Don't you know, you sap, that the Irish insist that, thanks to their fighting ancestors, the Roman conquerors never got into Ireland?"

"That's easy," the tactful Mr. Movius countered, "Go ahead, my boy, and use the story—but say that probably the Irish conquered Rome and brought those pots back as souvenirs."

Placatory

Driving by auto from New York back to Boston, Rube Newman, orchestra leader and baseball addict kept the radio of his car tuned in on the day's World Series game.

It was a close finish, Rube was listening hard, and, just as the game ended, smash went Rube's front bumper into the rear of a parked sedan.

The sedan's owner, a large gentleman with big fists and a hard eye, bounced forth all set for action.

"What's the matter, guy, can't you see where you're going?" he roared. "What you have done to my fender is going to cost you ten bucks."

"Sorry," Newman apologized. "I'll fix it up. I was kind of absent minded on account of getting that World Series broadcast."

"Who won?" demanded the wrecked fender's owner, fists still doubled.

"Why—er—the Giants," stammered Newman.

"Wow," yelled the large gentleman, "it's okay about the fender, feller. I just won 50 smackers on that game."

Parenthetical

Mayoralty Candidate Daniel H. Coakley, veteran student of psychology, picks movie bills featuring wild westerns, custard pie comedies, boudoir clinches and Mickie Mouse. He hates the alleged entertainment—but learns about human nature by listening to oh's, ah's, belly laughs, and comments of his seat neighbors.

United States Marshal William J Keville, naturally of a philosophic turn of mind, likes the view from his new Federal building serie because it lets him look abroad on widespread activities of "man, the builder." U. S District Court Justice James A. Lowell, perennial target for critics, official and otherwise, likes the harbor view from his 16th floor window "because the sea, always looks so peaceful" . . . They call Capt. John H. Brennan, newly elevated Salem police official, "Baker" Brennan, because, before coming "on the cops," he used to drive a bakery wagon. He likes the nicknams . . . It wasn't cold weather that drove Al Siarsis's London-Boston orchestra boys to doff those lily-of-the-field white uniforms of theirs. It was an unconscious crack coined by the hard-boiled first officer of a yacht moored off the Cottage Park pier where the white clad Siarsis boys were preparing to play.

"Hey, you stewards," he roared from the darkness. "Bust up that old maid's sewing circle and come on board and get to work."

PROBE OF NAZI DRIVE IN U. S. IS ORDERED

New York, Oct. 10 (INS)—Asserting the Nazi government of Germany is seeking to find root in the United States, Rep. Samuel Dickstein (D) of New York, chairman of the House immigration committee, today affirmed his order for his committee to begin an investigation next week of Nazi propaganda here.

Dickstein said:

"Information has reached me that the Nazi maintain a propaganda bureau heavily financed by the German government with the ultimate object of overthrowing our government and installing in its place a dictatorship on the Nazi model and with racial and religious hatred."

Dickstein said he was informed that about 200 persons have recently entered the United States as employes or servants of German consulates.

"The number," he said, "is ridiculously large for the ordinary conduct of affairs by legitimate consular offices."

One witness at the hearing will be Bernard Ridder, publisher of the New York Staat-Zeitung, who tells of a recent visit by Heinz Spanknoebel, who presented credentials from the German government as leader in establishing pro-Nazi organizations in the United States.

Spanknoebel, the publisher said, told him he must print fewer pro-semitic stories and be more favorable to the Hitler regime "if he expected any consideration when he visited Germany again."

Ridder said he ordered Spanknoebel from his offices.

Dickstein's Charges Ridiculed in Berlin

Berlin, Oct. 10 (INS)—Charges by Representative Samuel Dickstein of New York that the Nazi German government has "reached into America" to overthrow the United States government, were branded "ridiculous" today by a government spokesman, who said the paramount principle of the Nazi party is to refrain from mixing in the internal affairs of other nations.

Bandits in Overalls Rob Bank of $65,000

Warren, O., Oct. 10 (INS)—Three machine gun bandits held up two bank messengers on the sidewalk in front of the Second National Bank and escaped with a satchel containing between $65,000 and $68,000.

The bandits, all dressed in overalls, made their getaway in a sedan automobile toward Cleveland.

Reopened Banks to Leave Little 'Frozen'

Washington, Oct. 10 (INS)—Only one and one half per cent of the deposits of National Banks will be "frozen" after institutions reorganization plans of which have been approved, reopen for business, Comptroller of Currency J F. T O'Connor made known today.

He declared banks were being opened as rapidly as possible. He explained delay has occurred because of the necessity of making certain that banks are able to remain in business.

Reading National Bank Reopens

The First National Bank of Reading reopened yesterday after being closed since the bank holiday was declared on March 4. Deposits exceeded withdrawals on the first day, bank officials declared. Edward F. Parker is president of the bank.

Judge Tells When One Is Drunk

The "noble experiment"—prohibition — was a problem which was one of the Pilgrims' greatest worries 300 years ago, Judge Albert F Hayden told a jury in Salem superior court yesterday while he was defining "drunkenness" in a drunken driving case.

"The army's courtmartial definition of drunkenness is sensible," Judge Hayden said. "Under the army interpretation a man is considered drunk if he cannot carry on the occupation in which he is engaged at the time."

The jury found Raymond Hazel 29, a Marblehead chauffeur, not guilty of drunkenness, but guilty of operating while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $100.

MAYOR WATCHES FIRE FIGHT

Careless use of cigarettes was said by fire officials today to have caused the blaze which started in the basement of a five story building in Tremont st last night tangling traffic in the theatrical district.

Mayor Curley and his daughter, Mary, who had been attending a theater opposite the burning building, emerged in time to witness the firemen fight the blaze. Hundreds of home-going theater patrons also gathered at the scene and in short time traffic was stopped.

The blaze, according to fire officials, started in a bale of papers in the basement, smouldered for some time and finally filled the building with smoke. Damage was estimated at $500.

ICKES' LETTER IRES ELY

Contracts for public works in Massachusetts are being signed and work undertaken "as fast as it is humanly possible to do so in conformity with our statutes," Gov Ely replied today to a query by Harold L. Ickes, Federal emergency administrator of public works.

Gov. Ely's reply is contained in a letter which he dispatched today to Washington. The governor declared that it was difficult to understand the intent of Ickes' letter which he received last Saturday.

Ickes demanded to know why only $1,729,000 of contracts had been approved in Massachusetts although an allotment of $6,307,105 has been made for this state.

Economic Education Planned by NRA

Washington, Oct. 10 — Creation of a bureau of economic education in the NRA consumers' advisory board was announced late today by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

County consumers' council with headquarters in county seats composed of urban recovery committees and rural consumers councils will be set up.

Spine Fractured in Trying to Hang Self

In a hospital cot at the Boston City Hospital, George Murphy, 32, of Washington st., Roslindale, is confined today after he attempted suicide in a cell at the Dedham police station. His spine was fractured when he attempted to hang himself by tying one sleeve of his sweater around his neck. He had been arrested for drunkenness.

Wagner Urges Labor to 'Arbitrate First'

Washington, Oct. 10 — Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, appealed to the American Federation of Labor convention to arbitrate first and use strikes "only as the very last resort."

"The strike is never more than a protest," he said. "It has no constructive force. It creates hundreds of new problems but can not solve a single one. Dispute should be taken to the various agencies which the government has set up."

Brighton Woman Cited in $600,000 Will Contest

Geneva, Ill. Oct. 10—A jury has been selected to decide whether Mrs. Fannie Bishop Henderson, of Aurora, Ill., was competent to draw a will directing the establishment of an old peoples' home with her $600,000 estate before her death in 1931.

The action was brought by Charles F Earle, a cousin of the woman, who contended she was not competent and that William George, former Aurora banker, named executor of the will, used undue influence.

Earle is seeking to have the estate divided between him and other relatives. Those who would benefit are Mrs Nellie B. King, Mrs Ann M. Fotheringham of Brighton, Mass., Mrs Agnes E. Davidson of Drayton, Ont., and the children of Martha Jewel of Northumberland County, Ont.

A Quicker Way To Ease Headaches

HERE I AM... A BIG DINNER PARTY ON HAND... AND ANOTHER OF MY BAD HEADACHES. WHAT CAN I DO?
EVER TRY BAYER ASPIRIN? TAKE 2 TABLETS AND YOUR HEADACHE WILL BE GONE IN A JIFFY!
2 BEFORE THE DINNER
THAT BAYER ASPIRIN YOU SUGGESTED IS SIMPLY WONDERFUL! MY HEADACHE WAS ENTIRELY GONE IN A FEW MINUTES—
I KNEW IT WOULD BE... BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST!

A Discovery that's Bringing Fast Relief to Millions

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia . . . the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST
Drop a Bayer Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate.
What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

Tell me something..

what makes a cigarette taste better

WHAT makes anything taste better? It's what is in it that makes a thing taste better.

CHESTERFIELDS taste better because we buy ripe tobaccos. These ripe tobaccos are aged two and a half years—thirty months. During this time the tobaccos improve—just like wine improves by ageing.

CHESTERFIELDS taste better because they have the right kind of home-grown tobaccos and Turkish Tobaccos "welded together."

BROOKLINE DEMANDS POLICE RADIO SYSTEM

This Is Life

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

IN ONE of our esteemed Sunday contemporaries I read a very amusing article about one William Daly, famous musical director of big shows, who has been in town helping to get "Let 'Em Eat Cake" ready. In the midst of a paragraph about his career after leaving Harvard, over a score of years ago, I suddenly came on an incongruous item. He had been on the editorial staff of the old Everybody's Magazine in its muckraking days.

And memory stirred in me.

Unless I am all wrong, Bill Daly wrote the music for one of the most amusing amateur shows I ever saw. It was in the spring of 1913, and the occasion was the annual frolic of the Dutch Treat Club, that brilliant organization of the most successful writers, editors and artists of the New York magazine and literary world.

I remember it so well because my roommate at the time was the other half of the producing team, the librettist of the show. He and Bill Daly, young Harvard graduates, working respectively on The American Magazine and Everybody's, planned the most hilarious razz on the entire new magazine field it is possible to imagine. That was 20 years ago. Now Daly is a big figure in the musical life of the amusement world. The other was Jack Reed, whose body rests in the Kremlin near the tomb of Lenin, and whose memory is becoming legendary in Moscow.

Reed was one of the best reporters of his day. He covered the Colorado mine strike, the Villa revolution in Mexico, the opening of the World War, the Balkan front, and, finally, the early years of the Russian Revolution. But to Russia he went on his own hook, as an ardent apprentice of Communism. The United States was closed to him. He died of typhoid when barely 30. He left behind him one book of first-rate historical importance, "Ten Days That Shook the World," his eye-witness account of the revolution of 1917. His class and college disowned him; his memory is perpetuated by John Reed clubs of revolutionist writers and artists in several cities.

But in 1913 he was not a Communist. He was a Lincoln Steffens liberal. He was a facile poet, too with an enormous sense of the comic. His lyrics for his operetta were rollicking, irreverent and caustic. It was a gorgeous evening. James Montgomery Flagg did his impersonation of George Bernard Shaw, and Charles Hanson Towne of these newspapers, his of Mrs. Fiske Irvin Cobb was to appear in pink tights as the magazine "Puck," the familiar naked cherub that used to adorn the masthead. But he could not, as I remember, and Will Irwin took his place.

Towne, as an old maid in hoopskirt and curls, represented the sacred trio of "quality" magazines Harpers, Century and Scribners. (This was before they went modern.) One of Flagg's most beautiful models sang "Cosmopolitan Mag" in riotous ragtime, and Charles G. Norris, Kathleen's husband, representing the advertising managers, tyranized in basso profundo over his harem of cowering beauties. And there was one naughty number about the "kept" magazines, those sheets that do not pay their own way but have to be supported by their own publishers' women's publications.

I wish I could give you some idea of Bill Daly's music in that show. It was full of comic invention and great versatility ranging from a kind of Handel oratorio chorus to the Berlinese ragtime of the day. But I can't do it. I can only remember a lyric or two, in the hope that you may hear the music. There was the grand chorus, for instance:

"When God the earth created and saw that it was good,
He had a perfect right to be elated
He did the best He could;
And not to mock Jehovah, He wisely used his means,
But it had to be entirely done over
By all us magazines!"

And Towne, as the culture magazines, sang:

Of refinement I'm a symbol on your literary table,
All of culture in a thimble by the new Atlantic cable,
And though Congress does not need me,
And the public does not read me,
I'm convinced that people need me,
From the Hudson to the coast,
Now when Trollope kicked the bucket,
And when Dickens was no more,
I had half a mind to chuck it
Till I found the Civil War . . .
Aristocratic, rather! Exclusiveness my boast,
In fact, I am the entree, the salad and the roast!

And there were many others just as clever. Many of the magazines burlesqued have now gone the way of all magazines, and the muckraking days are almost forgotten. I do not know what would have become of Jack Reed, had he lived. He was as unpredictable as Byron, a Byron with a sense of fun. But I can't help wishing that Daly had gone on composing. Had he wished, he could have ranked with Gershwin Berlin and Kern.

BEDFORD PROBE OF PROFITEERS STARTED BY U.S.

Canteen Operator Accused of Price-Gouging on 777 Veterans

Profiteering at the official canteen of the U. S. Veterans' Hospital, Bedford, at the expense of 777 disabled ex-service men, mostly mental patients, was charged today by the hospital medical director, Dr. Winthrop Adams, who has caused a government investigation of alleged irregularities.

Dr. Adams revealed that he has asked Washington to cancel the contract under which Newman Rothenberg of Brookline, himself a veteran, conducted the canteen for the last three years, and that a board of inquiry will arrive here tomorrow to hear evidence.

The canteen has not been open for two days and Rothenberg is said to be in Brookline. The hospital inmates long ago became incensed at the canteen proprietor, Dr. Adams said.

25 TO 30 PER CENT

Rothenberg obtained the canteen concession three years ago under a contract whereby he agreed to make a gross profit of not more than 10 per cent on every article sold. The contract does not expire until June 30.

Dr. Adams said that following a partial audit by A. J. Dalton of the Veterans Bureau in Washington, it was estimated that Rothenberg was making a profit of from 25 to 30 per cent. An audit of the last quarter will be started tomorrow and will extend back three years if it appeared to be warranted.

Dr. Adams said he knew of one case where a particular type of toothpaste for which Rothenberg bought for 26 cents was sold to the veterans for 45 cents. The price in retail stores is from 40 to 43 cents, he said.

$200 ON CIGARETTES

The medical head said he estimated the canteen proprietor paid $1.01 a carton for standard brands of cigarettes. They were sold, he said, at 13 cents a package or two for 25, and with a sale of approximately 800 cartons monthly netted a profit of $200, about $120 higher than called for under the contract.

An order of ice cream sold for 10 cents at the canteen cost about six cents, the doctor said, and some other prices were up in the same ratio.

"Just how much money is involved we will not be able to determine until another audit," Dr. Adams stated.

Besides the inmates, about 150 doctors, nurses and attendants patronized the canteen. None of the inmates and no members of the hospital's official personnel were involved in the canteen business, according to the director.

COURT PRAISES UNCLE'S OFFER OF EDUCATION

Says Kingsbury Girls Lucky to Have Such Relative

Earl W. Kingsbury of Woburn, has 10 days in which to file an amendment to his bill in equity against Edmund R Davis, of Lincoln, whose demurrer against the original bill has been sustained in Middlesex Superior Court, by Judge A. E. Pinanski.

Kingsbury's original bill sought to have Davis enjoined from doing anything calculated to alienate the affections of the former's two daughters, Barbara, 15, and Olive, 13. Davis is the uncle of the two girls.

REMOVAL SOUGHT

Davis filed a demurrer to the bill in equity, claiming the father had not set forth in his bill such causes as entitle him to any relief in equity, and this contention was sustained by Judge Pinanski in Middlesex court yesterday.

Kingsbury filed his bill after Davis had brought a petition in Middlesex Probate Court seeking the removal of Kingsbury as the legal guardian of the two girls.

The father's bill alleged that Davis induced him to allow enrollment of the girls as students at Northfield Seminary, the uncle agreeing to assume the expenses. He charged that since the school term ended in 1933 Davis has tried to induce the girls to appear in court and request the removal of their father and the submission of their uncle as guardian.

PRAISES UNCLE'S OFFER

Judge Pinanski, in sustaining Davis' demurrer yesterday, said:

"You can't find fault with a father who wants the love and affection of his own children, but, in and of itself, there is nothing wrong in the uncle of these children seeking or desiring to provide them with an education which their own father cannot give them. On the contrary, they are fortunate girls to have such an uncle."

"In my opinion, the bill does not state a case in which there is any occasion for an equity court to act. Therefore, the demurrer is sustained."

TOWN ACTS TO WAGE BATTLE ON CRIME

Selectman Blasts Department Following Bank Robbery

The order of Selectman Philip G. Bowker, of Brookline, to modernize that town's police department to cope with organized crime has been referred to the selectmen's committee on police and Chief H Allen Rutherford.

Bowker's blasting indictment of present conditions in the police department, which made possible the recent robbery of the Brookline Trust Company, shared the spotlight at yesterday's meeting with the decision of the selectmen to accept the decision of the governor's committee on highway safety regarding installation of traffic lights to replace the famous "barber pole" safety island.

Bowker declared he was glad the $15,000 bank robbery had occurred because it opened the eyes of the public to the fact we are asleep at the switch." He then went on to explain the inadequacy of the police department to cope with present crime conditions.

WANTS POLICE RADIO

"To delay any longer the installation of a short wave police radio and bank telegraph system in Brookline is to directly assist the criminal," he declared.

"For years Brookline has enjoyed the distinction of having a fire department second to none. It should have a police department of the same calibre. The least we can do is to give our police the means of finding out what is going on in the community.

"If my opinion, use should be made of the latest scientific means for crime prevention. Radio, of course, must be foremost as an effective method of stopping the modern, highpowered criminal. It has proven itself indispensable to New York and other progressive cities.

BOSTON SHORT-SIGHTED

"Just because Boston is too short-sighted to make use of it is no reason why Brookline should stick to the methods of the Dark Ages in police work."

Bowker then introduced his order that Brookline police be equipped immediately with a short-wave radio system and three additional cruising cars and that the town's banks and their branches be connected by telegraph direct with police headquarters for an alarm signal system.

Coolidge Hill residents also scored a victory after a long fight when the selectmen agreed to install traffic lights and make other improvements at Beacon st. and Summit ave.

Traffic lights along Beacon st. with a push button device, whereby pedestrians can control the flow of traffic to cross the street in safety will be installed.

A large tree on the northeast corner of the intersection will be removed to assure clear vision.

HARVARD ASS'N ELECTS ADAMS

Former Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Harvard '58, and resident of Concord, has been elected president of Harvard Alumni Assn., it was announced today.

He succeeds Federal Judge James M. Morton, Jr., class of 1891. Harvard alumni number 61,000.

The officers of the association are Samuel A Welldon, 04, vicepresident of the First National Bank of New York and Dr. Eugene H. Pool, '95, professors of clinical surgery at the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia.

Ex-Secy. Adams

Henry C. Clark, '11, of Prides Crossing, was reelected general secretary and treasurer. He is treasurer of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin and executive secretary of the Harvard Endowment.

The committee to nominate overseers, directors of the alumni association and members of the Harvard Fund Council is headed by Dr. Channing Frothingham '02, of Boston.

Kiosk Back on Public Duty on Common

The Ananias of Boston Common the weather kiosk on the Tremont st. mall—is open for business again today, after two years of idleness.

Maurice Gilbert, 34, unemployed draughtsman, amateur weather prophet and sole owner of the kiosk, has convinced park department officials that the weather service should be given the public.

He rose to the defense of his weather bureau, and easily explained the marked difference in its thermometer readings and those issued by the official weather bureau.

"My thermometer gives the temperature on the street. The weather bureau temperatures are taken from a high building," he explained proudly.

SUSPECT HELD IN ASSAULT

While Mrs. Catherine Yarovow 42, of Yeoman st., Roxbury, lies in a critical condition today at the City Hospital, police of the Dudley st. station grilled John Makrewitz 43, of Pelham st., South End, who is suspected of assaulting her with a lead pipe wrapped in newspaper.

Makrewitz was arrested on suspicion by Sergt. Edward Lawless, of the Dudley st. station, who apprehended him after a chase of several hundred yards.

According to police, Mrs. Yarovow was beaten over the head in the vestibule of a Yeoman st. house where she went to visit a woman friend. Makrewitz denied any knowledge of the assault.

11 PLEDGED TO PSYCHOLOGY

Eleven seniors will be initiated into membership in the Psychology Club at Boston University's College of Practical Arts and Letters tonight at a supper meeting to be held in the sorority rooms of the college. Ethna J. Silvery of Dorchester, and Anne M Gallagher of Lowell, will be in charge of the initiation ceremonies.

Madge E. Barrett of Keene, N. H., and Carolyn E C. Chapman of Marblehead, comprise the committee in charge of the supper.

The new members are: Margaret R. Donovan, Millburn; Patricia A. Devine, Swampscott; Esther Blackburn, Boston; Marion Sealey, Boston; Lillian M. Ryan, Somerville; Gertrude C. O'Donnell, Worcester; Theresa Keller, Springfield, Marjoria M. Stewart, Dedham, Rose M. Barlow, Sherburne Falls, Frances Atkins, Boston, and Marion J. Blakeslee, Roslindale.

NEW GANGSTER LAW SOUGHT

Possibility that Boston police will ask for a new Massachusetts vagrancy law that will permit the jailing of gangsters and habitual offenders although evidence of actual crime is lacking, was seen today in an announcement by Leo Schwartz, legal adviser to Commissioner Hultman.

Schwartz said he planned to call Hultman's attention to the illinoi vagrant law under which gangsters are being jailed.

Deputy Police Supt. W. W. Livingstown, to whose office of inspector of divisions two lieutenants and two sergeants were assigned last night, declared he is organizing a "strong arm squad" similar to his flying squadron of other days. The new men are merely to assist him in policing the divisions, he said.

BANK HELD FOR ITS OFFICERS

Banks are responsible for the speculations of their officers from the estates of which they have charge and from which the banks benefit, it was ruled yesterday in a decision handed down by the full bench of the State Supreme court.

The decision was made in the case of William D. Chapple, as administrator of the estate of the late Annie G Spinney, of Salem, against the Merchants National bank of Boston.

Ralph A. Bunchard, now an inmate at the Norfolk prison colony, was assistant cashier at the bank and an executor of the estate. He took securities from the estate and sold them to make up thefts from other accounts. Under the Supreme court decision the bank must repay a total of $178,076, to the Spinney estate.

PUNCH IN FACE ROUTS GUNMAN

Thomas McManus, 28, of Linden Park st. Roxbury, owes his life to a jammed bandit gun and his strong right hand.

McManus, proprietor of a battery station, at 100 Roxbury st., Roxbury, defied the pistols of two bandits who walked into his shop last night and punched one of the gunmen in the face. The bandits fled under his onslaught.

In their flight one of the men pulled the trigger of the gun, but the cartridge failed to explode. Before McManus became indignant he had handed the bandits $27.

BOARDS REVIEW VETS CASES

Four boards composed of five men each are reviewing the thousands of cases of New England war veterans whose disabilities are presumed to result from war service, it was announced today at the veterans' administration board. The reviews are expected to be completed by Oct. 31. On that date, under President Roosevelt's orders, disability allowances will cease unless the boards find in favor of the veteran.

Beer in September Pays State $60,000

The thirst of Massachusetts beer drinkers swelled the coffers of the state some $60000 during September, it was announced today, by Henry F. Long, tax commissioner. Beer drinkers consumed 1,868,754 gallons of beer last month, bringing the total number of gallons consumed since April 7, up to 10,640,471 gallons. The beer drinking has brought a total of $343,241.10 in taxes to the state treasury.

ICKES LAUDS CONTINENTAL ROAD PLAN

Baltimore, Oct. 10 (U8)—Secretary of the Interior Ickes, addressing a joint-meeting of the American Civic Association and the national conference on city planning here, predicted construction of a transcontinental super highway. He declared that the national planning board of the PWA, should lose no time in studying the problem.

Ickes said.

CERTAIN IN FUTURE

"There has been urged upon us for serious consideration from many quarters the building of at least one super highway all the way across the country from which branch roads at appropriate points could diverge.

"That at least such a transcontinental arterial highway will be built in the future there can be no doubt, thus presenting a problem that the national planning board should lose no time in studying."

The national planning board appointed by Ickes under the Recovery Act is composed of Frederic A. Delano, President Roosevelt's uncle; Prof. Wesley C. Mitchell, of Columbia University, and Prof. Charles E. Merriam, of the University of Chicago, with Charles W. Eliot, 2d, as executive officer. The conference was told, Ickes made a plan for sound city planning as a necessity.

Ickes, describing some of the results of lack of city planning in the past said

GRAB AT STREETS

"Corporations grabbed our streets. Factories and business blocks sheltered their way into our boulevards. Gaudy and exclamatory advertisements marred or obliterated our choice scenery. And few seemed to care.

"The meandering cow, footing her contemplative way across the luscious pasture to quench her thirst in a nearby stream, little realised that she was laying out streets for the expanding city of Boston. Subsequent to the cow, the famous ruts were called in as city planning consultants to help him get many of our cities. The most notorious member of this famous family of city planners, was of course, Topsy, and so widespread and potent was her influence that the topsy-turvy type of city planning is still evident in practically every American community."

By PEGGY DOYLE

I am about to tell you something which is a little bit complicated in the simplest way I know. And I am so elated to find that I know what I'm talking about on a matter of the most vital interest that I will greatly appreciate all the attention you can muster. I'm pretty sure it's worth it, for it is a narrative which draws a line between health and illness and may even be a matter of life and death.

The thing that I am talking about (and in that regard I have nothing on several millions of American women) is the Hay diet, which in the simplest terms I can put it is somewhat complicated for the beginner. My effort here is to make the complications, protect your health and happiness and keep you as a well and energetic specie of the Boston Evening American.

THEORY OF HAY DIET

The conclusions of the Hay diet are really very easy to fathom. Briefly, health is nothing more than reserve energy. If you have it you can fight any cold and other threat. But if you haven't it, the possible route is from cold, to grippe, to pneumonia, to Evergreen.

Do you know what acidity is? Acidity, in its final form, is death. The thing that provides you with good health, when properly used, is food, above everything else. Improper eating, more than any one thing, inclines your course toward death. Be patient, now, I didn't believe this 10 days ago, and I am absolutely sold on it now.

Food in general is divided into two classes—starches and proteins. There is no complication about these foods. They are entirely different and readily identified. The contention of Dr William Howard Hay, M. D., is that 90 per cent of the ills of humans is due to the mingling of these two types of food in any meal.

They are entirely incompatible, and the stomach, immediately adjusting itself to the digestion of one type of food, upon the receipt of it is thrown into literal chaos if the alternate type of food is eaten at the same time. In fact, the well known jest about a chameleon exploding when placed upon a plaid is duplicated here by the reaction of the human stomach, a chemical combustion takes place.

REWARD IS GREAT

As is true of nearly everything involving care in connection with human reactions there is a grand and widely heralded reward for strict adherence to the Hay diet. You not only remain well, or become well, but the complete regulation of your weight becomes the simplest of matters. And without any starving. This, of course, is what has set a continent buzzing. Millions of people who cannot be interested in their own health are just mad about their beauty and whimsical grace. Whoops!

It is only necessary to normalize the daily intake of food so as to restore to the body what is expended daily in the form of body structure or fuel. Combine this care with fresh air, normal exercise and sunshine and you will have the assurance of excellent health and perfectly normal weight.

When we eat natural foods in their natural form, we are not troubled with acid formation as Nature balances these foods very nicely for our digestive ability. But when we introduce concentrated starches and concentrated proteins we are at once predisposing ourselves to excessive acid-formation. All these are all acid-forming foods. When we eat these dissimilar foods at one meal, we make it doubly dangerous because it is impossible to even digest them completely.

Now, although I have given the reader my word that I will not get technical there is something to be said of the utmost importance which happens to be both technical and interesting.

Here it is. Saliva is needed for the first step in starchy digestion, and its necessary action is due to a little ferment called ptyalin. If you introduce protein foods this ferment is made absolutely negative, so when you eat starchy bread or baked potato together with an acid fruit you have taken away the necessary alkaline condition on which this ferment depends. Consequently, it will not digest, and the starch goes into the stomach as a heavy, undigested load and lies undigested. It makes for both fat and discomfort.

STOMACH REVOLTS

Now the protein foods, such as meat, eggs, fish or cheese, depend on the action of the pepsin of the gastric juice for their first step in digestion. As pepsin will act in nothing less than a positive acidity and will be destroyed if you have eaten largely of starchy foods at the same meal, for the starches require alkaline conditions and the proteins require acid conditions. Your stomach CANNOT be both things at the same time, no more than a room can be at the same time both light and dark. When we try it, we depart from health, yet usually we do it two or three times a week with no knowledge of the results or the cause of detected uneasiness.

Right here, if you have followed me through the clinic, it is possible that you are saying, "All right, I'll say Uncle, but tell me what to eat." Well, I've devoted all the space I have loose today to even fewer and readily listed, so I'll put off to tomorrow what I can't do today. I'll give you tomorrow a complete dietary list as quickly as I can prepare it, for quick perusal That's a promise

Mrs. Edith M. Dubois, Braintree woman murdered by her husband in August, 1932, left an estate valued at $8167, it was revealed yesterday, according to an inventory filed at the Norfolk County Probate Court, by Atty. Ralph W. Prout, of Quincy.

The estate comprises $1917.76 in cash, a house in Middle st., Braintree, valued at $6000, and another house and land in which she held an equity of $250.

Mrs. Dubois' death was a mystery for several weeks. Her husband, Charles Dubois, was arrested for murder, but was released when the state failed to produce the body. Dubois committed suicide by hanging himself. Later, the same day, his wife's body was found in a cement crypt under a garage.

CHAIN BALLAST DELAYS BYRD

Loading of 500 tons of heavy chain ballast will delay the sailing of the Byrd Antarctic expedition ship, Jacob Ruppert, another day it was announced today by Admiral Byrd.

The chain ballast will be loaded around fuel tanks. Word was received from Washington late yesterday authorizing use of the old chain at the Navy Yard as ballast.

Admiral Byrd said last night he hoped to get the Ruppert under way by 10 a.m. tomorrow. The time, however, is tentative and may be changed again, he stated.

Love Short Lived, Says Divorce Bill

CARAMEL BREAD PUDDING

1¼ cups soft crumbs
¼ cup sugar
2 cups milk
2 eggs
½ tspn. salt
2 tbspn. melted butter
1 tsp. vanilla, or
½ tspn. nutmeg

Caramelized sugar by sturring a frying pan over moderate heat, until melted and a light brown color. Add the milk and add to the caramelized sugar stirring until dissolved. Beat the eggs slightly and add the salt and pour into the crumbs, add the melted butter and flavoring. Pour into greased baking dish and set in pan of hot water in a 350 F. oven, for one hour or until the knife comes out clean. Serve with cream or your favorite pudding sauce

CELERY RELISH

1 qt. celery, coarsely chopped
2 large red peppers
2 large green peppers
1 tsp. salt
2 cups vinegar
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. mustard

The large coarse stalks of celery may be used for celery relish. Chop celery and onions and peppers (seeds removed) fine. Add salt and pour boiling water to each quart of mixed vegetables. Drain and cook 5 minutes in the vinegar, sugar and mustard. Pack the chopped peppers, from which the seeds have been removed. Add all the other ingredients and cook the mixture until the vegetables are tender. Seal in hot, sterilized jars.

ENGLISH BUNS

1 cake yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 qt. sifted flour
1 egg
¼ cup butter
1 tbspn. sugar
½ tsp. salt
1 tbspn. chopped almonds

Sift the flour and salt into a bowl and make a well in the center. Mix the eggs unbeaten and the butter and milk in which the yeast cake has been dissolved. Mix thoroughly with a mixing spoon and add to a warm place to rise. This will be free from drafts, for 1½ hours. When light turn out on a floured kneading board, sprinkle with the sugar and chopped almonds, and work them into the dough thoroughly by drawing the tips of the fingers lightly and quickly through the dough, but do not knead. Drop by tablespoonfuls, half an inch apart on greased baking pans, let rise for ten minutes and bake for 20 minutes in a hot oven. Makes two dozen buns.

NERVOUS WOMEN
Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I am so nervous it seems as though I should die. Every little thing gets on my nerves." . . . "I wish I were dead." . . . how often have we heard these expressions from some women who has become so tired and run-down that her nerves can no longer stand the strain.

No woman should allow herself to drift into this condition if she can help herself. She could give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. For nearly sixty years women have taken this wonderful tonic to give them renewed strength and vigor.

98 out of every 100 women who report to us say that they are benefited by this medicine. Buy a bottle today and see what it will do for you.

MARIE DRESSLER, WJZ GUEST TONIGHT

Beloved Screen Star Feted on Air

By N. F. T.

Those who can catch hold of the WJZ signal originating in New York tonight, will find a testimonial dinner to Marie Dressler being aired between 9:30 and 10 o'clock. Social leaders and theatrical magnates are joining in tribuet to the gifted, versatile actress, with festivities being staged at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Commercial commitments hereabouts make it so that the gala proceedings and voices of prominent people attending shall not have a place on the Boston broadcasting schedule. Mrs. Oliver H. Harriman is chairman of the dinner, Gerald Campbell, British consul-general, is heading the list of noted speakers. Others who will address the air audience include Daniel Frohman, John Golden, Will Hays, Polo Negri, Barbara Stanwyck, Irene Dunne, Jack Pearl and, of course, Marie Dressler herself

SECOND SHOWING

Frank and Julia, those two popular personalities now staging their Coast-to-coast "Hit" hour (WJZ) from Boston in person each week on Tuesday nights, are anticipating another capacity crowd on hand this evening. At the first of these visible presentations last week, the Hotel Statler auditorium was filled to the last seat by mail reservation. Those not attending tonight's program, should address "Julia and Frank," cars of Box "1947-W" for seats to witness it all next Tuesday. Many sighted folks are enclosing cigar bands from the brand of cheroot exploited by the Comedy-Drama-Song-son combination. By so doing they seem to obtain better places to sit.

Fabien Sevitzky and his orchestra play the overture to Victor Flotow's opera "Martha" tonight (WNAC) at 10 o'clock, opening the second in the weekly series which likewise stars Professor Robert Rogers in spirited colloquial comment on current topics of interest.

LOCAL LATHER

Gay spirit and a top-notch offering held sway last night (WBZ) to mark the initial "beer garden" broadcast featuring Sammy Ehlans' music men and a score or more of vocalists who made the 9:30 to 10 o'clock time positively fly. . . Sunday night found Joe Rines contributing "shine" as an orchestra selection from the stage show "Let 'Em Eat Cake," and stating it was the first time said piece had ever been wafted by wireless. Joe probably didn't know or even hear about the Big NBC hookup from the Shubert Theater stage a week ago Monday night. Billy Gaxton and Lois Moran, stars of the sparkling satire, sang it together to the accompaniment of the full pit orchestra of Frank Cambria. Other broadcasting attraction head at Yankee network echo emporiums, now away from Hub air activity—home in bed with a severe cold.

QUINCY BRIDGE WORK STARTS

Ground was broken today for the temporary Fore River bridge which be built at a cost of $90,000, about 100 yards upstream from the old span, which eventually is to be replaced.

Governor's Councillor Joseph L. Grossman turned the first spadeful of earth in the presence of contractors.

The temporary bridge will be completed about January 15. Traffics over the old bridge between Quincy and Weymouth will continue until late December, when its draw will be moved to the new site.

ANNOUNCEMENT

TO EVERYONE

DESIRING TICKETS TO SEE THE BLACKSTONE CIGAR

RADIO BROADCASTS

IN BOSTON

The extraordinary demand for tickets following recent announcements in the newspapers of a special Boston series of Blackstone Cigar radio broadcasts open to the public, has made it necessary, beginning immediately, to change our method of distributing tickets.

We believed that our large auditorium, seating almost three thousand people, would prove adequate to accommodate all those desiring free tickets to see these broadcasts.

However, it is evident that an immediate restriction is necessary in order that we may accommodate all those sincerely anxious to attend.

Therefore, it is necessary to request a Blackstone Cigar band (or a facsimile of one) for each ticket. Understand this arrangement, we hope to avoid disappointing our many friends.

HOW TO GET YOUR TICKETS

Send your two Blackstone Cigar bands at once. Tickets are limited to two for each applicant. Requests for specific dates of broadcasts cannot be honored. Mail your request to Waitt & Bond, Inc., P. O. Box 1947 W, Boston.

Over 10,000 Women Thronged the Seventh Annual American-Advertiser Cooking School

Here is positive evidence of the responsive market offered by the 671,192 families who read the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

This home-representative, cross-section of the American-Advertiser market, attending the four days' sessions of the Cooking School, is truly typical of the sales potentialities present in the entire number of families reached by these two papers dominant in the evening and Sunday fields.

With the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser, advertisers can cover MORE families in America's 4th largest market than with any other Boston evening or Sunday newspapers.

Any manufacturer or retailer of the following products:

Groceries . . . Meats and Meat Products . . . Fish Products . . . Canned Goods . . . Soaps and Soap Powders . . . Household Cleaners . . . Electrical Devices . . . Oil Burners . . . Ranges . . . Gas Appliances . . . Refrigerators . . . Cooking Utensils . . . Vacuum Cleaners . . . Furniture . . . Floor Coverings . . . Curtains and Drapes . . . Linens . . . Bedding . . . Housewares needs the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser to cover the Boston market

The Boston Evening American is the ONLY Boston evening newspaper covering 42.2% of the evening field

The Boston Sunday Advertiser is the ONLY Boston Sunday newspaper covering 36.6% of the Sunday field.

The Boston American and Sunday Advertiser are the ONLY Boston papers conducting a year 'round Cooking School (now in its eighth year) in addition to this annual school.

And they are the ONLY Boston newspapers which can give valuable co-operation in promoting home-used products in an ESTABLISHED Cooking School the year 'round.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" OPENS Starring Otis Skinner ❖ ❖ ALL-TAR "DINNER AT EIGHT" Has Premiere at Majestic

Fine Acting Features Revival of Famous Old Play at Colonial

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Finding elbow-room is a Rialto-crowded with youngsters, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" made a way for its venerable self last night into a comfortable space of its own. It will hold that place for a week at the Colonial Theater and with warrant. For this is a lusty, although reverent, revival of a play that sped a civil war.

It shakes off the impost of being dated through able showmanship and in first, essential, good casting. If "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was going to get in this decade a revival one is thankful that The Players Club chose the venture as its tenth annual digging into the trunk. In better hands, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" might have proved too much of a threnody for this irreverent era of theater-going.

When you will see at the Colonial Theater are simple and old characters immortalized by the enthusiasm and love of your forefathers. Eva sways the hoop hounds over the ice Uncle Tom and Topsy are send down the river Little Eva dies and goes to Heaven and re-appears a shining radiance as a horn-winged angel as Old Uncle Tom breathes his last.

There's a thrill in all this believe me, although a good deal taken might be the simple argument that you're seen it all before. Perhaps. But this is Otis Skinner's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with Miss Queenie Smith and other splendid actors seldom always

Star's Uncle Tom Memorable

His big scenes are great and his smallest his best. With compliments of camera hogs coming out of Hollywood with scene-stealing lesser lights among his younger brethren of the stage, Mr. Skinner proves the masters of his craft in one particular spot in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" when he waits, one of a group for his mounting of the auction block.

Miss Smith makes the waif Topsy a character so believable one forgets the play is 81 years old. She is superb. One of the best young dancers of the stage, this talented actress restrains herself from dancing like Queenie Smith—and what a temptation in several places where any old Queenie Smith routine would bring down the house—and remains Topsy. Once, she broke into a short three yards of "Off to Buffalo." But you felt she was authentic. Rock dancers must have had some way to get off stage, even before the Civil War

Brandon Evans as Legree

Elisabeth Risdon as Eva and later Cissie Loftus as Topsy, Brandon Evans has never been better as Simon Legree. A strange audience response took place at the premiere. After proceeding for many acts without an unpleasant gesture by a polite audience and silence, Legree's entrance was greeted with hisses.

For a fleeting moment it feared that the spirit of the exhibitionism, encouraged by Hobokenesque hisses at the sight of parodies on Nights In a Barroom, Black Crook and other gripped this polite and to intent group.

But the hisses ceased, not to be heard again. The cranky, old-fashioned, unaided by the passion that made it great because it was a propaganda play, might not have been enough, historical or not But the actors were. Applause was the only response thereafter

At the conclusion it was so emphatic and spontaneous, Mr. Skinner made a curtain speech. He called the audience's attention to a white haired little old lady in a box. She was Mr. Cordelia Howard McDonald of Bellmont. She was the first Little Eva, and played the part, a child prodigy at four, in the Troy, N. Y. Museum, in 1852.

Walter F Scott was Jim a Phineas Fletcher, Betty Lochner as Eva Frank Wilcox as George Harris Malcolm Dunbar as Shelby, Lester Chambers as Haley, lovely Joanna Roos as Emmeline, all were excellent.

A. E. Thomas, America's first playwright in his prime and as shrewd as ever in his craft at 74, fixed the distance a bit for this revival. But the out-lord techniques, the pays simple and squadsie construction, and the major warp and woof, remain. I would not have missed it

Mae West Owes Queen Mary Gratitude for Sequence in "It Ain't No Sin"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright 1933 by Universal Service Inc

Los Angeles, Oct. 10—Could you in your wildest imagination visualize Mary Pickford as the author of a Mae West screen play? Mary, who stands for the clean moral school, and Miss West, whose naughty winks and rolling hips have become famous, are to the average mind as far apart as the poles.

That's what you think. You are wrong. A remarkable friendship has developed between the two girls. It Ain't No Sin, Mae West's next picture, is from a Mississippi show boat sequence authored by Mary and a suggestion for Dorothy Parker. The incident [illegible] New Orleans in the [illegible] period. It's the [illegible] a new [illegible] attract an [illegible] a treatment Louella O Parsons which calls for two pictures per year for four years and an [illegible] part on the Paramount roll.

Here is another little [illegible] down in the book. Mary Pickford is very apt to take a contract with Alfred Kaufman to make a Paramount picture.

Three for Joan

Come what may, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer won't be left without a leading woman for Joan Crawford. Tracy Cunningham, who has risen up and ready for Joan's job, is a goner. One of the most interesting of the three is Astrid Benge's Sacred and Profane Love Back in the days when Elsie Ferguson was the Katharine Hepburn of the screen she starred in this Bennett story which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has purchased from Paramount. Edward Sheldon will produce it for M-G-M and Ben Levy is writing the treatment. It's problematical, however, whether it will be Crawford's next or whether she will first be seen in Pretty Sadie McKee or The Quest of Stanhope. All depends upon which finished script first merits Louis B. Mayer's okay.

Carole Gets It

While Clive a Swan on was trying to make up her mind whether or not to accept the lead in "Sadie Thompson," Paramount made up her mind for her. Tired of waiting for Miss Swanson to give them a decision Carole Lombard was given the role originally offered Miss Swanson. Gloria objected to the story as the early sequences Miss Swanson objected to having Paramount make the deal through Joseph Schenck, who has a contract with her. His managing that Adela Rogers story, remained as it was originally written

Buster Makes It

So Lester has good reason to be grateful to Buster Crabbe, swimmer actor and popular boy office "Tarzan" Crabbe whose new "Tarzan," has kept them standing in the at every theater where it has been shown, has already netted over a quarter of a million for Mr Lester Finney [illegible] not only has physique and looks but the necessary [illegible] Edgar Rice Burroughs creator of the "Tarzan" character, has gone to Chicago to spend the World's Fair with [illegible] told he is daughter ever [illegible] pain to take Buster [illegible] to Europe.

Sister Aimee at The Arena; Garden Misses Good Bet ↑ A Chance for Sister to Teach A Grand Lesson ↓

By AUSTEN LAKE

Maybe you don't think that Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton—or is the Hutton deleted?—has any business on the sport page. But 'arf a mo', matey, 'arf a mo'. Recently when the Boston Garden was meditating between Mrs. Hutton and the six-day bicycle races and weighing one against the other as a commercial attraction, they chose the bicycle races. Because Mr. Harold Dibles, the Garden manager, decided that the six-day races would draw a steady flow of custom all day and most of the night, whereas Mrs. Hutton's husky contralto could run, at best, only a few hours with an uncertain dribble of small coins to cut two ways.

So, within a few days, Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton—or is the Hutton deleted?—is moving her traps into the Arena as a rival spectacle to the six-day dementia or the mad merry-go-round. She will be here Thursday to install her carload of Hallelujah props, which include a golden ladder on which she will climb a step at a time to symbolize the gradual ascent of the spiritual self over the corporeal self and a huge glory bell in which, at the fevered peak of her sermon where she says, "Sin's curfew must ring," she will swing to and fro as a human clapper, though her symbol in this drama is obscure except that it shows her piano wire muscle to advantage and makes it clear that she could do a neat turn on the flying rings.

It is strange to me that Mr. Harold Dibles, who can scent a cash dollar as far as the next man, did not couple Mrs. Hutton with the six-day races so that both could run concurrently under his roof. Because neither would interfere with the other, as the bicycle riders virtually make no noise except when a tire lets go or the men lock horns on the steep banks and come slithering down in a tangle of wreckage. There might be a lot of people who would come to see the races who would stay to listen to Sister Aimee, and vice versa.

Garden Might Have Caught 'Em Going and Coming

It would be of mutual benefit too because when Sister comes to that part where she says, "Now dip your hands waaa...say down deep in your pockets and scoop out everything. And close your eyes tight so you won't see how much you are putting into the plate," there would be a lot of disinterested race-goers who would absent mindedly ladle out fistfuls of currency. For it takes little or nothing to make a Boston race-goer fish his own pockets and scatter their contents like so much confetti, though it might stimulate the process if Siser would rig up a property set of parimutuel windows, so the race-goers, who are susceptible to suggestion, could enjoy the illusion of a gambling chance. Rockingham handled eleven millions in confetti money during two summer meetings with the bare illusion and none of Sister's silver persuasion.

Sister is operating in the ballyhoo-ick of stamping ground, which is journalese for location, where Steve McPherson's bargain wrestling shows have been staged and where Steve, like Sister, was a small coin collector, though with none of Sister's teasing persuasion, so that Steve probably never looked a paper banknote in the eye during his several seasons. But then Steve merely folded his hands across his round stomach while keeping a moist brown eye on the ticket wickets and the cash baskets, whereas Sister put her famous figure through a series of contortions that would onship a football player's spine, sometimes running up into her proper lighthouse and semiforing to shipwrecked souls and sometimes impersonating herself in a portable water tank to illustrate the laving away of all earthliness.

And in between times, Sister would let off her hoarse, muted contralto in a community song, like "Everybody Happy? Shout Amen," which is a sort of alma mater hymn which Sister wrote herself, based on the eternal question that she is always popping with her sweet, dental smile. For when Sister leans over and husks "Everybody happy?" and cups her ear for the reply, she is so deliciously seductive that you would be a vulgar louse if you did not immediately bellow Amen or Hallelujah so that it rizs to the rafters in a sobbing moan.

Here's a Chance to Wow Your Public, Sister!

Now, at the Arena, Sister has a chance to teach a beautiful, soul-illuminating lesson, if she will only use the material that is indigenous to the hall. She could hire young, clean-limbed Leo Pardo, the former Black Secret, and pouch bodied, sag featured Bull Martin, in a wrestling match and draw a stirring simile.

One can imagine Sister, in her simple white satin gown with the silver thread cross sewn on her breast, standing among the lilies in a transport of glory over the victory which imperishable youth is winning over mammon, the flesh and all sordid worldliness. Of course she would have to fix it up with Numa and the Bull, so that Martin would not come a sleeper on Leo and spoil the text of the lesson. But I think Martin would strain his rigid principles just this once and do a convincing dive for a percentage of the gate, even if it would flout the moral code of the local wrestling shows.

Sister could use Numa as the symbol of spiritual symmetry and his classical features as the badge of right living, while the Bull's seamed and pulpy figure could represent temptation and the serpent wiles of pomp and vanity. So that, as Numa survives the 47 assorted tortures that are always a set-piece prelude in the Bowser wrestling operas, Sister could expound on the asbestos qualities of virtue. And when, finally Leo hung the Bull on a ring post by the slack of his skin and snatched out handfuls of his furry chest, Sister could rise to a paean of triumph and net herself a pretty handsome silver collection.

There is one risk in this. The wrestling public, while very sentimental, is used to making locust noises and to giving off barnyard effects after such performances, and the old habit may be hard to smother. So I suggest that Sister build up a fortissimo chorus from her volunteer choir to drown this out at the moment Numa slaps Martin's fatted clavicles against the mat.

What a climax! Everybody happy? shout Amen! and Sister holding the hickory arm of the golden youth aloft and pointing a lean, decisive finger at the scarred and fusty old Bull.

Alice Marble, winner of the Longwood and Essex singles tournaments the past summer, is shown in all her pristine splendor as she wafts her way to the Pacific Coast women's title. Alice defeated Dorothy Round of England in the final, 6—4, 6—1. Alice and Dorothy were Wightman cup rivals, and Alice was particularly anxious to defeat her. She did. Later Miss Round and Mary Heeley, both of England, defeated Miss Marble and Elizabeth Ryan in doubles, but Alice didn't care. She had achieved her objective.

Casey Subs Locke for Nevin in 'H' Shakeup

By JOHN BROOKS

Eddie's eagle eyes picked out a dozen flaws in the Crimson machine, which appeared to be merely minor details to less observant watchers. He publicly expressed himself as well satisfied with the conduct of the team. But he did not stop there.

So the usual soft session following the game was converted into a bloody Monday and several changes were made in the Team A arrangement, while the substitutes enjoyed an afternoon of scrimmaging.

Harvard's varsity eleven today contains a pair of new faces and the likelihood is that another will make an immediate appearance. What's more, the changes are to be permanent and the newcomers will start the New Hampshire game on Saturday.

LANE SHIFTED

The first of the innovations is the shifting of Franny Lane, Melrose sophomore, back to right halfback from the left halfback post which he occupied on Saturday and the promotion of Percy Locke, track ace, to the running backs' position.

Lane played a good game at left halfback against Bates. His greatest difficulty was in perfecting his timing.

But it was not because of Lane's faults but rather on account of Locke's brilliant running, that the shift was made.

Locke is mechanically the finest running back on the squad. He is a quarterback and sprinter on Eddie Farrell's track team.

The main advantage, according to Casey, in shifting Lane and putting Locke in the backfield, is apparent in the difference in the speed of Locke and Charlie Nevin, veteran halfback. Nevin drops down to the second backfield in order to make the shift possible.

As a result the Crimson has a starting quartet of heavyweight greyhound backs. Lane and Locke of course are recognized speedsters. Both Wells and Captain Johnny Dean can step along with the best, despite the fact that they weigh close to the 200 mark.

CRANE PROMOTED

Frank Crane is the other lad who now enjoys varsity rating. Crane, an Everett lad, has been one of the most versatile linemen at Harvard during the past three years.

He substituted so well that he has forced George Gulian, Newton's brilliant sophomore lineman, down into second place. Crane will play left guard against New Hampshire and since Jack Heisley and Frank Schumann, the injured athletes, appear to be definitely out for another week, Crane, who started the season as a flyweight, may end up by becoming Harvard's best guard of the year, and never be allowed to return to his original post.

KELLY OUT

Shaun Kelly, sophomore end, is out of the New Hampshire game and there is little chance that Allan Sherman, who had been slated to start the season at left halfback, will be able to play before the Holy Cross game.

Walter White, left end; Leon Francisco, left tackle; Crane, left guard; Warren Casey, center, Herman Gundlach, right guard; Dave Kerans, right tackle and Tom Nazro, right end, round out the Harvard varsity. Kopans has been excused for the early practices this week, in order to get on the hosting he took on Saturday.

The promotion of Locke enabled Casey to distribute his manpower more evenly. Now he has three powerful quartets. The second backfield has Nevin, Waters Peaks and Haley and the third, Whitney, Adigaun, Beals and Barrett.

Barrett, a starter in last year's Yale game, has been pushed down to the third unit because of the quality of the new material.

The varsity dropped to 42 players today as three athletes were sent to Jimmy Knox Jayvee squad.

Oct. 11 Deadline for H-D Tickets

Applications for the Harvard-Dartmouth grid classic close tomorrow evening, according to Carroll Getchell, general manager of the Harvard Athletic Association. 'Open' Net Tilts Now Assured, Tilden Says

New York, Oct. 10—Too many officials. That's what killed me as a tennis player this season.

Lanky Ellsworth Vines, who a year ago was the world's No. 1 tennis player as declared himself today, firing a broadside at the manner in which the United States Lawn Tennis Association

With monetary support of [illegible] the professional of $25,000 in consideration for his joining the professional tennis troops of Big Bill Tilden and Promoter William F. O'Brien, Vines today lost no time condemning the amateur tennis body.

"I'm glad I turned professional," Vines said. "I was dead from playing too many tournaments last season.

"And I was thrown off my game by too much dictation from tennis officials.

"Now that I'm a pro, I'll show you that I can still play as good tennis as I ever did.

"I'm through with sleeper jumps to dark, town tournaments. I'll play tennis the way I used to play it."

"NEW DEAL" SEEN

Big Bill Tilden, generalissimo of the professional tennis dodge in the United States, stated today that a "new deal" in tennis might be expected now that Vines has turned professional.

Incidentally, first news of the fact that Vines would accept $25,000 from promoter O'Brien, was printed in the Boston Evening American a week ago.

Terms of the contract which Vines signed were not disclosed, but reports several months ago were that the 23-year-old racquet wielder had been offered $100,000 to cast his lot with Tilden, Cochet, Vincent Richards, Hans Nussbein, Karl Kroshus, Francis T. Hunter, and other members of the O'Brien professional tennis troupe.

$75,000 FOR VINES

Later it was reported that he will receive in the neighborhood of $75,000 for an eight-month tour with Tilden and Henri Cochet, with a other $25,000 in sight from use of his name in advertising and other sources.

The young California's first appearance as a pro will take place on Square Garden floor in 10 days, he will meet Tilden in a [illegible] match.

Pending the world's best tennis players in 1932 and 1933, Vines was off form during most of the 1933 season, being defeated at Wimbledon in the Davis Cup finals and in the amateur championships at Forest Hills.

Tilden's comment was:

"This means that open tournaments will be here in a short time. The amateur association will not control professional tennis. The clubs will soon realize that open tennis is inevitable, what with Cochet, Richards, Hunter, Kozlish, Nusslein and now Vines, along with myself, in professional tennis. And there will be more turning professional shortly. There will be a new deal in tennis."

BRUNO TO FACE DUSSETTE

Fred Bruno of New York and George Dussette of Notre Dame will clash in a best two fall out of three wrestling match at Mechanics Building tonight under the direction of Charley Gordon.

In the semi-final Dr. Altheiser of Chicago will oppose Ed Flowers of Cuba.

That's not all Gordon has Mephisto of Germany and Ted Germaine of South Boston signed for a one fall bout in a special attraction. Charley has an idea this tussle may cause the fans to forget about the Bruno-Dussette affair. In addition they'll be five preliminaries.

Wood and Shute Enter Eastern Open Tilt

By BILL GRIMES

Until last spring, when he experienced the thrill—or should it be called a shock—of having the Sandy Burr Country Club tossed into his lap, Pres. Gus White, of the Presidential Country Club, had not been actively engaged in golf for three years.

But, when he resumed control of the Wayland proposition, White was once again a confirmed golf addict. Though he had been up dawn daily and raced around until the wee hours of the morning for more than six months, he admitted he did not feel that he had had enough action.

Finally, he struck upon a happy thought, an Eastern Open championship, Oct. 12 to 14. With many a thought that many golfers would be oiling up the shafts of their clubs and putting them away for the winter by the middle of October, Gus went into action, for woven he promotes he does not spare the horses.

KNOWS PROMOTION

Fortunately for the Eastern Open, Gus had been a success as promoter. In fact, he staged some of the finest golf attractions ever offered in these parts.

After breaking into the golf promotion game with a four ball exhibition, in which Jim Barnes, the British open champion, teamed up with Johnny Farrell against Jack Stait, the Mass open titleholder, and Herbert Lazerblads, White brought Walter Hagen here for a 36-hole exhibition with Francis Ouimet, and he packed them in. Then, he signed "The Haig" to play Archie Compston, the best attraction of the day.

CRAIG WOOD PLAYS

For weeks, entries have been slowly arriving at Presidential. Craig Wood and big Ed Dudley, who are consistent winners on the Flying Circus circuit, were among the first to ask for starting times in the Eastern open. Then came the Turnesa brothers, Joe and Mike, closely followed by Willie Macfarlane, Paul Runyan, Mike Brady, Tommie Creavy, Al Espinoza and Gene Sarazen.

One of the latest entries received was that of Densmore Shute, holder of the British open championship title.

LOCALS IN STRONG

With Denny Shute and Craig Wood, who played off for the British title, participating, the Eastern open championship is a "natural." The boys who were outscored by Shute and Wood on the other side will be out to show that they park the game pulled out of the necessary breaks.

Along with the "big shots," there will be most of the "amateurs" headed by Jack Curley, the New Hampshire open champion, Tom Mahan, United Shoe, Dave Hackney, Vesper, Teddy Turner, North Adams, Charlie MacAndrew, Wollaston, John Bernardi, Charles River, and Alex Ellis, Tedesco.

All in all there are 137 entries and the field will play 18 holes on Thursday and Friday and the final 36, for the 60 low scorers, on Saturday.

FISHMAN IS OUT OF BATES GAME

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 10 (AP)—The loss of Sammy Fishman, regular quarterback, became known today when Coach Jackson Cannell continued Dartmouth's football preparations for Saturday's game with Bates. Fishman was bumped twice in the Vermont contest, and suffered a reoccurrence of his old ankle injury, which may keep him idle for some time.

Pullback Harry Deckert was also battered, but his bruises should disappear in a few days. Irving Silverman, one of the Indians' strongest guards, returned to action after a week's absence, and Jack Hill, who has been out with injuries for three weeks, was again in uniform.

B. U. Sports Body Springs "Coup"

The Boston University student athletic council is back in power today for the first time since the entire personnel resigned in a mass last May in protest of the alleged resignation of Myles Lane.

Carl Max Rubin, Brookline, manager of swimming, as its temporary chairman; James South Walpole, outdoor track captain, vice-chairman, and George Slade, Chelsea, editor of the Boston University News, secretary, were elected officers.

For several weeks students have speculated as to whether or not this apparent defunct organization would or could legitimately become an active association without the first steps being taken by the director of athletics or the faculty council on student health physical education and athletics.

James McKenna, president of the all-university student council and leading varsity debater, took the initiative by calling the meeting yesterday.

INJURED HUSKY PAIR BACK

Due to their fine showing against St. Anselm's, Capt. Brad Johnson and Dick Mitchell made certain of regular starting assignments as Northeastern wingmen in future games.

Coach Al McCoy was also impressed with the end play of Frank Tuscher of Newton and will see to it that he has a chance to get into action.

Tuscher has the added accomplishment of being a better than ordinary drop kicker and may get a chance to open against St. Michael's next Saturday.

The return of Dolph Chaplick strengthened the middle of the varsity line. He reported for the first time in weeks yesterday after suffering a severe hip injury in practice that kept him out of the St. Anselm's game.

Another recovery which will aid the Huskies is the return of Ike Kopnick, who will now offer stiff opposition to Hank Arrigazzo for center position. But in the mean while McCoy is paying much attention to Ned Murray, varsity baseball captain, who continues to give a good account of himself as a center.

INCOMPETENT 'OLD GUARD' OFFICIALS ENDANGER GAME

OKESON URGED TO WIPE OUT GRID BLIGHT

By BILL GRIMES

Unless Walter Okeson, the czar of football officials, insults and personally supervises a thorough crusade for the purpose of culling out the "old guard" his lucrative avocation is in jeopardy.

To some extent—the expansion depending upon the integrity of the local powers that be—sectional associations of intercollegiate football officials are parasites.

For a consideration, any tyro may join the association but only the "old guard" has ever been permitted to enter the sanctum sanctorum of the inner circle. And, moreover, the payment of annual dues does not carry with it a guarantee that the new member shall receive any assignments.

TOO MANY INCOMPETENTS

There are altogether too many officials on the active college lists who have gone over their peaks; outlived their usefulness and should be replaced by younger and more alert incumbents.

Apparently the motto of the "old guard" is "the span of life of an official is infinite."

No wonder is the "old guard" capable of keeping up with the pace and making split second decisions! They alone are cognizant of having slowed up both physically and mentally.

Do not misconstrue me by presuming that I do not believe that there are any competent officials, for such is not the case. There are some fine officials but, unfortunately, there are so many "weak sisters" as to make even the good ones look bad far too frequently for the good of the game. I do not go solely on the standing of the officials themselves.

One bad decision at a crucial time brings censure upon the other three officials. There is no place in the ranks of officials for posers and those who thrive on prima donnaities, who labor under the misapprehension that the multitude of football enthusiasts turn out to see them go through their antics.

GOOD MEN IDLE

Personally, I know many officials fully competent to handle college games, who, only on rare occasions have ever been able to get any but high school assignments.

And, I can also put the finger on officials who receive college assignments weekly, who are incapable of handling a school boy till Walter Okeson is responsible for the competency of his officials. He is vested with the power to select officials for the so-called big games.

Up to that point his duties are simple but when he attempts to get a check on his corps, his only sources of information are the coaches, whose reports depend, in many cases, on their virtuous use of the officials' work as it affected their own teams. The possibility of an "axe to grind angle" does not make the coaches an infallible source of information.

REPORTS ON OFFICIALS

There are a few football experts who are capable of discerning, and run from a drop kick, and it might be to Okeson's advantage to enroll them to report upon the efficiency of his officials and recommend replacements from the group of newcomers, who are serving apprenticeships in handling prep and high school games.

In conclusion, let me give you a little tip. Regardless of who weeps they turn on, do not go for that lousy many of the old guard omit that they are remaining on the active list, solely through their undying love of the game.

It's the old do-re-me, they're after.

Colby Stars Back in Grid Lineup

Waterville, Me., Oct. 10—Johnny Aldan, varsity fullback, who has been nursing a cold for the past week, and Dick Johnson, second string varsity halfback, who has been inactive two weeks with a sprained ankle, took part in the Colby practice today.

Coach Roundy was very much pleased with the defensive work of his team. Colby had to depend upon reserve material when a half dozen of its first string men were unable to play because of injuries. The varsity was given a long lecture and a short signal drill.

The second team was sent into a scrimmage under game conditions with the freshmen, Sulberland, at quarterback; Merrick and Pugsley, guards; and Raymond, right end, did outstanding playing for the upper classmen.

B. U. Officials Frown on Northeastern Tilt

Agitation for a Boston University-Northeastern football game to take place November 4 is ripe again, but after a check with the Terrier authorities today the chances look remote.

There is a student movement on foot to have the two Boston institutions resume and reinstate by playing for charity the first Saturday in November. At Boston University, however, the athletic heads state that they have heard nothing of the plan and furthermore on that date the Terriers are scheduled to play the alumni.

If student opinion becomes strong enough there is a bare possibility that a game can be arranged on Nov. 18 as both schools officially close their schedules the week before.

The Terrier grid men are not greatly concerned with the Northeastern issue at present as their attention is being focused on the Colby game this coming Saturday. Dr. Harmon's pupils feel they have an excellent chance to win their first game as Capt. Al Alberti, Milt Herman, and Dick Van Ider-stine will all be available for the fray with the White Mules.

IS ACE BACK

Capt. Alberti was missed greatly in the New Hampshire game. The Terrier leader weighs 200 pounds and his experience and ability would have helped the boys greatly against the Wildcats. Saturday he will be in there at tackle on the offense and guard on defense.

The addition of Herman will help plenty as far as weight is concerned. The 235-pound Brookline tackle looked particularly impressive until the week of the opening game when he broke his finger. Despite the fact that Herman's finger was in a splint he has worked out every day to keep in shape and will be ready to step in there Saturday.

IDERSTINE AT END

The third member, Dick Van Ideristine, although a sophomore, was selected for a first string end position. A bad leg, however, has hindered him greatly. Dick will work out all week and be in shape for Saturday.

The backfield outlook was strengthened considerably when Johnny Ulman, a two-year veteran, who vowed he would not play this year, suddenly changed his mind yesterday and reported. Ulman refused to report under "praiser control but now that the theory is a thing of the past, he has again donned the togs.

Johnny is a 190-pound fullback who will be used as a triple threat

M'CORKINDALE RING VICTOR IN DEBUT

By HYPE IGOE

New York, Oct. 10 (INS)—Don McCorkindale of Jungle Land skimmed past one of our rough-est young men to gain a decision in ten rounds last night.

McCorkindale's "aggressiveness and clean hitting" earned him the verdict over Patsy Perroni, Cleveland, when Patsy Haley, the referee had to decide matters after the judges, Billy Jacobs and Abe Goldberg, disagreed in Madison Square Garden last night.

McCorkindale went to one knee under the middle rope in the final round but Referee Haley, fighting McCorkingdale deserves further consideration. He got by a tough egg in his first start.

The fall opening of the boxing season at the Garden was blighted by a financial frost besides being featured by a disputed decision. The paid attendance was about 4000 and the receipts a little over $5000.

NO GIANTS' JOB FOR M'GRAW

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Oct. 10 (INS)—There was a report the other day that McGraw might be offered the presidency of the Chicago Cubs succeeding the late Bill Veeck.

This Mr. McGraw denied with considerable show of rancor. He seemed annoyed. He ought to be. It's enough to make any man mad to know that he might get a job like that and can't take it.

McGraw is tied hand and foot to the Giants for a very sound reason which will be explained subsequently and at some length.

There was also a report which said that John Hay Whitney, millionaire sportsman, was negotiating for the purchase of the club.

If he is starting negotiations, he's five months behind another outfit which almost bought the club last April and it might interest him further to know that two members of the bidding party, are still looking for a third, so that they can go ahead and underwrite 70 per cent of the stock.

In addition, it was not so long ago, I am told, that Whitney was tempting to organize a syndicate to buy the club and, for all anyone knows to the contrary, he still is. This fact, by the way, resulted in the name of James J. Walker, former mayor of New York, being associated with the club's name and Blumenthal are intimates of many years' standing.

Perhaps the price, understood to be somewhat less than two million for 70 per cent of the stock, has skyrocketed recently. For, in addition to the fact that it seems inevitable that the Yankees must yield their stadium to increased real estate values and return to the Polo Grounds, thus greatly increasing its revenue, there is the circumstance that the Giants seem about to reclaim the prestige that was theirs some years ago.

As for Mr. McGraw, his plight is onerous but simple. First of all, stock in the Giants and a part ownership stock in one club cannot accept employment from another.

And, second of all, Mr. McGraw cannot sell that stock unless Francis X. McQuade and Charles A. Stoneham both agree to him doing it, which means that Mr. McGraw cannot and will not sell that stock. The only thing that Stoneham and McQuade have agreed on in the last eight years is that, if they ever do each other again, it will be premature.

Yale Pivot Flops as Wingman

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 10 (INS)—As an end Jon Johnson is a good center, Head Coach Root of the Yale football squad had apparently decided today. After two weeks' trial of the big lineman on a wing job, Root had him snapping the ball back again.

Felix Hughes, who played end and fullback at times last year, was again in the fold after being out because of an injury and may be tested in a varsity end position.

SOLONS' APATHY REFLECTED IN SERIES 'TAKE'

By BILL CORUM

New York, Oct. 10—The most thrilling World Series since 1926 ended in Griffith Stadium, Washington, on Saturday, and financially it laid an egg.

Now a wonder, does that suggest anything to the gentlemen who control the game, many of whom are heavily interested financially in baseball? It suggests many things to me. One of the principal things it suggests is that if the men who are running the sport do not take their feet down off the desk and take some active vigorous interest in keeping the sport abreast of the times, baseball has passed its peak forever and a day.

It is about an hour and a half from Philadelphia to New York and not much farther from Philadelphia to Washington, and yet I did not see anybody connected with either of the Philadelphia teams at the games in Washington; or any official of the Brooklyn team; or young Tom Yawkey, new owner of the Boston Red Sox, or Louis Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox; or Mr. Navin of Detroit; or anybody from Pittsburgh; or Mr. Bardley of Cleveland; or either of the owners of the Browns or Cardinals.

So I ask again if the game isn't good enough to beat them for its annual blue ribbon feature, how do they expect it to stir the fans?

COLD TO ALL-STARS

This past summer a Chicago sports editor took up a proposal that had been made many times in the past—an all-star games between the leagues—and put it across in connection with the Century of Progress. It was the best piece of advertising the game has got since Ruth started knocking down the fences. Yet the attitude of the moguls toward it was calm if not actually cold.

More than eight years ago we started a campaign on the lack of progressiveness of racing in New York State. They laughed when we told them the sport couldn't go on as it had been going. Some still laugh at the prediction that the sport must wake up or die. But not those who know the condition of the treasuries of the various racing associations. They ceased laughing some time back.

And one of these bright days, the baseball folks must snap out of their smug, self-satisfied shell, too. That, or else.

Passes, Punts and Fumbles

By BILL GRIMES

Because, in practice, he did time alloted by a theorist, John Dean had a tough time registering as a punter at Harvard. On his showing against Bates, Capt. Dean is the best kicker since the days of Eddie Mahan.

For two years Harvard's kicking coach wasted weeks trying to get Dean to speed up and also to place his punts. It's a wonder that the Crimson boy was not ruined. Fortunately for the Crimson, Dean has survived and he should prove to be the best ace in the hole Harvard has had in years.

Any kicker with Dean's distance and height need never concern himself over placing his punts, unless, of course, he is called upon to do his stuff on the opponent's side of mid field.

With Billy Fenlon out for the year, Coach Joe McKenney must decide to convert Johnny Dougan into a quarterback. Dougan is one of the brainest players on the Eagle squad and if he masters his new assignments he would be a great asset.

Tommie Kelley, the six-foot-three-203-pound Brookline boy who is a fine account of himself at end for Holy Cross against Catholic University, according to an item in the Worcester Telegram, is capable of flank play than "Billy Ormsby.

Art Gilman, former Dorchester high boy, who played tackle for Bates against the Crimson, gave Tom Hazzo a busy afternoon. The Harvard end was unable to handle Gilman, who was responsible for the piling up of the interferers and ball carriers back of the scrimmage line.

Before the season started, Grenny Neely went on record as to tell the world that the West Virginia Mountaineers were going to clean up. Greasy is still playing football, but it looks like that he has changes on Saturday down in Morgantown.

Johnny McDonald, a sophomore at Indiana, is rated as the best halfback the Hoosiers have produced since the days of "Chuck" Bennett. There are four more of last year's freshman eleven on the first varsity at Indiana, Wendall Walker, a triple threat fullback, Ettore Antonini, a 200-pound end, Trollen center of the same heft, and Joe Yode, a tackle.

Already, Boston College has lost two stars for the season, Jim Harrington has wound up his college football career as the result of a back injury, and Billy Fenlon is out for the year with a broken fibula.

If the younger generation of the Benton-Miller family are as proficient as was their father, Princeton should be reported to the NRA for hoarding football talent.

A glimpse at the Centre College football schedule is all that should be necessary to convince even the most "doubting Thomas," that the Colonels have every reason to believe that they are going places this season. If Centre was not well fortified, it never would have booked games with Pittsburgh, W. & L., Furman and Chattanooga.

Bob English, Amherst's great center, was so badly injured in the Tiger game that he was ordered to remain in the Princeton infirmary. And, by the way, Princeton just about ruined the entire Amherst team by insisting upon 15-minute quarters.

In his first varsity game, "Bull" Thomas, Colby's great blocking back, featured against Tufts, but it was no surprise to Eddie Roundy who predicted a fortnight ago that Thomas would star this season.

Whiteside's "H" Navy Misses "7 Admirals"

Football is not the only sport to keep the college athletes busy these sharp autumn afternoons. Fall practice for spring sports, and the regular workouts of the other sports teams, attract hundreds of enthusiastic performers. The following story is the first of a series from college athletic fields of Greater Boston. Tomorrow: Cross country at M. I. T.

By E. B. SCHRIFTGIESSER

At this time of year, when football coaches are wailing their usual wails about the paucity of varsity material among squads of 70 or more candidates, consider the plight of Charlie Whiteside, Harvard crew coach.

He has four boatloads of potential varsity oarsmen out on the Charles river every afternoon, in addition to Ed Brown's 150-pounders and Bert Haines's army of freshmen. But when it comes to experienced men for next spring's varsity boat—well, there just aren't any.

SIMMONS SOLF VET

Only Capt. Brad Simmons remains from the 1933 crew which beat Yale on the Thames last year, and Brad, being a candidate for the football team, is not working out on the river these days. Every other man in last June's boat graduated, including the coxswain, Simmons rowed No. 4.

The situation among the jayvees is about the same. Taggart Whipple, who wears a major H for having rowed No. 2 two years on the junior varsity crew that beat Yale, and Sam Drury, stroke, are the only men pulling an oar this fall Gridley Barrows, No. 5, with last year's jayvees, is another football player who won't do any rowing during the fall.

SOPHS PREDOMINATE

The squad, Whiteside told me, is made up mostly of sophomores. Some of them look very promising, but during fall practice no attempt is made to choose a varsity boat. The seatings do not even stay the same from day to day. Work will continue through Armistice Day, longer if the weather is warm

Ed Brown began work with the lightweights this week, having been kept ashore because of illness during earlier practice sessions. He is also taking charge of the house crews, but so far only Kirkland House has assembled an eight.

LEVIATHAN SAILS

Haines has the freshmen getting experience by dragging the new Leviathan II. through the water. This barge, not quite so clumsy as the famous old practice craft of that name, was new this summer and goes up and down the river every hour with a big crew of splashing novices at the sweeps.

TERRY SPURNS STAGE OFFER

New York, Oct. 10—Bill Terry, the forgotten man of baseball, has his new deal.

Not only that, Bill goes international. He adopts the five-year plan and refused to agree to a limitation of armaments.

In baseball terms, Bill signed to manage the Giants and play first base for the next five years, thereby abrogating his old contract, which had one more year to run.

Charles A. Stoneham, co-signer of the document, said it was the first time Bill had been in the front office all year.

At the same time, Terry turned down a contract calling for five weeks on the vaudeville stage at a salary of $5000 per week.

"My stage," he said, "is the ball park. At the plate or at first base I feel at home, but I am not an actor. However, I will probably give a few talks over the radio during the winter."

Terry's salary as manager and first baseman was $30,000 this season and the new contract naturally calls for a substantial raise. What it is nobody knows except Bill himself, Charley Stoneham and Jim Feeney, but it is estimated at $35,000 at least, giving him a total of $175,000 for five years. At any rate, he is the best paid manager in the National League.

REDSKINS IN LIGHT DRILL

The Boston Redskins, spectacular pro football club that whacked the New York Giants Sunday afternoon, rested after their bruising battle, and will have only a light workout today.

The general opinion is that the Redskins and the Giants staged one of the finest exhibitions of football ever seen in this part of the country, when the local team won, 21 to 20, last Sunday, and another thrilling battle is expected next Sunday, when the Portsmouth Spartans invades Fenway Park.

"Father" Lumpkin of Georgia Tech, one of the greatest lineplungers ever to come out of the South, is the ace back of the Spartans, and the powerful Redskin line will be tuned to the limit to stop his plunges.

Lone Star Dietz is planning no scrimmages for the first part of the week, but instead, will equip his players with a few more pet scoring plays.

"Boston fans have seen nothing yet," he said, yesterday. "Remember, that we played three games last week, and were very busy to give the players any new formations. Watch us next Sunday."

CENTRE SCOUT M'NAMARA WARNS B. C.

By WALTER KILEY

"Beware Praying Colonels stop Finest team ever scouted stop Could have scored hundred points against Transylvania stop Average 190 pounds stop Better than 1931 team which beat Harvard stop Fine passing combination stop Must change pass plays and defensive assignments stop Eagles cannot be greatly improved in six days stop Kentuckians stop Dallas Long big menace stop."

This is just one of several telegrams which kept the air lines hot over the past weekend as Dinny McNamara, backfield coach at Boston College scouted Centre College which comes to University Heights on the holiday afternoon, the third annual intersectional game between the two rivals.

That Centre deliberately kept its best scoring plays under cover, that it used only substitutes after the first few touchdowns, that it was cognizant of the fact that McNamara was taking in their plays from the stands, that also much valuable technical information was imparted to Coach Joe McKenney from his assistant-assistant.

Unfortunately McNamara was delayed in getting home with his data on the Colonels. He was subjected to a heavy southern rain which forced him to retire to a New York hotel bed and will not return until late today.

McNamara is the fellow who did the scouting for Major Cavanaugh's Fordham Rams, and according to critics who know their stuff, they don't come any better. He is quick to diagnose a play and construct a defense to stop it. He is keen on spotting weaknesses and in changing his own offense to best take advantage of the other fellow's shortcomings.

Therefore his reports will prove of great value to McKenney, who will not divulge his first string backfield until after talking it over with McNamara.

CENTER UNDER COVER

In fact, all sorts of rumors are afloat that Centre is counting for Boston College and are making no bones about avenging the two previous Eagle defeats.

McKenney is frankly dubious over the outcome. The news of the Kentuckians' strength, particularly disheartening on the heels of Dr. Ben Godwin's official announcement that Billy Fenlon, Haverhill sophomore quarterback, understudy to Johnny Freitas, had played his last football for the 1933 season.

Fenlon was taken out of the Loyola game shortly after the opening whistle. Godwin finds that the promising youngster has a broken fibula in his right leg and instead of tucking a football under his arm and guiding a group of huskies on the gridiron, he will for the balance of the season resort to the use of crutches and later a cane.

29 MAKE TRIP

Twenty-nine Praying Colonels, two coaches, Head Coach Edwin Kubala and his assistant, Morris Armstrong, and Trainer Dudley Donegby left Boyle-Humphrey Field House at Cheek Field, Danville, Ky., immediately after practice last night with Boston as their destination.

Let's take a peek at the Centre lineup. The backfield averages 187 pounds. The line goes 191 pounds. Seven of a possible 13 starters against the Eagles go better than 190 pounds.

Cecil Hamilton, quarterback, of Danville, is the lightest member of the squad. He hits 160 pounds. Dallas Long of Augusta, Arkansas, who will be making his third trip as fullback, is 215 pounds, according to latest Fairbanks reports.

Centre College Squad Drills in Washington

Danville, Ky., Oct. 10 (INS)—Centre College's football squad, 23 strong, was entrain to Boston today for its annual Columbus Day game with Boston College there Saturday.

The players planned to stop off at Washington today for a workout on Catholic University field. They will reach Boston at 7 a. m. tomorrow.

New York, Oct. 10 (INS)—Jim McMillen better look out for the NRA! The former Illinois football player, now one of Ranslm's most successful gents, beat Yanka Zelesnuik, the bearded Russian, last night, and tonight he performs again, this time in a double-header.

McMillen will first wrestle Sol Siegel of Germany and then tackle Sid Westrick, New York.

DORCHESTER HIGH SHORT ON GRID TOGS, LONG ON 'FIGHT'

COACH GIVES OWN SHOES TO PLAYER

By BILL CONNELL

Tattered pants, multicolored jerseys, shoes and sneakers of all kinds and ages are the football togs this season for a brave company of 50 boys marching as to war for Dorchester high school.

Only one football have they for practice. The ball is guarded like the last sandwich in a famine-stricken city. There are 16 headguards for the squad, so that other teams must be met when scrimmaging is needed. Else only the linemen, OR the backs can get down to real contact work with pads.

COACH GIVES HIS SHOES

Coach Bill Pendergast is shod in golf shoes. His own pair of cleated shoes went to a boy who had none. No new equipment is at hand though $100 worth of gear, the Boston allotment to each school this year, is expected.

Not much attention there for a boy who want to play football. Would rather expect the youngsters to dodge the game, or if they did report to drag half-heartedly through practice.

But the dampers have acted as a challenge, and the spirit of Young America at its best shows when these sportsmen laugh as they pass through workouts.

This season 175 reported for football. The coach decided to retain only those who could be equipped to practice without peril. There were 12 jerseys, 23 pairs of shoes, five pairs of rib pads, some 30 pairs of pants, and about the same number of shoulder pads.

SUPPLY OWN TOGS

Yet 50 boys were outfitted. Boys supplying their own uniforms in order to be allowed to stay out helped. But how that many were equipped from the above list of equipment gives the coach ranking with the master magicians for picking things out of the air.

Well, all the handicaps overcome things rolled along. Until the other day, when it was found that Capt. Pete Lydon, due to be one of the best school tackles of the season, had passed the 18-year-age limit and, being over, was ineligible. He has been the big fighting spirit.

It wasn't. The boys are quick to bad breaks that they promptly forgot their loss. And went on preparing for their first game against Mechanic Arts, Thursday, at Fenway, part of a twin bill, which has English and Trade in the other go.

Coach Pendergast refuses to complain. He didn't growl at all about the rough edges which so handicap his work when he spoke today of prospects for the season.

"The squad is a bit weaker than some I've had," he said. "With a few new ends, and our many veterans, we can't be too optimistic. But the boys are trying, and we are hoping for the best."

VETERANS LACKING

The first team lacks veterans, and so will be hard to estimate until it has played a couple of games.

Jim Carey, a veteran; Bob Chute and Jack Crowley are jilting for the quarterback job, with Letterman Dick Cusick and Veteran John "Mike" Dardinski set for halfback spots. Albert Finn and Harold Fish are fighting for the fullback assignment. A fairly capable backfield in the making.

The line will have to prove its ability. With only two veterans, Bill Meade, center, is one of these. Charley Conners and Tom Lydon, a cousin of Pete, have the guard berths.

Emery Spidell, the second line vet, is a tackle. Morton "Sonny" Laving who had some varsity experience, and Albert Block are seen in the race for the other tackle task.

John O'Neil will have an end's rating. The other wing, Milton "Red" Parefsky.

Ineligibles now who may play later include Ed Mitchell, center; Paul Fox, tackle; Alden Smith, guard; and Rick Ahern, guard.

MAY HAVE BERTHS

Others on the squad who have a chance for regular berths include Sam Diamond, Joe Saporiti, and Art Joyce, guards; Maurice Shagrue, Bernard Hoppe, Bill Smith, Paul Savage, and Morton Quimby, tackles; James Rabbitts, Bob Kiley, and Milt Kerman, ends.

Ed Murphy, Tom Higgins, Charley Wood, Jerry Murnane, Dick Gori, Fred Hoppe (a brother Bernard, tackle), and Harold Driscoll, backs.

They are struggling under handicaps. But the courage is there and a triumph of mind over matter can and may lift these game boys high in the Boston rating.

Some one may ask, "why the lack of material?" True, some Boston schools are well equipped, but in the latter class athletic association projects include running of shows daily, candy and ice cream and such money raising activities. These are not allowed at Dorchester high.

Just now the School A. A. is driving for a 100 per cent membership. Membership requires a contribution of 25 cents per boy. A full response would give the treasury about $500 which would get the football team through the season reasonably well.

Rain-in-the-Face Chapman Stages Six-Day Race

The Faster You Go the Sooner You Get No Place

By DAVID F. EGAN

Your envoy is sitting in the office trying to think up something suitable to say about bike riders when Mr Joe Downes came hosing in and said: "I have a load for any story which you care to mention. You wish to write about the bike riders? All right, then, start it in the following manner."

"Whirring wheels will whiz over the track at the Garden next Monday, starting punctually at 1 p. m. when Boston will have its second annual six-day race." So there we are, my good frans, there we are, with a lead to suit your taste.

Six-day races have always seemed to me to be an inhuman grind. Grinding piecelill through a most-grinder on a Saturday night, or washing the floors, or taking the family shopping, which is a large item in any man's budget, are refined cruelties compared to the tortures suffered by bike riders.

This year, howsomever, there is to be some compassion shown for the squirrelly young men who engage in the enterprise. Their day will last from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 1 o'clock in the early morning, a swell admission on the part of the promoters that Boston is not an all night town.

Last year, there were strange doings in the early hours of the morning when the Garden was deserted except for riders and watchmen. A gentleman named Weinberg, I believe, promoted the races, and after he had retired for the night, the young men who were racing also retired, with perhaps three or four of them holding the fort, in the event that some inebriate might stumble in.

John Chapman and Nat Butler, though, are promoting this year's race. Nat "Rain in the Face" Butler is known to all New England fans. At Revere, he promoted regularly for several years, and when he announced that he would stage one of his death-defying races on the old Revere track, the inhabitants would immediately start digging out their rubbers and umbrellas, for it was a certainty that it would rain. So they called him old Rain-in-the-Face, and he was finally forced to retire.

Chapman is known as the world's greatest bike promoter. For more than 35 years he has staged the annual six-day races in New York, where the sale of hot wieners has been tree-men-jus, and in later years, he has gathered riders to uplift Chicago.

There is no doot aboot it, Chapman can command the greatest riders in the world. Les Stout and George Underwood, his purveyors of publicity, have been coy about announcing the names of the riders, but Norman Hill and Dave Lands, the winners last year, will be seen again. They have split partnership, however, and will be on different teams.

Signor Edoardo Severgnini, the little Italian who stole the show last year, will be back again, teamed with Tino Reboli of Italy. Severgnini is fast supplanting, if you do not mind split infinitives, Francis Georgetti as the greatest Italian rider, and he and Reboli are expected to be one of the most popular outfits in the race.

The New York team of Charlie Winter and Jimmy Walthour, Jr., though, will undoubtedly be the selection of the pop-eyed customers. Winter, a giant of a man, was a double-barreled wow here last year, and the young Walthour, a natural platinum blond (Ed note: He's sneering at Jean Harlow, and I resent it) has all the tradition of his famous father behind him.

It is nice to know that Chapman and Butler will do the promoting. The clients will know that the bike riders are out there giving everything they have. The Messrs Chapman and Butler decidedly insist on that.

Bush May Not Play for State Saturday

Amherst, Oct. 10—Massachusetts State regulars who played against Rowdnin here Saturday were excused with only a light limbering up session but the coaching staff discussed at length with the squad the strong and weak points of State's game with the Polar Bears.

The entire squad reported in good physical condition with the exception of Lou Bush. Coach Mel Taube announced that the little State captain would be given a few days rest.

M. I. T. CREWS IN NIGHT DRILL

While upper classmen at M. I. T. are working regularly on varsity soccer, cross country and boxing, the latter two only now, the second week, the freshmen and sophomores are concentrating their energies with an eye toward field day, the 27th.

The freshman crews are working out nightly under the watchful eye of Coach Al Dunning, while Oscar Hedlund has quite a turnout of the new classmen trying for positions on the relay team which meets the sophs. It is apparent that the frosh are eager to turn the tide of victories which the sophs have enjoyed in recent years.

All the G's and G's tgrunts and groans to your at not confined to wrestling, as evinced by the preparations of the tug-of-war teams which are straining at the hawsers daily. Otto Zwanzig is handing the freshmen and hopes that his charges will add another defeat to that sustained by the present sophomore last year.

Bob McIver, former P. sector varsity halfback, is supervising the football workouts of the freshmen and hopes to instill a bit of the old Tiger spirit in the first year engineers.

As for that event which bears the brunt of the faculty frowns, the parabolic egg toasting contest, the less said the more discreet it would be. Let it suffice to mention that the Sigma heroes have the distinct upper hand, by virtue of the experiences of last year's encounter and also the fact that certain eggs, of last year's vintage and unused at that time have been resurrected and should play an important part in lending atmosphere (?? ?) to the program. All in all the 27th looms as a day of real doings at the engineer school on the banks of the Charles.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

ONE MUST GIVE Lou Brouillard, world's middleweight champion, credit for being a good business man.

"Come down to Boston and see if we can't have an official signing for your little bout with Tuffy Dundee," said Tuffy Ames, who is to be fought at the attack of pneumonia poisoning.

"I prefer Worcester for the scene of the signing," shot back Brat Hard. "We'll stage the show at my new $25-a-conditioner. With sandwiches, beer, coffee and anything else you may wish (of course, you'll pay the check."

Garden Bosses Meet

THERE WILL BE a meeting of the board of directors of the Boston Garden on Friday Harold Dibbice will be named general manager, while the new president of the Garden will be voted into office. The successor to the late Joe Gilman has already been decided upon. He is a business man with a thorough knowledge of financial matters. He will also devote part time to the Garden job, and will leave the active management of affairs in the capable hands of Dibblee. The latter has been in charge at the Garden for six weeks, and prior to that was associated with the New York Garden.

Col. John Reed Kilpatrick will come marching to town for the meeting of the Garden directors.

You may be surprised to learn that Johnny Weissmuller, who is going to wed the vivacious Lupe Velez, beat Lutze in a series of movie tests to see which one of them would play the part of Tarzan. Lutze revealed this information to me, but says it would be a different story if the tests were staged on a wrestling mat with no holds barred. Nick has plenty of crowd appeal, and has appeared in minor movie roles.

Ed Don George has also shown in the movies. George acted the part of a wrestler, as he could be himself. Until Montana had gained more movie fame than any of the grapplers.

New York, Oct. 10—Prices on the New York Stock Exchange turned irregular in the second hour of trading today. Profit-taking developed in the rails and the liquor shares. The main body of stocks, however, displayed a firm tone.

In the second hour National Distillers and the other liquor stocks ran into some profit-taking and dipped fractionally. Trading, though, was light.

Railroad shares, which yesterday had shown a buoyant tone, were somewhat depressed by realizing this morning. New York Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and Union Pacific ruled slightly under yesterday's close.

The gold mining and metal shares in general continued to be offered at lower prices, with losses running to more than a point. United States Smelting, Alaska Juneau, Dome and McIntyre bore the brunt of the liquidation here.

The utilities turned slightly lower after early firmness, but in the main such issues as Consolidated Gas, North American and American Water Works managed to hold their own.

Among the trading favorites, Johns Manville, Case, Celanese and Allied Chemical were in demand, pressure. Motor and steel shares were quiet, with traders in the latter waiting for U. S. Steel's tonnage report.

Sales to noon approximate 800,000 shares.

The initial hour of trading saw an irregular trend prevailing for leading shares. Changes ranged from fractions to a point or better with volume at about the same rate as yesterday's session. National Distillers advanced a point while U. S. Industrial Alcohol was off more than a point.

Allied Chemical, selling "ex"- dividend, was down more than a point from last night's close. Gains of a point or better were shown for such issues as Air Reduction, American Woolen preferred and Delaware Lackawanna.

Recessions of a point or more were recorded for Columbia Carbon, American Commercial Alcohol, International Silver, Pennsylvania and U. S. Smelting. U. S. Steel was slightly lower.

Grains and cotton were easier. In foreign exchange markets the dollar held to a rather narrow range in early transactions. Sterling was at 84.68¼, unchanged from yesterday, and the French franc was slightly firmer at 3.94¼ cents.

Sales in U. S. m. approximated $20,000 shares.

Financial circles read closely the weekly condition statement of reporting Federal Reserve member banks as of Oct. 4, which disclosed decreases for the period of $97,000,000 in net demand deposits, $15,000,000 in time deposits and $92,000,000 in reserve balances with reserve banks.

Loans on securities were off $36,000,000, apparently confirming the recent waning of speculative enthusiasm. At the same time, all other loans, or commercial loans, advanced $61,000,000.

The report of the United States Treasury stated that the amount of money held by the government on Sept. 30, was $3,761,443,416 of which $3,155,880,210 was in gold coin and bullion. The reserve banks held $2,260,767,855 compared with $2,296,241,688 at the end of August.

The amount of gold coin held by the 7 reporting banks was placed at $813,423,962. Total currency in circulation amounted to $5,650,023,174 against $5,612,123,021 at the beginning of September.

American Smelting Income Increases

Due to the sharp increase in sales and higher prices of all non-ferrous metals, American Smelting & Refining Co. in the nine months ended Aug. 31 had an operating income above $1,250,000 after depreciation, depletion, interest and taxes, but without any credit for increase in market price of metals held in inventory. This is slightly above preferred dividend requirements of the period and compares with $1,351,000 earned in the same basis in the first half-year, all of which was earned in the second quarter. Resumption of dividends on the 7 per cent first preferred shares is the result.

Investment Trust Position Unchanged

Capital Administration Company, Ltd., reports as of September 30 net assets equal to $1,697.83 per $1000 of outstanding debentures, $34.94 a share of preferred stock, and $1.28 a share of Class A stock.

Except for various readjustments within the portfolio, the company has substantially maintained the investment position which it built up during the past year. On September 30 approximately 11 per cent of the company's assets were held in cash or its equivalent and government securities, with 39 per cent invested in bonds of preferred stocks, and 50 per cent in common stocks.

Cotton Lower in New York Dealings

New York, Oct. 10—Cotton futures today were barely steady, 7 to 10 lower in response to disappointing Liverpool cables and under southern selling. Oct. 9.33; Dec. 9.46; Jan. 9.53; March 9.72; May 9.85; July 10.03.

A GREAT FRIEND OF—
Mr. Henry G. Vaughan

This is "Furrier," the finest and most popular dog in the Norfolk Hunt. He is so skilled in pursuit that he cannot fail to be a hit heady, but he is very good-natured, and is known as the "cock of the pack."

Once the hunt is on, "Furrier" is all business and has no patience whatever with lazy dogs or inconsiderate riders. He has never yielded the hunt on a false scent. His nose—in brief—knows.

The VOICE OF BROADWAY
By LOUIS SOBOL

Down Memory Lane

With KATE SMITH.

Seven years old, I was leader of a small gang of boys around our Washington neighborhood. We called ourselves "The Midnight Riders"—but at 8 o'clock each night we were tucked in by our respective parents. The chief at the corner firehouse was the nicest man I knew. He used to let me ride with him to the fires.

Once I hid in a truck that carried me way down Virginny. Only then did the driver discover I had been locked in. After bawling me out, he drove me back home. Last summer—14 years later—I received a letter from the same man, asking if I was the "fat kid" of the incident.

Still the "fat kid," singing "Rose of No Man's Land," "Over There," and other war-time ditties for the A. E. F. before they sailed for the battlefields . . . and little knowing what war was. Some years later. Singing for many of the same men at the Veterans' Hospital in Washington . . . a few years after what was.

The grand reception upon my return to Washington last March a year ago when a delegation of the American Legion greeted me at the station. We marched parading—a vet on either side of me. As the band plays a bright tune the chap on my left shoves a photograph. Though soiled and worn I recognized the snapshot of myself as a child seated on a soldier's knee! I asked if he was the soldier of the picture. "No, it's my brother," he replied, "he was killed at the Argonne."

My closest call. Nine years old, and alone in a canoe two miles out in the Chesapeake. The sudden squall when I was thrown into the icy water. Hanging on the craft for hours. Then exhaustion and collapse—and, thank my goodness, the rescue.

Entertaining at the White House for three administrations

Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge. Seeing Mr. Coolidge wearing a broad smile. Singing at a dinner in honor of Gen. Pershing—and refusing to have my hair washed for a week because he gave me a kindly pat on the head.

Nat Brusiloff, now my orchestra leader. We knew each other "when" down in Washington, and when he borrowed my ukulele. One year later he returned it, carved with the initials of his relatives I never knew how one person could have so many of them. A few months ago I was happy to be able to present Nat with a violin for his help.

I studied nursing at a Washington hospital—and was happy that my voice was instrumental in being selected to give blood transfusions. It didn't seem so terrible to be big then.

Then came the decision to go on the stage—and the two years in "Honeymoon Lane" without missing a performance.

The run of "Flying High" with that grand comedian, Bert Lahr. Singing "Red Hot Chicago" and "Without Love." Yes, Stress—but life is not so hot without love.

November 1930—the show is ended, but radio has still to begin. Yearning to get on the air, I'm told by a local station manager that my voice was unsuited to radio—and that I was not the type. I told Ted Collins, now my manager, about it at his phonograph company office, and he reassured me there was a place for me in radio. And my confidence in him when he signed me up. Did I say "sign"? If so, then I'm wrong. For we've never had a written contract. We just sort of made an agreement—and we've been agreeing since. My debut on Columbia—and plenty nervous, believe me. On my first radio anniversary in May, 1932, I repeated the identical songs of my first broadcast. The second milestone passed—and again I repeated the exact program, now a fond tradition with me.

A bit proud ever breaking the all-time house records at the Palace Theater — 11 consecutive weeks. One hundred and seventy-six shows. Helped made possible, by the kindness and fellowship of the fine artists on the bills during the run.

That pathetic letter from an upstate mother, asking me to sing "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight." She hoped her wayward son would be listening and return to the fold. Doing the number, and the happy letter from a Brooklyn mother. Her runaway daughter was so touched that she came back to her family fireside. Life is like that.

Singing "In the Baggage Car Ahead" on a Memory Program, and the letter from the woman who wrote she was the baby of this sad song—a true story.

Paying tribute to Chancey Olcott with his number, "My Wild Irish Rose," only to read in the morning papers while leaving the studio that he passed away in Monte Carlo—just 25 years after he introduced that lovely ballad.

While on another "Memory Program," singing "Goodbye Little Girl, Goodbye"—and telling how the fine showman, Gus Edwards introduced it 30 years ago. My surprise, when Mr. Edwards came down to the theater that evening with lovely roses and the card: "It was the first time in 20 years I heard that song. Many thanks, Kate, for one of the greatest thrills of my life."

And hastily travelling down Memory Lane:

Convalescing from illness at Lake Placid while continuing the broadcasts . . . learning to play golf and splitting a new driver with my first swing . . . Ted Collins' debut as an announcer in the hastily made hotel studio there.

BOOKS---And Other Things
By Charles Hanson Towne

An announcement sent out recently by one of our large publishing houses spoke in high terms of a certain young author, but added that it was unfortunate that he did not have to work and strive hardest. He had always had sufficient money to keep him from being hungry, and the number of books he had written has been few.

What is this belief that persists that no creative artist can amount to much unless he experiences degrading poverty? One can think of innumerable writers who have not been able to struggle desperately for their daily bread, but who have come through with splendid work. On the contrary, I know of several poets who would be able to give us beautiful songs if they were freed from the fear of their landlords, and who waste their precious days in wondering how they shall be able to support desperately ill children. They have little time for their creative work, feeling as they do the pinch of hard times. Fine sonnets have no doubt been written on empty stomachs; but quite as many have been composed when the poet was well nourished.

Chatterton, who was forced to live in an attic, killed himself because he could not see that there was a round of his days, and perhaps a thoughtless world lost more than it ever knew. If some millionaire could have known him and helped him! I do not think Chatterton's genius would have suffered. A life at the right moment, a practical word of encouragement, a few hundred pounds in the bank would have saved him and made it possible for him to go on his starry sweep way. Imperishable songs have not always been written in garrets. Tennyson wrote "Crossing the Bar" and all the rest of his immortal poetry in a palace. Byron did not suffer for want of material things, and though John Masefield, now in his youth, had to clean out a saloon, he did not begin to sing until he was safely back in England, which is the memory of his long months of penury behind him.

More and more the world is coming to understand how the artist must be rescued from an exile forced upon him by poverty and given time for reflection and dreaming. Thus we have fellowships and funds for the worthy interpreters of life. As that they may be free to ponder, even to travel, to find quiet places where they can write their books, paint their pictures, or make a serious business of any of the arts. I cannot think of Edgar Allan Poe was a greater poet because his wife literally froze to death because he could not provide the proper clothing for her, and that he himself had to resort to drink to get some needed warmth into his own body.

We need only imagination—but mostly that practical love for dark tenement house can be, how dreadful it must seem to be without fuel and a decent place to sleep, and then, out of our own strength, to help those who experience such squalor. It is not necessary for us to go without fresh air to picture what it must be to a child of poverty to need it.

STOMACH TROUBLE
Mr. Whose, F. Pope, 876 Washington Ave., Somerville, writes: "For over 20 years I have suffered from stomach trouble. Doctors diagnosed it as duodenitis. About 7 weeks ago my trouble became so severe that I decided to go to bed and starving me said he could do nothing further for me. I had read of Dr. Walsh's cure in the papers and decided to try it under Dr. Walsh's treatment until I feel that I am entirely cured. Testimony of Dr. Walsh's success in my case may be of benefit to others who suffer as I did."

Overhaul the Lawyers!

How to Stop Jury Bribing

The Boston Bar Association, in what was described as the most largely attended, the most exciting and most important meeting in many years, adopted resolutions denouncing the bribery and jury-fixing now a notorious scandal in Suffolk County.

You will be interested to read the resolution of denunciation adopted by these lawyers. It is as follows:

"Regardless of the innocence or guilt of particular lawyers, the gravity of the situation cannot be overestimated.

"The fact that jurors during the past few years have been accepting bribes has been established beyond peradventure. Many different jurors have admitted the receipt of money.

"The disclosures have outraged the community and there is an insistent demand, in which we join, that immediate steps be taken to overhaul the process by which Suffolk County jurors are now selected, to the end that the faith of the people in our courts may not be destroyed."

What do you make of these unctuous resolutions?

Jurors have been bribed. This is established "BEYOND PERADVENTURE."

The disclosures outrage the community. This, too, is known, "BEYOND PERADVENTURE."

And how is it going to be stopped; how are these outrages which shock the community and impair their faith in justice and the courts to be terminated?

By overhauling the jury system. So say the lawyers.

WHAT ABOUT OVERHAULING THE LAWYERS? No mention of that, of course.

What is a bribe? A bribe is a reward of treachery, a price of corruption.

Does the juror pay himself to be bribed? He does not. A bribe has TWO parties to it—the one who takes it and the one who pays it.

Bribery could not be effected unless it originated with the party willing and eager to pay the bribe. He is the one to be benefited most by the corruption.

Well, then, who is the one to be most benefited, the one who pays the bribe? THE CORRUPT LAWYER, OF COURSE.

Out of this very plain statement of the very plain and very sordid condition which exists in the contamination of justice in Suffolk County, there is one very definite conclusion that can and must be drawn.

The conclusion is this: BEFORE OVERHAULING THE SYSTEM FOR SELECTION OF JURORS WHO MAY BE BRIBED IN THE FUTURE, THE THING TO BE DONE IS TO OVERHAUL THE CORRUPT LAWYERS WHO HAVE THE MOTIVE, THE MEANS AND THE OPPORTUNITY TO OFFER THEM BRIBES.

The good and decent lawyers [illegible] know it to be necessary.

Poker Elbows

Watch Them

First aid to poker players is extended by no less an institution than Columbia University through its professor of dramatics, George H. Blake.

This learned gentleman, after 25 years of intensive observation, announces that the only way to tell whether the man across the table is bluffing when he draws one card or stands pat is to watch his elbows.

The expression of the face, says Professor Blake, may be as cryptic as that of the Sphinx or Mona Lisa or Helen Wills, but the elbows will betray him every time.

If the elbows move outward, no matter how slightly, throw your cards on the table.

You will save money,

He has the goods.

But if the elbows are contracted toward the body, you may venture a few blue chips with the prospect that your speculation will be profitable.

Some of us, after many years of patient but expensive analysis of poker faces, will wish that the professor had imparted his findings earlier.

Our bank balances would be considerably better than they are now.

And, though we may be tempted to try the Blake system in future, we are not sure that he has helped things much by publicly announcing it.

The chances are that we shall run up against some modern Machievalli who has read about it, too, and who will draw a straight flush and then turn his elbows IN.

Hitler's 'Change of Front'

Does It Mean Anything?

Almost the only good news that has come out of Germany in recent months is the announcement of the Minister of Economics that the drive against Jewish business men must be discontinued.

From such a source it would seem that the Hitler government is at last realizing the essential place of Jewish commercial interests in the economic life of their country.

The order obviously is not dictated through any old-fashioned sentiments of tolerance or even of elementary fair play.

It is the result of stern necessity.

But whatever the motive, it must be welcomed by Jews the world over and by all enlightened Gentiles as well.

Only time can tell whether it will be permanent and whether it betokens a genuine change in attitude toward the Jews by the German government.

Hitler's latest move, to strangle the press, is certainly no augury of good in future.

One may hope, however, that the impersonal and inexorable law of economics will bring about what logic and liberalism and the ordinary sentiments of human decency have thus far been unable and powerless to achieve.

The Hitler pocket is evidently vulnerable, whatever may be said of his head or heart.

Daily Bible Text

"Jesus spake unto them, saying all power is given unto me in heaven and earth."—St. Matthew xxvii, 18.

By the Rev. Anthony Regamey, pastor Church of the New Jerusalem, Boston. Next text by the Rev. George E. Rosser, Methodist minister, preaching in Boston.

Out With Them!

Federal law enforcement—directed at crime of every kind, not merely technical Federal offenses—has commenced.

It has proved itself. It must be continued. And it must be extended.

A few days ago, Warden Lawes, of Sing Sing Prison was asked:

And Warden Lawes, one of the nation's foremost penologists, replied unhesitatingly:

"Positively, yes. The closer supervision of the laws of the United States would curb the criminal. . . . The Federal arm is more potent than local authority. Federal action is quicker, surer, more impersonal, and the unholy alliance between crime and politics has not been charged against the Federal judiciary."

Warden Lawes was also asked:

"What would you recommend to curb racketeering?"

And Warden Lawes answered:

"Federal jurisdiction, and Federal jurisdiction exclusively, for the reasons given in answer to the question regarding closer supervision of Federal laws."

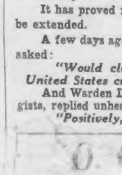
New York Day by Day

New Deal in Movie Girls

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—Ruby Keeler symbolizes the New Deal in movie girls—a getaway from platinum blondes, sinuous shrugs and super-sophistication. Wherever she went on her visit here, the crowds congealed, murmuring praise that rose to regimented clamor for her autograph.



O. O. McIntyre

Miss Keeler remains herself and her life is haloed with an appealing Cinderella theme that always catches the fervor of a crowd. She was born in a tenement district as Celtic as the blue of her eyes. And she has not forgotten. She calls on Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. O'Callahan.

Her beauty is even more pronounced off screen. Her dark hair falls in natural marcel over a boyish head, features chiseled out of white ivory are the background for lips of cherry red and peach-blown complexion. Her smile has a warming shyness.

But permit a local cinema chatterer to continue the rave: "Demure, entrancing, ravishing—behold Ruby Keeler!" The other evening Miss Keeler was leaving a theatre on her husband's arm. A black carriage boy observed: "Mr. Jolson, you sure looks proudful." Al with an expansive eye roll, beamed: "Boy, I is!"

The late Eddie Dillon and Robert Z. Leonard shared an office together in Hollywood to search for plays. One morning after "a tough day at the studio" Eddie with several mss. propped against his desk inkwell fell asleep. Leonard tiptoed in, placed an open phone book over the plays and exploded a torpedo. Awakened and, without turning his head, Eddie stared at the open phone book and murmered: "Lousey—too many characters!"

Ambitious mamas with marriageable daughters have three new catches for which to angle this winter. The young men who along with manhood have attained enormous inheritances are Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Woolworth Donohue and John Jacob Astor. Each is said to be of serious turn. No playboying.

The jaunty mustache is having another vogue this Fall. The avenue is brisk with Clifton Webb, Paul Whiteman and even Hitler effects. But when it comes to dashing, slashing devil-may-care lip shrubbery, my candidate for the moment is Major John M. Warner, son-in-law of Al Smith and, I believe, president of the New York Athletic Club.

Those are brave young men who, having built huts along Riverside Drive between 72d and 79th streets, are hopefully awaiting an uptake in events. There is none of the snarling of defiance of the squatter or avenging of capitalistic wrongs. Many are last year's college graduates whose ambitious argosies foundered in, as Homer would put it, a wine dark sea. Those who look down from windows of majestic apartments call it Heartbreak Row. But that's a misnomer. There is no anivelling. Life has cuffed but not beaten them. And they are not interested in communism.

Of all single-handed reporting feats, that of Julian Ralph on Dana's Sun excels. After a day of observance he sat down at 7 p. m. and at midnight had finished his story of the dedication of Grant's tomb. He took no notes, yet with pencil and paper his stirring account filled the entire first page of the Sun and "jumped" inside for three columns. For the long haul Irvin Cobb surpassed that record in reporting the entire Thaw trial by longhand, rushing it page by page to the office by nimble-footed copy boys.

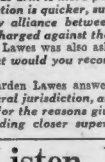
Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

You Govern the U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C. seems far away. Even if you live in Washington it seems far away. You cannot feel that your life is intimately connected with the government of these United States.



Elsie Robinson

There is the great, gray Capitol, looming arrogantly against that pale violet sky. There is the White House, set serenely on its rolling lawns. There are the Representatives, the Senators, the Members of Cabinet the countless committeemen and women, strutting or scurrying upon their important ways.

It's an impressive and exciting sight. You realize it means America. You realize, too, that you are paying for that sight—that you are supporting America. But, somehow, you can't feel that you're part of that show: that you, yourself—John or Jenny Jones, with your small job and your small opinions—really matter.

But you're wrong! It does matter. It matters more than anything else in America.

The public opinion of plain people has always mattered more than anything else in the making or maintaining of any government.

What brought about the fall of Rome: the French and Russian Revolutions?

THE OPINIONS AND REMARKS OF THE PLAIN PEOPLE.

What made America—saved America through terrific trials? The heroism of Washington and Lincoln; the wisdom of Franklin and Jefferson? No!

THE OPINIONS AND REMARKS OF THE PLAIN PEOPLE.

Demagogues may sway Congress. Bankers may manipulate finance. Statesmen may make trade agreements. Bureaucrats may connive and contrive. Even the public vote may be diverted to serve the interests of privileged classes. But, in the end, the voice of the Plain People wins out.

But wait a moment before you begin pinning medals on yourselves, John and Jenny Jones. There are two sides to this Plain People picture.)

If Public Opinion can make a government, IT CAN ALSO UNMAKE IT. If much of our greatness has been due to Public Opinion, SO HAS MUCH OF OUR DISASTER.

Which brings us right up against the situation of today. America today is what the Plain People of America—what YOU, John or Jenny Jones—want it to be. If there is greatness in America it is because you wanted it there. But, also, if there is weakness or wickedness in America, it is because you wished it to be there or permitted it to remain there.

Yes, I know; you'll deny that. You'll say that you voted for better things.

But it isn't the check you put on the ballot that makes or unmakes your country. It's the remark you pass to your neighbor across your back fence, or to the man who sits by you in the street car, or works by you at bench or desk.

It's your whispered whine, your muttered threat, your wise-cracking sneer, that perpetuates depression, sums up recovery—and, as sure as God made little apples, will make things far worse before they get better if you keep it up.

Governments aren't wrecked by bullets but by buzz-buzz.

But the idle shooting off of the mouth, in this grim crisis of our affairs, is as disloyal and deadly as the shooting of a traitor's gun.

So—count your words! Stop blaming the Administration, or the Democratic Party, for your ills. Franklin Roosevelt isn't running this country. The Democratic Party isn't running it.

You are running it, John and Jenny Jones.

You are running it with those personal desires and remarks which make up public opinion.

The government of these United States isn't in Washington, D. C.—It's on the tip of your tongue!

Be careful how you wag it!

"Am I my brother's keeper?" answered Cain
When questioned of his brother Abel, slain,
And since such record keepings first began
This phrase has lingered on the lips of man.

That I have food and all is well with me?"

Suppose a plague should fall upon the town,
Would it not trouble men of great renown
To learn that on some little nearby street
Were those, perhaps, they once had scorned to meet
Sore-stricken with the malady? And would
They not unite with all the neighborhood
To win to health and happiness again
The very humblest of their fellow-men?

To them his daily progress would be known.
They'd watch the sick and suffering and share
Their misery lest the pain be theirs to bear.
For what harms one another may destroy.
Not in our own but in another's joy
Lies common welfare. Brothers are we all!
Where one man stumbles every one may fall.

Lobbies Sap Confidence In Our Government

By James T. Williams, Jr.

If the Roosevelt administration is to lay firm the foundation of "the new deal" which it has pledged to the American people it must drive from the Federal city at least some of the lobbyists that are sapping public confidence in the integrity of the government of the constitution.

Under the leadership of the late Senator Carraway of Arkansay, a special committee of the Senate investigated the lobby several years ago. Extensive hearings were held. A mass of astounding svidance was pigeonholed. The evils of the lobby continue to plague and pollute the processes of popular government.

Nor are these emissaries of "the invisible government," as the aggregation of lobbyists and the special interests they represent have been described, idle during the recess.

When Congress is not in session these sappers at the foundation of free government transfer their under-surface activities to the executive branch of the government and seek to influence its decisions by the same unconstitutional methods that they employ under the dome of the Capitol.

A FLAGRANT EXAMPLE

A flagrant example of the lobbyists who operate when Congress is not in session is to be found in the greedy activities of a group of lobbyists in the hire of certain cordage companies of the country.

The cordage lobbyists were one of the most notorious allies of the sugar lobbyists who put through the seventy-second Congress disgraceful Hare-Hawes-Cutting bill which broke every promise the American people ever made to the Philippine people.

One of the most infamous jokers in that legislative monstrosity was inserted by the evil machinations of the cordage lobby.

The history of this joker is interesting because it illustrates the way a tricky lobbyist operates.

As reported from committee, the Hare-Hawes-Cutting bill provided for the admission free of duty into this country of the principal products of the Philippines in the quantities in which they were coming at the time this legislation was before Congress.

THE CORDAGE CODE

Notwithstanding this purpose, which was plainly stated in the reports of the bill made by the committees of both Houses, the cordage lobbyists inserted in the bill before it became a law a provision reducing by nearly 2,000,000 pounds the amount of cordage that could come into this country from the Philippines during their last nine or 10 years under American sovereignty.

This is one of the obvious deceptions in this indefensible legislation which has resulted in making it so unpalatable to the entire Philippine people that their legislature will probably refuse to approve it.

Now these same cordage lobbyists, who turned this sharp trick when the Hare-Hawes-Cutting bill was before Congress, are trying to get through a cordage code of their own concoction. As drafted, this lobby-ridden code would further increase the cost of cordage to the farmers of the United States, its principal purchaser, and to the shipping of the United States, the next purchaser, while at the same time reserving this market to themselves.

It is hard to believe that the Roosevelt administration will approve any such unfair and unintelligent code as the cordage allies of the sugar lobby have dished up in the hope it will be swallowed as easily as the late and unlamented Seventy-second Congress swallowed the cordage joker in the Hare-Hawes-Cutting bill now nearing repudiation at Manila.

To approve such a code would be to increase instead of reduce the sinister power of all lobbyists' new preying upon the federal government.

Human Side of the News

Treasure Seekers in Old Ocean's Depths—Try at Gold Sunk With Lusitania

By Edwin C. Hill

An item in the news must thrill the heart of anyone with a spark of adventure and a gleam of romance in his over-civilized soul. Out from the old port of Sunderland, on the east coast of England, sails a little cargo boat under sealed orders. Her deck is heaped with fascinating machinery and apparatus—diving bells and diving suits and salvage gear of all kinds. And all along the coast, which has bred hardy seadogs ever since the Red Haired Queen sent Francis Drake out to whip home the Spanish Armada, goes the word that the trim little ship is going treasure hunting on the bottom of the sea—to win the five million that went down when the Lusitania plunged to her grave off the Old Head of Kinsale.

As the English get ready to send divers down to prowl among the bones of the drowned Lusitania, our own Simon Lake, inventor of the submarine, prepares to make a try for the golden treasure in the liner's stronghox. His will go gold-hunting with an undersea boat, try to lay it up against the Lusitania's shattered hull, and then have a try for the strongbox and the gold.

Only the other day the Italian salvage ship, Artiglio, slipped into Plymouth harbor in En land with $700,000 worth of gold and silver bars, torn by heroic efforts from the treasure room of the steamship Egypt, lying on the ocean floor off the coast of France.

A thrilling tale of the sea and of the treasure hunters, that and also the story of the recovery of Egypt's treasure of five million dollars in gold bars and several tons of silver. The old British ship, with the aid of the storm king, fought savagely to keep her golden hoard, and 14 men were killed before daring divers, working deep down in the cold darkness, by the eerie light of electric torches, dynamited their way to the treasure room and blew it apart.

Divers have found the hulk of the Ward Liner Merida which lies partly buried in sand and seaweed on the ocean floor off Cape Charles, Virginia, where she went down 2a years ago. In the purser's room of the Merida are 21 tons of silver pesos, which are now gambling the crown jewels of the Emperor Maximilian, worth at least a million dollars. Time after time men have backed expeditions to recover the rich prize, but gales and high seas have defeated every effort of courage and skill. Percy Rockefeller, Charles H. Dunn and others floated an effort in 1916. Eight years later a number of Philadelphia sportsmen, including A. J. Drexel Biddle, and Franklin Mallory, sent out futile expeditions.

And now, with new and wonderful diving machinery, the belief is that the Merida's treasure can be won—the millions in coined silver, the four thousand tons of copper, the two thousand kegs of rum and 40 crates of parrots that made up her cargo. The parrots, one fancies, won't be much good—a trifle passe after all these years on the bottom of the Atlantic.

But the whole world is treasure hunting these days, and serious men of affairs—bankers, lawyers, merchants—are as romantic about it as if they were sailing with Captain John Silver bound for Treasure Island. In New York a great syndicate has been formed to salvage a cargo of ivory lost off the African coast, and to seek other sea-floor treasure troves.

Frederick Arthur J. Henriques, of the United States Naval Reserve, retired, tells me that in the past 20 years the American merchant marine alone has lost over four thousand, six hundred ships, with a cargo value of a hundred and thirty million dollars. There's enough promise of adventure in that to last the syndicate members all their natural lives.

Even with the new machines and the electric gadgets, treasure hunting cannot be robbed of its romance. It would be a dull day for modern youth and grownups, too, if the time ever came when there were no more Spanish galleons or doubloons or pieces of eight, no more pirate chests of gold and jewels, no more maps and charts to treasure islands in faraway seas.

And I believe, as surely as I am writing this, that the time will come when adventurers will walk freely about the bottom of the sea, seeking in mysterious depths, among unsuspected monsters of the deep, the yellow gold—almighty gold—for which, as Ben Jonson wrote to the Countess of Rutland, "All virtue now is sold, and almost every vice!"

Words of the Wise Men

—O. W. Holmes.

Well, I am not fair and therefore I pray the gods make me honest.
